Mr. Meale: Over 90 per cent. of the funding for Regional Development Agencies in 1999–2000 will be in respect of the regeneration programmes which they will inherit from the Government Offices for the Regions, English Partnerships and the Rural Development Commission. The distribution of those resources is determined largely by statistical indicators of need.

For later years, resources will be allocated to RDAs in response to the corporate plans which they submit to the Secretary of State. Allocations will take account of the needs of the regions, the soundness of the RDAs' plans for tackling those needs and their performance in implementing their programmes.

Red Squirrels

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what measures the UK Red Squirrel Group has taken to protect red squirrels in Cumbria. [73690]

Mr. Meacher: Red Squirrel conservation in Cumbria is undertaken by the Red Squirrel Conservation Partnership, NPI Red Alert Northwest. The UK Red Squirrel Group actively supports the work of NPI Red Alert Northwest in Cumbria through the provision of technical advice to local staff, support in the production of the Regional Action Plan, assisting in organising the NPI Red Alert Northwest forum, and the provision of a practitioners newsletter. The Secretariat of the UK Red Squirrel Group has been based with Cumbria Wildlife Trust.

Footpaths and Bridleways

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions how many miles of (a) footpaths and (b) bridleways in England and Wales are not fully open or easily negotiable according to Countryside Commission criteria. [73967]

Mr. Meacher: In a national rights of way condition survey carried out in England in 1994 by the Countryside Commission, walkers found that 25 per cent. of footpaths and 18 per cent. of bridleways were poor or unusable at some point on their length. Horse riders and cyclists found that 25 per cent. of bridleways were difficult to use. 25 per cent. of footpaths equates to about 20,500 miles, and 25 per cent. of bridleways represents about 4,600 miles.

Wales has a total of 24,850 miles of rights of way. Between 1992 and 1998, 7,215 miles were surveyed and it was found that 23 per cent. of footpaths were blocked or difficult to use. This equates to 5,716 miles of the total. No comparable figures are available for bridleways due to the statistically small proportion surveyed.

Fuel Poverty

Mr. Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions how non-fuel-poor households are defined in figure D of his Department's Background Paper on Fuel Poverty and Current Government Programmes; and if he will make a statement. [73774]

Mr. Meale: The paper uses the standard definition applied by academics and organisations active in the sector, of non-fuel poor households being those needing to spend 10 per cent. or less of household income to achieve a satisfactory indoor heating regime (21°C in the living room and 18°C in the other occupied rooms).

Flight Restrictions (Heathrow)

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions how many representations he has received in the last year on night flight restrictions at Heathrow; and if he will make a statement. [74029]

Ms Glenda Jackson: My Department has received a large number of representations expressing a range of different views on the subject of aircraft noise in general over the last year. It would involve disproportionate cost to calculate how many referred specifically to night flight restrictions at Heathrow Airport. On February 12, we concluded the second stage of a two stage consultation on Night Restrictions at Heathrow, Gatwick and Stansted. Responses to the first stage are available for inspection by appointment at the DETR Information Centre, 76 Marsham Street, London SW1, telephone 0171 676 2002. The responses to the second stage are currently being logged and analysed. The Government will reach a decision after careful consideration of the responses.

Genetically Modified Organisms

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions how many complaints have been received concerning possible breaches of licence in respect of the growing of GMOs. [73219]

Mr. Meacher: Further to my answers to the hon. Member for Lewes (Mr. Baker) on 17 December 1998, Official Report, column 630, and 4 February 1999, Official Report, column 720, no complaints have been received about possible breaches of consent to grow GMOs, but some have been detected by Health and Safety Executive Inspectors.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what controls other than the prosecution of offenders are available to the licensing authorities in respect of GMO research. [73220]

Mr. Meacher: The controls available are contained in Part VI of the Environmental Protection Act 1990 and associated regulations. In summary no person may release any GMO without the express permission of the Secretary of State. The consent holder must comply with the conditions and limitations set by the consent, which may be revoked or varied at any time. There are also powers to serve a prohibition notice to terminate or prevent any activity.

Environment Agency

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions how many people employed by the Environment Agency have (a) worked in and (b) had direct experience of the nuclear industry. [73213]

Mr. Meale: Of the Agency's key staff and those involved with Radioactive Substances regulation, (a) forty six; and (b) fourteen.

Disabled Access

Mr. Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what discussions have been held between his Department and officials from bus and coach operating companies regarding (a) disabled access to buses and (b) facilities available at bus stops; and what guidelines have subsequently been issued. [74059]

Ms Glenda Jackson: We have had extensive discussions with bus and coach operators on our proposals for accessibility regulations under the provisions of the Disability Discrimination Act 1995 to ensure that in future new vehicles will be fully accessible to disabled people, including wheelchair users. We will be publishing draft regulations for public consultation around Easter. We shall be seeking the further views of the bus and coach industry on these draft regulations.

In collaboration with the Passenger Transport Executives, guidelines were published by the Department several years ago on the design of accessible public transport infrastructure, including bus stops. We have recently commissioned consultants to review that material and to draw up comprehensive guidance for transport operators and local authorities to help them to introduce good practice in making infrastructure accessible both to optimise the transport provisions of the Disability Discrimination Act and to prepare for the full introduction of Part III of the Act which covers access to goods, services and facilities.

Mr. Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what discussions have been held between his Department and officials from Railtrack and the rail operating companies regarding disabled access to trains and railway station facilities; and what guidelines have subsequently been issued. [74051]

Ms Glenda Jackson: We had extensive and regular discussions with both Railtrack and the rail operating companies in developing the Rail Vehicle Accessibility Regulations 1998 which were introduced on 1 November 1998. Those regulations, which apply to new rolling stock coming into service from 1 January this year, will ensure new trains and trams are accessible to disabled people, including those who need to travel in a wheelchair. We remain in regular contact with the rail operating companies, working with them to ensure their new design of vehicles meet the regulations.

We also work closely with Railtrack on a wide range of issues affecting the needs of disabled rail travellers. Access to stations and other transport infrastructure will be covered by Part III of the Disability Discrimination Act 1995 which covers access to goods, facilities and services. My Department (in collaboration with representative bodies of local authorities and the professional institutions) is producing advice for service providers in the transport sector on best practice in meeting the needs of disabled people. That guidance will be available later this year.

Disabled Parking

Mr. Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what guidance is issued by his Department to local authorities regarding the issuance of orange disabled parking permits. [74049]

Ms Glenda Jackson: Guidance was issued in the Local Authority Circular 3/91, 'The Orange Badge Scheme of Parking Concessions for Disabled and Blind People'.

Mr. Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions how many disabled orange parking permits are currently in circulation in (a) the UK, (b) the Adur district, (c) Worthing Borough and (d) West Sussex. [74050]

Ms Glenda Jackson: As at 31 March 1998, the total number of oranges badges on issue in the UK was 2,047,041. The figure for West Sussex was 33,426. We do not compile separate figures for the Adur district or Worthing Borough.

Home Insulation

Mr. Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what schemes he has made available to encourage greater use of insulation materials in existing homes. [74068]

Mr. Meale: The Department's Home Energy Efficiency Scheme (HEES) encourages the installation of insulation materials in the homes of those on benefits and the elderly. HEES now accounts for nearly half of the cavity wall insulation market in the UK. The Energy Saving Trust has five schemes, funded by my Department, which promote the installation of insulation in existing homes. Three of these promote cavity wall insulation, fund schemes run by local authorities under the HECAction programme and promote energy services, which often include the provision of insulation. The remaining two, the Energy Efficiency Advice Centres and Energy Efficiency marketing project, provide advice and information to householders on energy efficiency, including the installation of insulation.

Taxi Vouchers

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what discussions he has had with local authorities regarding the provision of taxi vouchers for the elderly and disabled; what financial assistance the Government gives to local authorities to enable them to provide such a service; what plans he has to review the system; and if he will make a statement. [73820]

Ms Glenda Jackson: Local authorities outside London are enabled by the Transport Act 1985 to provide concessionary travel schemes for resident pensioners and disabled people, which may include travel by taxi. The details of these schemes are a matter for individual local authorities and no central record is kept of the provision made. Financial assistance is provided through the overall support given to local authority expenditure in general. I have no plans to change these arrangements.

Inspection Charges (Accident Hazards)

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions for what reason the proposed inspection charges under the Town and Country Planning (Control of Major Accident Hazards) Regulations 1999 are higher in England and Wales than in Scotland. [73810]

Mr. Meale: The proposed charges of the Environment Agency, which is to carry out environmental inspection under the proposed Control of Major Accident Hazards Regulations (COMAH) in England and Wales are higher than those of the Scottish Environment Protection Agency, which carries out the same functions in Scotland. This is because the relevant input costs, such are accommodation, differ. The charges have been calculated in accordance with HM Treasury's Fees and Charges Guide.

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions (1) what representations he has received alleging inadequacies in consultations with small businesses in the fuel supply and distribution industry over the possible impact of the proposed charging regimes for the Town and Country Planning (Control of Major Accident Hazards) Regulations 1999; and if he will make a statement; [73819]

(2) what representations he has received alleging inadequacies in (a) identifying and (b) estimating compliance costs for the fuel supply and distribution industry in the preparation of the proposed charging regime for the Town and Country Planning (Control of Major Accident Hazards) Regulations 1999. [73818]

Mr. Meale: One letter has been received making such representations. Copies of this same letter have also been forwarded by six Members of Parliament. The Health and Safety Commission initiated an eight-week consultation on 24 November 1998 on proposals to charge for activities conducted under the proposed Control of Major Accident Hazards Regulations (COMAH). The consultation document included details of the charging proposals, chargeable activities, the methodology used for calculating charges, the likely impact of charging on industry and illustrative examples of charges for a range of COMAH establishments.

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions (1) what analysis of compliance costs was undertaken in respect of (a) the fuel supply and distribution industry and (b) the liquified petroleum gas industry in the preparation of the proposed charging regime for the Town and Country Planning (Control of Major Accident Hazards) Regulations 1999; [73817]

(2) what (a) representations he has received on and (b) assessment he has made of competitive disadvantages for sections of the fuel supply and distribution industry arising from the proposed charging provisions under the Town and Country Planning (Control of Major Accident Hazards) Regulations 1999; and if he will make a statement. [73809]

Mr. Meale: Two letters have been received making such representations. Copies of one of these have also been forwarded by six Members of Parliament. The current projection is that the overall charges to industry, for the performance of the functions placed on the Competent Authority under the proposed Control of Major Accident Hazards Regulations (COMAH), will amount to approximately £6 million in 1999–2000, and £6.6 million in 2000–01 and 2001–02. It is not possible at this stage to separate out the costs of charging likely to be borne by the fuel supply and distribution and liquefied petroleum gas industries from those of other industries. The COMAH charging consultative document provided illustrative examples of the likely charges for different, typical types of establishment to enable operators to estimate their costs.

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what representations he has received criticising (a) the suitability of the proposed flat rate inspection charge and (b) the adequacy of efforts to ensure that these charges relate directly to actual work undertaken under the Town and Country Planning (Control of Major Accident Hazards) Regulations 1999. [73811]

Mr. Meale: Four letters have been received making such representations, of which two raised only first issue. Copies of one of these letters, which raised both issues, have also been forwarded by six Members of Parliament.

Parish Councils

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what plans he has to review the threshold above which parish councils are subject to the Audit Accounting Regulations; and if he will make a statement. [73638]

Ms Armstrong: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer I gave him on 20 January 1999, Official Report, column 466.

Countryside Agency

Mr. Yeo: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions when (a) the Chairman and (b) members of the Countryside Agency will be appointed. [74337]

Mr. Meacher: Shortly.

Airport Companies

Mr. Stringer: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions which local authority airport companies he regards as qualified to be freed from borrowing control. [74618]

Dr. Reid: Following the issue of a consultation document and an invitation to qualified airport companies to apply to be freed from borrowing control, Manchester Airport plc, Newcastle International Airport Ltd., Leeds Bradford International Airport Ltd. and Norwich Airport Ltd. have applied. My right hon. Friend has considered their applications. He is satisfied that all four companies are financially sound and that they should be removed from borrowing control. He will therefore shortly lay before Parliament an Order making the necessary amendment to the Public Airport Companies (Capital Finance) Order 1996. Subject to Parliamentary approval the amending Order will take effect on 1 April.

Sustainable Distribution

Mr. Caton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions when he proposes to publish his strategy for sustainable distribution. [74620]

Dr. Reid: I have today published our strategy for sustainable distribution, establishing a partnership between Government and industry to develop a world class distribution system for the next millennium, meeting industry's and consumers' needs while improving our environment and quality of life. Copies have been placed in the Library of the House and are available in the Vote Office.

WALES

Disability Discrimination Act 1995

Mr. Berry: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what assessment he has made of the impact on his Department's policies of the goods and services provisions of the Disability Discrimination Act 1995 to be implemented in October 1999. [71267]

Mr. Jon Owen Jones: We are acting to ensure that the Department's policies meet the needs of disabled people and that we comply with our legal requirements. The Department already takes positive steps to make it easier for disabled people to make use of its services. We shall continue to do so, not only by complying fully with the new duties in the Disability Discrimination Act but by aiming to exceed these requirements where we can.

In December 1998, the Department briefed all its senior management on "mainstreaming" which ensures that all new and existing policies and programmes are assessed for any adverse impact not only on disabled people, but on any minority or disadvantaged group. That includes the need to ensure that our policies and their outcomes comply with the law. Where necessary, we shall act to remove or reduce the adverse impact on these groups. The guidance, "Policy Appraisal for Equal Treatment", which the Cabinet Office has issued to all Government Departments, was circulated at the same time.

In addition, the Government of Wales Act 1998 gives the National Assembly of Wales a duty to have regard to equality of opportunity for all people in the conduct of its business and in the exercise of its functions. The Assembly will have to report annually on what arrangements it has made to promote equality of opportunity in exercising its functions and how successful they have been. We have received advice from the National Assembly Advisory Group and the Standing Orders Commission on how these duties should be given effect and the Department is in contact with relevant statutory and voluntary bodies in Wales regarding the development of these arrangements.

Housing Renovation

Mr. Wigley: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what estimate he has made of the outstanding housing renovation grants in Wales on the basis of existing commitments made by local authorities at 31 March 1998, or the latest date at which the information is available. [71353]

Mr. Jon Owen Jones: The value of outstanding renovation grants at the end of September 1998 is estimated to be £98 millions: this relates to grants under both the 1989 Local Government and Housing Act and the 1996 Housing Grants, Construction and Regeneration Act.

Following the transfer of functions, this issue will be a matter for the National Assembly.

Caergwrle Bypass

Mr. Barry Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will make a statement on the prospects for a Caergwrle bypass. [74187]

Mr. Hain: The scheme is the joint responsibility of Flintshire and Wrexham councils and I had a meeting to discuss the way forward with my hon. Friend and a delegation last week.

Following the transfer of functions, any bid for Transport Grant support will be a matter for the National Assembly.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

National Lottery

Mrs. Virginia Bottomley: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what percentage of heritage projects for which National Lottery funding was applied for were rejected in (a) 1996–97, (b) 1997–98 and (c) 1998–99 to date. [72176]

Mr. Chris Smith: The table shows applications rejected by the Heritage Lottery Fund (including those deemed ineligible) as a percentage of applications on which a decision was made (i.e. applications which were accepted or rejected) during the period. The figures do not take into account applications on which no decision has yet been taken.

The figures relate to the year in which the decision was made, which in some cases is different from the year in which the relevant applications were received.

| 1997–98 | 35 |
| 1998–99 (to 16 February 1999) | 54 |

Libraries

Mr. Dobbin: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment his Department has made of the service provided by public libraries. [72104]

Mr. Alan Howarth [holding answer 1 March 1999]: I refer my hon. Friend to the reply I gave on 1 March 1999, Official Report, column 532, to my hon. Friends the Members for Ilford, North (Ms Perham) and for Normanton (Mr. O'Brien).

HOME DEPARTMENT

Crime Statistics

Mr. Linton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many crimes were (a) reported and (b) solved in England and Wales involving false documentation (i) in relation to motor vehicles and (ii) not related to motor vehicles for the years (1) 1995, (2) 1996, (3) 1997 and (4) 1998. [73084]

Mr. Boateng: Recorded crimes which involve false documentation are included in fraud and forgery offences, but are not separately identifiable. Figures for all recorded fraud and forgery offences for 1995, 1996 and 1997 are as follows (1998 figures are not yet available):

Fraud and forgery, England and Wales

| Year | Number of offences | Offences detected |
|---|---|---|
| 1995 | 133,016 | 65,935 |
| 1996 | 136,225 | 67,080 |
| 1997 | 134,398 | 64,555 |

Crimes involving false documentation in relation to motor vehicles are not included in the totals, as they were not notifiable to the Home Office before April 1998. However, the numbers of these crimes are being collected from 1 April 1998, and will be included in the statistical bulletin on notifiable offences which will be issued in October 1999.

EU Nationals

Ms Oona King: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many decisions to deport EU nationals were made on the grounds of (a) public policy, (b) public security and (c) public health during the period 1 February 1998 to date. [72868]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Between 1 February and 30 November 1998, some 135 European Union nationals were issued with a notice of intention to deport or recommended for deportation by a court. The precise reasons for initiating deportation action in these cases can only be obtained through the examination of individual case records and is therefore only available at disproportionate cost.

Prostitute Contact Cards

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on the steps his Department is taking to outlaw prostitute contact cards in London telephone boxes. [73640]

Mr. Boateng: The Home Office will shortly be issuing a consultation paper on new measures to tackle the problem of prostitutes cards in telephone boxes which will look at options for changing the law to enable those who put cards in telephone boxes to be dealt with more effectively.

Ethnic Minority Police

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how he intends police forces to meet the target for ethnic minority police in areas with a very small percentage of ethnic minorities. [73679]

Mr. Boateng: Individual targets will be set for each force for the recruitment, retention and progression of ethnic minority officers. These targets will inevitably have regard to the minority ethnic population of the community served by the individual police force.

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many ethnic minority police officers Cumbria Constabulary will need to recruit to meet a 7 per cent. ethnic minority target. [73680]

Mr. Boateng: No targets have yet been set. For the police service broadly to reflect the minority ethnic population of England and Wales, there would need to be an overall ethnic minority representation of at least 6 per cent. Each force will be asked to set targets for recruitment, retention and progression for ethnic minority officers. Force targets will have regard to ethnic composition of the community served.

The minority ethnic population in Cumbria is approximately 0.4 per cent. of the total population of the area. Inevitably, this will mean that targets for this area will be below the national average.

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how dispersed asylum seekers are to be taken into account in determining whether the target for ethnic minority police has been met. [73677]

Mr. Boateng: The police service needs to reflect the communities it serves, which means that, taking England and Wales as a whole, the aim should be for minority ethnic representation of at least six per cent. Not all minority ethnic residents in an area will be eligible to join the police, but it is unlikely that the number of asylum seekers measured against the total population will have a significant impact on targets.

"Bride of Chucky Doll"

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what representations he has received on the film "Bride of Chucky Doll". [73318]

Mr. Boateng: I have received one letter from a Member of this House on behalf of a constituent and will be responding shortly.

Automated Fingerprint Recognition System

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on progress with the Automated Fingerprint Recognition System. [73501]

Mr. Boateng: I am advised by the Police Information Technology Organisation that the National Automated Fingerprint Identification System (NAFIS) Programme, following some restructuring of the implementation plan, is on track to complete roll-out to all 43 police forces in England and Wales by April 2001. The transition phase has already commenced, with 11 forces operating Bureau Foundation Services and new bureau installations being welcomed into NAFIS at an average rate of one per month.

Asylum Seekers (Sexuality)

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many asylum seekers, and from which countries, are seeking asylum on account of their sexuality. [73552]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: I regret that information on the number of persons claiming asylum on grounds of persecution due to their sexuality is not available.

Racial Incidents (Policing)

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department for what reasons his Department's studies of (a) young offenders from different ethnic groups and (b) the policing of racial incidents was commissioned; what are the terms of reference of the study; how is it being conducted; what reports he has received on the findings of the study to date; and when in Spring 1999 the final report will be published. [73351]

Mr. Boateng: Both studies were originally approved in February 1995, when the right hon. Gentleman was Minister of State. The details are as follows:

Young Offenders from Different Ethnic Groups

A number of research studies have provided evidence of ethnic differences at each stage of the criminal justice process. This study has interviewed matched samples of young offenders of different ethnic origins to shed light on the various reasons for this. The findings are being written up and the report is likely to be published within the next four months.

Police recording of racial incidents

This study forms part of a wider study of police ethnic monitoring. The first part was published in December 1997 as "Ethnic Monitoring in Police Forces: a Beginning" (FitzGerald and Sibbitt, HORS 173). The second part is now in draft and examines:

(a) which incidents the police record as "racial incidents";

(b) which incidents are not recorded, despite meeting the definition of a "racial incident";

(c) the reasons for any mis-recording or under-recording; and

(d) the scope for improvement.

Publication is also expected within four months or so.

Neither of the reports has yet been put to me.

PC Dunne

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will hold an independent judicial inquiry into the decision not to bring to trial the men arrested for the murder of PC Dunne in Clapham. [73684]

Mr. Boateng: I have no plans to establish an independent judicial inquiry into the decision not to bring to trial the three men arrested in connection with the murders of PC Patrick Dunne and Mr. William Danso in Clapham on 20 October 1993. Following the arrest and charging of the three men, the Crown Prosecution Service (CPS) sought the opinion of Treasury Counsel, who advised that there was insufficient evidence to proceed with the charges of murder and conspiracy to murder. During the course of the investigation where further evidence was discovered, this opinion was re-examined by Counsel, but it was concluded that there was still insufficient evidence for a realistic prospect of convictions, a conclusion accepted by the CPS and the Metropolitan Police Service.

I understand from the Metropolitan police that whilst this investigation remains an active inquiry, no new evidence has since come to light which would cause either the CPS or Counsel to reconsider their opinion. The three men originally charged were subsequently sentenced to lengthy periods of imprisonment for various serious offences of violence, blackmail and possession of firearms with intent to endanger life.

Community Service

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will assess the advantages and disadvantages of requiring those serving community service sentences to wear high-visibility marked protective clothing to make their participation apparent to the public. [73614]

Mr. George Howarth: We shall bear this suggestion in mind. Protective clothing is already provided where necessary for health and safety reasons.

Police Radio

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on the progress of the Police Service Radio Communications Project. [73687]

Mr. Boateng: I am advised by the Police Information Technology Organisation that negotiations for the award of contract for the Public Service Radio Communications Project (PSRCP) are now entering their final stage, with the aim of completing them in the summer.

Lancashire Constabulary is the pilot force for the project. The pilot should be installed this year, with evaluation in early 2000.

Stalking

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many prosecutions there have been for stalking since the passage of the relevant Act; how many were successful; and what sentence was passed in each case. [73504]

Mr. Boateng: The relevant sections 1, 2 and 4 of the Protection from Harassment Act 1997 came into force on 16 June 1997. Data are given in the table for 1997 and provisionally, for the period January to June 1998.

Number of defendants prosecuted at magistrates' courts and sentenced at all courts for offences under the Protection from Harassment Act 1997[1] by result, England and Wales, 1997 and January to June 1998[2]

| | Section 2 Offence of harassment | | Section 4 Putting people in fear of violence | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | 1997 | [2]1998 January to June | 1997 | [2]1998 January to June |
| Total proceeded against | 507 | 1,180 | 243 | 712 |
| Total sentenced[3] | 248 | 1,013 | 76 | 239 |
| Absolute or conditional discharge | 99 | 351 | 17 | 59 |
| Fine | 56 | 236 | 16 | 46 |
| Community sentence[4] | 48 | 268 | 24 | 71 |
| Fully suspended sentence | 3 | 5 | 1 | 2 |
| Immediate custody[5] | 33 | 113 | 16 | 52 |
| Other | 9 | 40 | 2 | 9 |

[1] Came into force on 16 June 1997
[2] Provisional
[3] Includes defendants proceeded against and found guilty at magistrates' courts who were committed to the Crown Court for sentence
[4] Includes probation order, supervision order, attendance centre order, community service order, combination order and curfew order
[5] Includes detention in a Young Offender Institution and unsuspended sentence of imprisonment

Pending Deportees

Mr. Gerrard: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people are currently held in prison or detention centres awaiting deportation, having already completed a sentence for a criminal offence with a recommendation for deportation on completion of the sentence; and for what periods they have been held in prison or detention centres since the completion of their sentence. [73558]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The information requested can be obtained only through the examination of individual case records and is therefore available only at disproportionate cost.

Bookmakers' Committee

Mr. Beith: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what factors underlie the proposed re-constitution of the Bookmakers' Committee; what representations he has received; and if he will make a statement. [73785]

Mr. George Howarth: We issued proposals in a consultation letter on 3 December. They sought a balance between the large bookmaking chains and organisations representing smaller bookmakers, taking into account size of membership, number of off-course shops, leviable turnover and levy paid.

We have received representations from Tyndallwoods solicitors (on behalf of the British Betting Office Association, the National Association of Bookmakers and the Scottish Independent Bookmakers' Association), the Betting Office Licensees Association, William Hill, Coral, Ladbroke and Stanley Leisure. We are currently considering them and will announce the outcome as soon as possible.

Chief Superintendent Rank

Mrs. Brinton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will reintroduce the rank of chief superintendent for police forces in England and Wales; and if he will make a statement. [74677]

Mr. Straw: Following consultation with police service interests and the agreement of the Police Advisory Board, I have given approval for the rank of Chief Superintendent to be reintroduced as soon as possible. The rank of Deputy Chief Constable will be reintroduced at the same time. I will take the earliest legislative opportunity to make the necessary changes.

Immigration (Country Assessments)

Kali Mountford: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he expects to make available the first revisions of the Immigration and Nationality Directorate's country assessments. [74678]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Revised country assessments were made available to caseworkers during December 1998 and January 1999. They will be made publicly available on the Home Office Internet site within the next few weeks and copies have been placed in the Library.

The assessments are all sourced to information obtained from independent external sources and from the Foreign and Commonwealth Office. The assessments have been reformatted to take account of many comments received from various representative bodies and asylum interest groups (the Consultative Group). A list of assessments was set out in my reply to my hon. Friend, the Member for Enfield, Southgate (Mr. Twigg), on 13 May 1998, Official Report, columns 127–28.

Asylum Seekers

Mr. Allan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate of the number of people who will claim asylum in the United Kingdom he has used to calculate the sums required for the new support arrangements in the years (a) 1999–2000, (b) 2000–01 and (c) 2001–02. [74211]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: I will write to the hon. Member.

Mr. Allan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate he has made of the administrative costs of the support arrangements for asylum seekers proposed in the Immigration and Asylum Bill per adult asylum seeker per week. [74210]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: I have made no separate estimate of the administrative costs of the support arrangements. The support arrangements will be procured by competitive tender. It will be up to potential providers to keep their administrative costs to a minimum.

Senator Pinochet

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many countries have made representations urging Senator Pinochet's return to Chile. [73215]

Mr. Straw: One. The Chilean Government made representations urging Senator Pinochet's return to Chile. I have also, today, answered a separate parliamentary question in respect of a letter from the Vatican.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when, and in what form, representations have been received on behalf of Senator Pinochet from the Vatican. [73214]

Mr. Straw: A letter from a senior level in the Vatican was passed, in November 1998, from the Foreign and Commonwealth Office to the Prime Minister and the Home Office.

Persistent Offenders

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what percentage of those persistent offender cases surveyed in the Phoenix-based research used to calculate the benchmark figure of 142 days for arrest to sentence for persistent young offenders and in subsequent research were completed (a) within 71 days, (b) within 142 days but more than 71 days and (c) in over 142 days. [74215]

Mr. Boateng: I shall write to the right hon. Member.

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, pursuant to his answer of 15 February 1999, Official Report, column 518, if he will estimate the effect of adopting an upper limit for the Phoenix-based survey on time between arrest and sentence for persistent young offenders to take into account the effect of the minority of cases which may be protracted for reasons outside the control of case management. [74219]

Mr. Boateng: On the basis of information currently held, it is not possible to calculate the number of cases where progress is protracted for reasons outside the control of case management. It is not possible to estimate the effect of adopting an upper limit for the Phoenix-based survey which would only exclude such cases. Any upper limit imposed would be likely to exclude cases affected by unnecessary delay, and would not be consistent with the Government's intention to reduce delay in all cases involving persistent young offenders.

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will provide a breakdown of the figures used to calculate the benchmark figure of 142 days for the pledge to halve the time between arrest and sentence for persistent young offenders. [74212]

Mr. Boateng: The calculation for the figure of 142 days from arrest to sentence was based on a representative sample of almost 1,500 occasions on which slightly over 900 persistent young offenders were sentenced for almost 4,500 offences during 1996, across England and Wales.

The dates on which the sampled persistent young offenders were sentenced were obtained from the Police National Computer, Phoenix. As Phoenix does not generally hold arrest dates, this information was obtained directly from police forces. The date of arrest for each sentencing occasion was defined as the earliest date of arrest (or date of laying of information) and was collected in respect of each offence for which a sentence was passed. Once this information had been added, the time from arrest to sentence was calculated on the basis of the difference (in calendar days) between the date of sentence and the date of arrest (or laying of information). The national baseline is the mean arrest to sentence time for the sampled sentencing occasions.

AIDS (Asylum Seekers)

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what response he plans to make to the concerns expressed by the Terrence Higgins Trust and LEAN in their responses to the White Paper, "Fairer, Faster and Firmer" (Cm 4018) relating to the problem of AIDS and HIV-related illnesses among asylum seekers; and what measures are being taken to address the issue of health among asylum seekers. [74213]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Responses from the Terrence Higgins Trust and the London East AIDS Network to the White Paper "Fairer, Faster and Firmer—A Modern Approach to Immigration and Asylum" were acknowledged in November. Their concerns are being taken into account in developing the new asylum support arrangements under which all asylum seekers will continue to be entitled to essential medical treatment available from the National Health Service.

Horseracing

Mr. Soames: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list the members of the Steering Group conducting a review of the Tote; and when it will report. [74140]

Mr. George Howarth: The Steering Group is chaired by Mr. Peter Jones, the Tote's Chairman. Its other members are Mr. H Bush from Her Majesty's Treasury, and Miss C. Sinclair, Mr. R. Fulton, Mr. J. Dilling, Mr. S. Hickson and Mr. C. Hawkswood from the Home Office. I understand that the Steering Group is nearing the end of its work and hopes to report to Ministers shortly.

Mr. Soames: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on the future financing of the horseracing industry in Great Britain. [74141]

Mr. George Howarth: We are having constructive discussions with the British Horseracing Board about the issues raised in their financial plan, but do not propose to make any general statement about horseracing's finances. Horseracing and bookmaker interests are due shortly to start important negotiations over the betting levy, under the oversight of the Horserace Betting Levy Board.

Fire Stations (PFI)

Mr. Dawson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of PFI bids for new fire stations in Lancaster; and if he will make a statement. [74138]

Mr. George Howarth: We have received no Private Finance Initiative bids for new fire stations in Lancaster. We provided £70,000 in 1997–98 towards the development costs of Lancashire's pathfinder Private Finance Initiative project to build replacement fire stations in Accrington and Morecambe. We are continuing to advise the fire authority on the preparation of its outline business case for that project.

TREASURY

Disabled People

Mr. Berry: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what amounts in his Department's budget for 1998–99 can be attributed to spending on disabled people; and what proportion this represents of total departmental spending. [71293]

Ms Hewitt: The Treasury's spending on disabled people can not be accurately identified.

Ministerial Visits

Mr. Gray: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will list the parliamentary constituencies which the Chief Secretary to the Treasury has visited in an official capacity in the past 12 months. [71332]

Mr. Milburn [holding answer 15 February 1999]: In the course of my official duties in the last 12 months I and previous Chief Secretaries have visited the cities and towns listed in the table. In addition I have visited a number of central and inner London areas in the normal course of my duties.

| Date | Areas |

| 6 February 1998*(a)* | Dundee |
| 25 September 1998*(b)* | Belfast |
| 22 January 1999*(c)* | Tatton Wythenshawe and Sale (Manchester area) |
| 27 January 1999*(c)* | Leeds |

Note:
Chief Secretary at the time:
(a) Alistair Darling
(b) Stephen Byers
(c) Alan Milburn

Mr. Gray: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will list the parliamentary constituencies which he has visited in an official capacity in the past 12 months. [71333]

Mr. Gordon Brown [holding answer 15 February 1999]: In the course of my official duties in the last 12 months I have visited the cities and towns listed in the table. In addition, I have visited a number of central and inner London areas in the normal course of my duties.

| Date | Area |
| 27 February 1998 | Glasgow |

Disability Discrimination Act 1995

Mr. Berry: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the impact on his Department's policies of the goods and services provisions of the Disability Discrimination Act 1995 to be implemented in October 1999. [71264]

Ms Hewitt: The Department's current policies, procedures and practices are under review with a view to ensuring that they will be fully compliant with the goods and services provisions of the Disability Discrimination Act by October 1999. The Treasury provides few direct services to the public—our main service is the provision of information either through our Website, publications or the Public Enquiry Unit.

To consider our compliance with the provisions on physical access, we instructed the building managing agents to undertake a full disability audit. The details of their report are currently being considered.

On access to communications, we have been in contact with Central Office of Information's Informability Unit to consider compliance with the Act in respect of our printed and electronic (website) publications. We propose to use the Unit to provide information in alternative formats (eg such as braille conversion, audio tapes etc.) where required. Advice will also be taken from Central Office of Information's Informability Unit on the possibility of making our telephone-based public inquiry service accessible to people who are deaf of have impaired hearing and to people with speech impairments.

Mozambique

Mr. Ben Chapman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the (a) amount and (b) proportion of overall Government expenditure that Mozambique will pay in servicing its debt in the year following its Heavily Indebted Poor Countries Initiative completion point. [71393]

Ms Hewitt: The IMF estimates that scheduled debt service for Mozambique in the year following its expected completion point under the HIPC initiative will be $98 million. The IMF has not published an estimate of this figure as a proportion of this figure as a proportion of overall government expenditure.

Withholding Tax

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if it is his policy to exercise the British veto in relation to EU proposals to introduce a minimum withholding tax on income from non-resident savings and investments; and if he will make a statement. [71675]

Dawn Primarolo [holding answer 22 February 1999]: We have made it clear that we will not agree to any proposal which would cause serious damage to EU financial markets. We do not agree with the current draft Directive on the taxation of savings in its current form.

International Monetary Fund

Mr. McNamara: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if the Interim Committee of the International Monetary Fund has considered the report from the External Evaluation of the IMF's Enhanced Structural Adjustment Facility; and which of the report's findings Her Majesty's Government supports. [72194]

Ms Hewitt: The UK strongly welcomed the report from the External Evaluation on the IMF's Enhanced Structural Adjustment Facility (ESAF) when it was presented to the IMF Executive Board last year. In particular, we welcomed the report's findings on the need to implement a new approach to address the social impact of ESAF programmes, on the need for better and more effective collaboration between the IMF and World Bank, and on the importance of ownership to the success of programmes. We encouraged the publication of the external report to promote further public discussion of its findings.

We have been working at the IMF to ensure that the findings of the external report are used to strengthen ESAF programmes. We welcomed the IMF's paper on "Distilling the Lessons from the ESAF reviews", supported its decision to implement a new approach to ESAF on a pilot basis, and have encouraged the Fund to go further and incorporate the lessons of the review in all ESAF programmes. We will continue to work to ensure that the lessons of the review are fully addressed.

Taxation (Charities)

Mr. Flight: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) when the Government expects to publish its report on the taxation of charities; and if he will make a statement; [72657]

(2) what representations he has received from the charity sector on the Government's review of the taxation of charities. [72656]

Ms Hewitt: The Government received over 3,000 replies in the first phase of the Review, and are considering carefully all options. I do not want to pre-empt the content of the consultation document, which will be published by the time of the Budget.

Euro

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the total money supply of the currencies of the countries joining in the euro at the time of the euro's inception. [73240]

Ms Hewitt: Provisional data from the European Central Bank show that the money supply (M3) in the euro area at the end of 1998 stood at Euro 4,436.1 billion.

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is his estimate of the total money supply of the United States dollar at the time of the euro's inception. [73242]

Ms Hewitt: Data for the US money stock is published in Federal Reserve Board Press release H6. This can be found on the Federal Reserve Board Website at http://www.federalreserve.gov.

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what was the average inflation level of the countries joining the euro at the time of the euro's inception. [73241]

Ms Hewitt: The average level of inflation in the euro zone, as measured by the Harmonised Index of Consumer Prices (HICP), was 0.8 per cent. in December 1998.

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the total money supply of sterling at the time of the euro's inception. [73243]

Ms Hewitt: Money supply data for the UK is available in table 3.2 of the Bank of England's monthly publication, "Monetary and Financial Statistics".

Hydrocarbon Duty

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will estimate the loss of hydrocarbon duty in the current financial year from (a) cross-border smuggling and (b) cross-border purchasing. [72956]

Ms Hewitt: HM Customs and Excise have no estimate for the revenue lost to the Exchequer through this activity.

Occupational Pensions

Mr. Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many occupational schemes have been found to be deliberately in breach of the earnings limits on tax-free contributions during each of the last five years. [73014]

Ms Hewitt [holding answer 25 February 1999]: We do not record this information.

Air Miles

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many Air Miles have been earned by him and each of his Ministers; and how he proposes to use them. [73338]

Ms Hewitt: The Government's policy on the use and disposal of air miles was set out by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister in his answer to the hon. Member for South-East Cambridgeshire (Mr. Paice) on 12 January 1999, Official Report, column 141.

Detailed information on any air miles earned by Ministers as a result of official travel is not recorded centrally.

Euro Preparations Committee

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer on how many occasions the cross-party Euro Preparations Committee has met to date; who is its chairman; and if he will make a statement. [72814]

Ms Hewitt [holding answer 25 February 1999]: My hon. Friend the Member for Huddersfield (Mr. Sheerman) has agreed to Chair the cross-party Euro Preparations Committee. The first meeting will be held soon.

Pensions

Mr. Sayeed: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what assessment he has made of the impact of lifelong individual savings accounts on occupational pension scheme membership; [73549]

(2) what plans he has to simplify the regulatory regime for personal pensions. [73550]

Ms Hewitt: The Treasury's proposed pooled pension investment (ppi) is a contractual wrapper for pensions savings, not a pension scheme in its own right. It could suitably hold units invested in personal pensions, stakeholder pensions, occupational pensions and AVCs, and will allow movement between these types of scheme without the large financial penalties currently incurred. Ppis will add a new transparency and flexibility to the pension market.

Debt (Poor Countries)

Mr. Cox: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is the estimated debt of the world's 10 poorest countries incurred with the United Kingdom; and if he will make a statement. [73619]

Ms Hewitt: Debts owed to the UK by the countries shown in the World Bank's 1998 World Development Indicators as having the 10 lowest GNP per capita figures are as follows:

| Country | Total debt owed to UK (£ million) |
|---|---|
| Chad | 0 |
| D.R. Congo | 80 |
| Ethiopia | 12 |
| Malawi | 1 |
| Mozambique | 90 |
| Niger | 11 |
| Rwanda | 0 |
| Sierra Leone | 4 |
| Tanzania | 116 |
| Total | 314 |

Business Leaders

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will list the business leaders involved in the 12 business euroteams; and what links they have with Ambassadors for British Business. [73601]

Ms Hewitt: The regional euro forums were set up to help support business—in particular Small and Medium Sized Enterprises—prepare for the euro. The forums are led by senior business people with representation from key strategic partners who have an interest in supporting business, for example CBI, Business Links, TUC Chambers of Commerce. The Chairmen of the 12 Regional Euro Forums are as follows:

| Name | Position | Region |
|---|---|---|
| John Burke | Chief Executive, Bristol and West PLC | South West |
| Philip Hardaker | Senior Partner, KPMG | South East |
| Neville Orr | Chairman, Herdmans Holding Limited | Northern Ireland |
| Neville Reyner | | Eastern |
| Dr. John Rigg | Economic Advisor, Scottish Office | Scotland |
| Tony Rose | Deputy Chairman, Rover | West Midlands |
| James Ross | Chairman, Littlewoods PLC | North West |
| Peter Stoddart | Company Secretary, Nissan | North East |
| Hilary Thompson | Natwest Bank | London |
| Ken Truman | Area Director, Lloyds Bank | Wales |
| John Watson | Director, Yorkshire Building Society | Yorks & the Humber |
| Martin Henry | Chairman, Lastolite Limited | East Midlands |

The forums have no links with Ambassadors for British Business.

Road Haulage Industry

Jackie Ballard: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the amount of revenue lost through British road hauliers taxing their vehicles in other EU countries and purchasing fuel there for United Kingdom journeys. [73767]

Ms Hewitt: There are no official estimates for the revenue losses to the Exchequer through these activities.

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what discussions he has had with road haulage companies about the impact on their businesses on the fuel duty escalator; what further discussions he plans to have with them before the Budget; and if he will make a statement; [73812]

(2) what discussions he has had with road haulage companies about the impact which the level of road fund tax has on their businesses; what plans he has to meet them before the Budget; and if he will make a statement. [73813]

Ms Hewitt: Treasury Ministers have not met with any road haulage companies, although officials have met with the Freight Transport Association and with the Road Haulage Association as recently as 23 February. Officials have made me fully aware of the concerns of the road haulage industry in the run up to the Budget.

Euro Coins

Sir Richard Body: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on his policy towards the European Commission's proposals on the production of euro coins; what rules will apply in the United Kingdom; what is meant by the proviso that such production should not change the image of the euro; what legal recourse there will be when a breach of this proviso occurs; what is the definition of European territory covered by this proposal; and if he will make a statement. [73768]

Ms Hewitt: The European Commission communication sets out arrangements for the enforcement of copyright protection on the common face design of euro coins and the applicable reproduction regime. Among other things, the reproduction regime specifies that reproductions of the common face design should not "damage or detract the image of the euro".

The Commission has assigned the copyright on the design of the common face of euro coins to each participating Member State. Enforcement of the copyright will be ensured by participating Member States according to their national legislation and in compliance with an agreed reproduction regime. The Commission will enforce the copyright in non-participating Member States according to the relevant national legislation. In the event of a breach of the reproduction rules, subsequent action may take the form of civil or criminal proceedings.

There is no definition of European territory in the Commission rules, but the scope of application of them is coincident with the scope of application of the monetary policy provisions of the EC Treaty.

Euro Conversion

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is his estimate for additional public expenditure arising out of the euro changeover plan for (a) 1998–99, (b) 1999–2000 and (c) subsequent years. [73802]

Ms Hewitt [holding answer 1 March 1999]: The cost of euro preparations would depend on the detailed approach that the UK took to the changeover. The outline National Changeover Plan is a first step in planning how the UK would make the changeover to the single currency. A further plan will be published in around a year's time.

Any spending in 1998–99 and 1999–2000 will be accommodated within the spending plans already set out for those years.

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the costs of converting to the euro for (a) the public sector, (b) retailers, (c) manufacturers, (d) the financial sector and (e) the economy as a whole. [73803]

Ms Hewitt [holding answer 1 March 1999]: The cost to each sector of the economy of conversion to the euro would depend on the detailed approach taken to the changeover. For example, costs would depend on the extent to which organisations are able to build in euro compatibility where IT systems are being upgraded or purchased for other reasons.

The outline National Changeover Plan is a first step in planning how the UK would make the changeover to the single currency. A further plan will be published in around a year's time.

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will estimate the cost to (a) the Inland Revenue, (b) HM Customs and Excise, (c) the other non-ministerial Departments within his responsibility and (d) his Department of converting to the euro. [74143]

Ms Hewitt: The cost to those departments of conversion to the euro would depend on the detailed approach that the UK took to the changeover. The outline National Changeover Plan is a first step in planning how the UK would make the changeover to the single currency. A further plan will be published in around a year's time.

The cost to those departments would also depend on the extent to which they are able to build in euro compatibility where IT systems are being upgraded or purchased for other reasons.

Average Earnings Index

Mr. Derek Twigg: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he expects to announce the outcome of the review of the revisions to the average earnings index. [74433]

Ms Hewitt: The report of the external review of the revisions to the average earnings index, announced by the Chancellor of the Exchequer on 23 October 1998, is being published today. The review has been conducted under the direction of Sir Andrew Turnbull and Mervyn King. Copies of the report are available in the Vote Office.

The Office for National Statistics (ONS) has today separately published the report of the work on the average earnings index by Professor Ray Chambers of Southampton University, which was commissioned by Dr. Tim Holt, the Director of the ONS. Copies of this report have been deposited in the Library of the House.

At the same time, following the implementation of the immediate technical recommendations made in the Turnbull-King report, the average earnings index which was suspended on 2 November 1998 has been reinstated by the ONS. Details of the reinstated index are set out in Chapter 9 of the Turnbull-King report and also in a separate ONS First Release.

The Government have accepted the recommendations of the Turnbull-King report and are firmly committed to their implementation. Dr. Holt has already agreed to my request to draw up a programme of action designed to implement the remaining recommendations, including further work to ensure a process of continuous improvement to the index. I have asked Dr. Holt to report to me regularly on the progress that is being made in implementing the recommendations.

Diesel (Comparative VAT Rates)

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will list the levels of duty and VAT on diesel in (a) the United Kingdom, (b) France, (c) Germany and (d) Belgium. [74304]

Ms Hewitt: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave to my hon. Friend the Member for Wrexham (Dr. Marek) on 23 February 1999, Official Report, columns 241–42.

Fish Quota

Ms Lawrence: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is the capital gains treatment of fish quota; and if he will make a statement. [74616]

Dawn Primarolo: The fishing industry will benefit from our decision to give capital gains roll-over relief for fish quota. It will enable fishermen to reinvest in the fishing industry without loss of capital and plan more effectively for the future. Regulations will shortly be laid adding fish quota to the list of chargeable assets qualifying for roll-over relief. The Inland Revenue are also today issuing a statement by way of a Press Release which clarifies the circumstances in which roll-over relief will be available for fish quota and other qualifying assets used in the fishing industry.

PRIME MINISTER

Genetically Modified Foods

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Prime Minister on how many occasions since 1 May 1997 he has received representations from companies with an interest in genetically modified foods and crops. [74223]

The Prime Minister: I refer the right hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for South Suffolk (Mr. Yeo) on 23 February 1999, Official Report, column 232.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Smoking-related Illnesses

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much money was spent in each of the past five years to treat NHS patients in Northern Ireland for illnesses relating to cigarette smoking. [71538]

Mr. McFall: The information is not available in the form requested.

Information relating to the amount spent in each of the past five years to treat NHS patients in Northern Ireland for illnesses relating to cigarette smoking is not available centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Integrated Health and Social Services

Mr. Donaldson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what assessment she has made of the conclusion of the first report from the Health Committee of Session 1998–99 on the relationship between health and social services (HC74) in respect of the model of integrated health and social services operated by the Down Lisburn Trust; and what plans she has to encourage other trusts in Northern Ireland to adopt that model. [71324]

Mr. McFall [holding answer 16 February 1999]: In Northern Ireland health and social services have been provided within an integrated structure since 1972. Eleven of the existing 19 HSS Trusts provide health and social services on an integrated basis, some on a model similar to the Down Lisburn Trust. As part of the modernisation of the service, the Government are examining responses to their recent consultation paper on the structure of health and social services entitled "Fit for the Future". Decisions on future arrangements will be taken by the Northern Ireland Assembly.

Community Psychiatric Nurses

Sir Alastair Goodlad: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many community psychiatric nurses there were in Northern Ireland in each of the last three years. [73230]

Mr. McFall: The numbers of Community Psychiatric Nurses employed in the Northern Ireland Health and personal Social Services, at 30 September in each of the last three years are as follows:

1997: 180

Schizophrenia

Sir Alastair Goodlad: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people discharged from hospital in Northern Ireland following a main diagnosis of schizophrenia psychoses and subsequently taken to hospital by the police under the Mental Health Acts were refused admission in the last year for which figures are available. [73237]

Mr. McFall: This information is not available centrally.

Non-fossil Fuel

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what plans she has to encourage non-fossil fuel energy production in Northern Ireland. [72915]

Mr. Ingram: Northern Ireland is participating in the current national policy review of new and renewable technologies, which includes an examination of what would be necessary and practicable to achieve 10 per cent. of the UK's electricity needs from renewables by the year 2010 and what contribution renewables could make to reducing greenhouse gas emissions. The Department of Trade and Industry plans to issue a consultation paper on the review shortly. Northern Ireland Orders have already been made for 32mw of contracted renewable capacity and consideration will be given to a further Non-Fossil Fuel Obligation competition in Northern Ireland on completion of the review. In addition, the EU supported Energy Demonstration Scheme and INTERREG Programme, continue to offer financial assistance to the developers of new and renewable energy projects.

Unemployment

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many (a) 16 to 17 year olds and (b) 18 to 24 year olds in Northern Ireland are unemployed according to the International Labour Organisation definition. [72914]

Mr. Ingram: The latest figures available relate to Autumn 1998 (September-November) when, according to the International Labour Organisation definition, the number of 16 to 17 year olds unemployed was 2,400 and the number of 18 to 24 year olds unemployed was 16,000.

Tourism

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what was the annual revenue from tourism in Northern Ireland in each of the past five years. [72923]

Mr. Ingram: Overall revenue from visitor tourism has grown over the past 5 years. Whilst the record visitor performance recorded in 1995 has not yet been realised, the industry continues to perform above pre-ceasefire levels.

Annual Revenue from tourism in Northern Ireland in each of last 5 years

[1] Forecast

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what estimate she has made of the projected annual revenue from tourism in Northern Ireland in each of the next three years. [72922]

Mr. Ingram: The Northern Ireland Tourist board has set challenging targets for tourism revenue for 2001, as highlighted in its Corporate Plan 1998–2001. Their realisation will be predicated on a peaceful environment. These targets aim for increases in discretionary visitors with a higher spend per capita to be realised through more targeted marketing and effective industry partnerships.

Targets—tourism revenue

| | 1999 | 2000 | 2001 |
|---|---|---|---|
| Visitor | 239 | 269 | 315 |
| Domestic | 63 | 65 | 67 |
| Total | 302 | 334 | 382 |

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what plans she has for grant aid to promote the tourism industry in Northern Ireland. [72944]

Mr. Ingram: In 1999–2000 the Government have made available £3.8 million for the promotion and marketing of Northern Ireland and a further £4.7 million to assist the development of tourism infrastructure. In May 1988, the Chancellor launched a £4 million Tourism Capital Challenge Fund competition specifically aimed at improving competitiveness in the tourism industry.

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what plans she has to assist local authorities in Northern Ireland to establish and maintain tourism offices. [72921]

Mr. Ingram: The Northern Ireland Tourist Board co-ordinates a network of local authority Tourist Information Centres (TICs) throughout Northern Ireland. It is also currently working with the local authorities to establish a second tier of local information office. Many of the TICs received capital grant, and any additional centres may also be eligible for assistance.

Electronic Commerce

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what plans she has to encourage the use of electronic commerce to promote the international expansion of Northern Ireland businesses. [72911]

Mr. Ingram: In addition to existing arrangements to promote the benefits of electronic commerce by raising business awareness and by providing advice to companies, work is underway to develop a coherent strategy to establish Northern Ireland as a centre for electronic commerce.

Internet and E-mail

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what plans she has to encourage her Department to utilise the Internet and e-mail to reduce waste and the use of paper. [72910]

Mr. Paul Murphy: Northern Ireland Departments are fully committed to achieving the Prime Minister's target that by 2002, 25 per cent. of government services should be available electronically. This will involve the use of the widest range of modern technologies including e-mail and the internet to improve the quality and efficiency of government services to its customers. The Northern Ireland Departments will be reporting progress against plans in this area, in line with the reporting structures implemented by the Cabinet Office.

In addition to this, the Northern Ireland Departments are again fully committed to achieving the target of 90 per cent. of purchases being handled electronically by the Year 2000, which will make the interface with suppliers more efficient and reduce paperwork. The Northern Ireland Government Purchasing Agency is a the forefront of implementing systems to achieve this target having recently won an Invest to Save Award to develop its electronic ordering services.

Waste Incinerators

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many waste incinerators are planned to be constructed in Northern Ireland in the next five years; and where they will be located. [72916]

Mr. Paul Murphy: Responsibility for the subject in question has been delegated to the Planning Service under its Chief Executive, Mr. T. W. Stewart. I have asked him to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from T. W. Stewart to Mr. Malcolm Moss, dated 1 March 1999:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your recent Question about the number of waste incinerators to be constructed in Northern Ireland during the next 5 years.

I can confirm that the Department is currently processing 2 planning applications for waste incinerators in Northern Ireland. One of the applications is from NIGEN Plc at McCaughey Road, Belfast, within the Belfast Harbour Estate. The other is from Belfast Waste Services within the Duncrue Industrial Estate, Belfast. The Planning Service is not aware of any other proposals for waste incineration during the next 5 years.

I do hope you find this information helpful.

Waste Disposal

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what percentage of (a) domestic and (b) commercial waste was dealt with in Northern Ireland by (1) recycling and (2) landfill in 1998 and each of the preceding five years. [72917]

Mr. Paul Murphy: Responsibility for the subject in question has been delegated to the Environment and Heritage Service under its Chief Executive, Mr. Robert C. Martin. I have asked him to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from Robert C. Martin to Mr. Malcolm Moss, dated 1 March 1999:

As Chief Executive of Environment and Heritage Service I am responsible for the operational aspects of waste management. Therefore I am replying to your question about the percentage of domestic and commercial waste in Northern Ireland which was dealt with by recycling and landfill each year between 1993 and 1998.

Unfortunately, it is not possible to provide the details requested because records are not currently held centrally about the amount of waste generated or what happens to it. The Pollution Control and Local Government (NI) Order 1978, requires individual District Councils to maintain such details only in connection with the preparation and revision of their own statutory Waste Disposal Plans.

However, the position will change as the 1978 Order is superseded by the Waste and Contaminated Land (NI) Order 1997. This Order is being brought into operation through a series of Commencement Orders, three of which have been made since August 1998. Two requirements of the Order are that the Department prepares a waste strategy for Northern Ireland as soon as possible, and that District Councils prepare and agree with the Department, waste management plans which take account of the strategy.

To this end the Department produced a draft Waste Management Strategy which was issued for public consultation between June and December 1998. We expect that, subject to consideration by the Assembly, the statutory Strategy will be finalised later this year. It will include targets for waste minimisation, recovery and recycling.

However, for these targets to be effective and realistic, it will be necessary to establish a baseline on how much waste is currently produced, its composition and what happens to it. Therefore, the Department has recently awarded a contract for the completion of a detailed study of Waste Arisings in Northern Ireland. This will provide comprehensive data on the various waste streams by sector, composition and volume. In conjunction with this, the Department will shortly let a further contract for a Waste Characterisation study which will involve the actual sampling of waste collected. The results of these two studies will inform District Councils' development of their Plans and will be available for public information.

I trust this reply is helpful.

Punishment Beatings

Mr. William Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (1) if she will list for the week ended Saturday 20 February the number of violent incidents involving paramilitary groups which took place in Northern Ireland indicating how many involved (i) Loyalist and (ii) Republican groups; [73010]

(2) if she will list for the week ended Saturday 20 February the number of (a) punishment beatings and (b) punishment shootings which took place in Northern Ireland indicating how many in each category were committed by (i) Loyalist and (ii) Republican groups. [73011]

Mr. Ingram: The number of security incidents during the period 14 February-20 February are as shown:

| Incident | Number |
|---|---|
| Shootings | Nil |
| Bombings | Nil |

The number of casualties as a result of paramilitary-style attacks during the period are as follows:

| | Loyalist | Republican |
|---|---|---|
| Assaults | 1 | 1 |
| Shootings | Nil | Nil |
| Total | 1 | 1 |

Note:

Figures may be subject to a minor amendment in the light of further information becoming available

DEFENCE

Executive Agencies

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on what date the (a) Defence Transport and Movements Executive and (b) Defence Postal and Courier Service Agency published their reports for the 1997–98; and what was the cost of production of the reports. [72953]

Mr. Spellar: This is a matter for the Chief Executives of the Agencies concerned. I have asked them to write to the hon. Member.

Letter from R. E. Ratazzi to Mr. Mike Hancock, dated 2 March 1999:

I am replying to your Question to the Secretary of State for Defence about my Agency's Report for 1997–98 and the cost of its production, as this falls within my area of responsibility as Chief Executive of the Defence Transport and Movements Executive (DTMX).

DTMX's Annual Report and Accounts for 1997–98 was laid before the House on 28 January 1999. The document was allocated number 181 by the Journals Office. The document was a textually accurate final proof of the Annual Report and Accounts. The final document has yet to be printed and we are awaiting a response from The Stationery Office Ltd. regarding the cost.

Letter from B. J. Cash to Mr. Mike Hancock, dated 2 March 1999:

I am replying to your Question to the Secretary of State for Defence about what date the Defence Postal and Courier Services Agency published their Report for 1997–98 and the cost of production, as this matter falls within my area of responsibility as Chief Executive of the Defence Postal and Courier Services Agency.

The Defence Postal and Courier Services Agency published its Annual Report for 1997–98 on the 14th July 1998.

The cost for external printing of the Report was £8,146.45. All production work was carried out by Agency internal resources.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many people are currently employed by the Defence Intelligence and Security Centre; and what the figure was at the time of its establishment. [72793]

Mr. Spellar: This is a matter for the Chief Executive of the Defence Intelligence and Security Centre. I have asked the Chief Executive to write to the hon. Member.

Letter from C. G. Holtom to Mr. Mike Hancock, dated 2 March 1999:

I am replying to your Question to the Secretary of State for Defence about staff numbers at the Defence Intelligence and Security Centre as this matter falls within my area of responsibility as the Chief Executive of the Agency.

There are current 408 staff working at the Defence Intelligence and Security Centre. At the time of establishment (1 October 1996) there was only a small implementation team based at Chicksands. The first record of numbers for the Agency relates to 1 April 1997 when the total numbers employed were 386.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many people are currently employed by the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency; and what the figure was at its inception. [72796]

Mr. Spellar: This is a matter for the Chief Executive of the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency. I have asked the Chief Executive to write to the hon. Member.

Letter from John Chisholm to Mr. Mike Hancock, dated 2 March 1999:

I am replying to your parliamentary question about numbers of people employed by the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency (DERA) at its inception and currently.

On 1 April 1995, the inception of DERA, the number of staff employed was in the order of 12100. The comparable figure, for 1 February 1999, in some 11600. These figures are for civilian staff only. You should also note that on 1 April 1997 the support services of DERA were privatised with the transfer of around 1250 people to the private sector.

I hope the above answers your question.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many people are currently employed by the Disposal Sales Agency; and what was the figure at its inception. [72988]

Mr. Spellar: This is a matter for the Chief Executive of the Disposal Sales Agency. I have asked the Chief Executive to write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Malcolm Westgate to Mr. Mike Hancock, dated 2 March 1999:

I am replying to your question to the Secretary of State for Defence about the number of people currently employed by the Disposal Sales Agency (DSA) as this matter falls within my area of responsibility as Chief Executive of the DSA.

The DSA currently employs 82 people. At its launch on 1 October 1994 the Agency employed 101 members of staff.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on what date the Defence Bills Agency published its report for the year 1997–98; and what was the cost of production of the report. [72980]

Mr. Spellar [holding answer 1 March 1999]: This is a matter for the Chief Executive of the Defence Bills Agency. I have asked the Chief Executive to write to the hon. Member.

Letter from I. S. Elrick to Mr. Mike Hancock, dated 2 March 1999:

I am replying to your question to the Secretary of State for Defence about the Defence Bills Agency's Annual Report for year 1997–98, as this matter falls within my area of responsibility as Chief Executive of the Defence Bills Agency.

The Defence Bills Agency's Annual Report and Accounts for 1997–98 was published on 7 July 1998 and the cost of production was £20,212.00.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many people are currently employed by the Logistics Information Systems Agency; and what the figure was at its inception. [72765]

Mr. Spellar: This is a matter for the Chief Executive of the Logistics Information Systems Agency. I have asked the Chief Executive to write to the hon. Member.

Letter from P. A. Flanagan to Mr. Mike Hancock, dated 2 March 1999:

I am replying to your question to the Secretary of State for Defence about how many people are currently employed by the Logistic Information Systems Agency; and what the figure was at its inception.

The Logistic Information Systems Agency was formed on 1 April 1995. At that time, the strength of the Agency was 397. The strength of the Agency on 23 February 1999 was 235.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on what date the Duke of York's Royal Military School published its report for 1998–99; and what was the cost of production of the report. [72854]

Mr. Spellar: This is a matter for the Chief Executive of the Duke of York's Royal Military School. I have asked the Chief Executive to write to the hon. Member.

Letter from G. H. Wilson to Mr. Mike Hancock, dated 2 March 1999:

I am replying to your Question to the Secretary of State for Defence about this Agency's report for 1998–99, as this matter falls within my area of responsibility as Chief Executive of the Duke of York's Royal Military School.

The report for 1998–99 has not yet been prepared and the cost of production is not therefore available. The report for 1997–1998 however was published on 16 July 1998 and cost £1,177.25.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on what date the Joint Air Reconnaissance Intelligence Centre published its report for 1997–98; and what was the cost of production of the report. [72987]

Mr. Spellar: This is a matter for the Chief Executive of the Joint Air Reconnaissance Intelligence Centre. I have asked the Chief Executive to write to the hon. Member.

Letter from S. J. Lloyd to Mr. Mike Hancock, dated 2 March 1999:

I am replying to your Question to the Secretary of State for Defence about the publication and cost of the Agency's annual report as this falls within my area of responsibility as Chief Executive of the Joint Air Reconnaissance Intelligence Centre Defence Agency.

The Annual Report for 1997/98 is currently with the printers with an expected publication date of the end of March 1999. The anticipated cost of production is £15000.

I hope that you will find that this answer gives you the information that you are seeking.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many people are currently employed by the Defence Transport and Movements Executive; and what was the figure at its inception. [72948]

Mr. Spellar: This is a matter for the Chief Executive of the Defence Transport Movements Executive. I have asked the Chief Executive to write to the hon. Member.

Letter from R. E. Ratazzi to Mr. Mike Hancock, dated 2 March 1999:

I am replying to your Question to the Secretary of State for Defence about current staffing levels in my Agency and at its inception, as this falls within my area of responsibility as Chief Executive of the Defence Transport and Movements Executive (DTMX).

When it first formed as a Defence Agency in April 1995, DTMX employed 78 Servicemen/women and 147 Civil Servants; a total of 225 persons. The strength for the financial year ending 31 March 99 is 78 Servicemen/women and 103 Civil Servants; a total of 181 persons.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many people are currently employed by the Defence Clothing and Textiles Agency; and what was the figure at the time of its establishment. [72840]

Mr. Spellar [holding answer 1 March 1999]: This is a matter for the Chief Executive of the Defence Clothing and Textiles Agency. I have asked the Chief Executive to write to the hon. Member.

Letter from M. J. Roycroft to Mr. Mike Hancock, dated 2 March 1999:

I am replying to your Question to the Secretary of State about the number of people employed by the Defence Clothing and Textiles Agency as this matter falls within my area of responsibility as Chief Executive of the Defence Clothing and Textiles Agency.

Currently there are 547 people (501 Civilians and 23 Military) employed by the Defence Clothing and Textiles Agency; at the time of its establishment the figure was 522 (503 Civilians and 19 Military). Since formation the Agency has had a significant increase in the range of commodities within its responsibility, including Defence Accommodation Stores and Engineer Stores.

Strategic Defence Review (New Brigades)

Mr. Borrow: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence where units of the two new brigades announced in the Strategic Defence Review, and other units returned from Germany, are to be based. [74619]

Mr. Doug Henderson: The two brigades to be formed under the Strategic Defence Review are:

12 Mechanised Brigade, to be created by converting 5 Airborne Brigade at Aldershot; and the development of 24 Airmobile Brigade, based at Colchester, into a new high capability air manoeuvre formation—16 Air Assault Brigade.

The Headquarters of 12 Mechanised Brigade will be at Aldershot, and that of 16 Air Assault Brigade in Colchester. I have today placed in the House of Commons Library details of provisional plans under which units of the new mechanised brigade would be based in Aldershot in Hampshire, Tidworth and Larkhill Garrisons in Wiltshire, Bovington in Dorset, Abingdon in Oxfordshire and Windsor in Berkshire, and units of 16 Air Assault Brigade would be located in Colchester in Essex, Woodbridge and Wattisham in Suffolk, Dishforth in Yorkshire, and Canterbury in Kent. These proposals will now be the subject of discussions with local authorities and assessments of environmental impact and value for money.

If confirmed, the changes would be phased over a number of years, as progress with the necessary barracks refurbishment projects proceeds; but we plan that the move of two parachute battalions from Aldershot to Colchester, where they will be closer to their parent formation, 16 Air Assault Brigade, will take place next year, as will the corresponding move of two infantry battalions to Aldershot from Colchester to form part of the new 12 Mechanised Infantry Brigade.

MOD Police (Jurisdiction)

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the jurisdiction of the Ministry of Defence Police Agency officers over civilians not employed by his Department. [73088]

Mr. Spellar: In a variety of circumstances, constabulary powers may be conferred on MOD police officers in relation to civilians not employed by the MOD.

Under the Ministry of Defence Police Act 1987, MOD police officers have the powers and privileges of constables:

(a) on defence land and property;

(b) on land and property used by ordnance companies and dockyard contractors for naval, military or air force purposes;

(c) on land in the vicinity of defence land and land used by ordnance companies and dockyard contractors provided a police constable of the local force has asked for assistance in the execution of his duties on that land;

(d) on land in respect of which the Secretary of State has agreed to provide the services of the Ministry of Defence Police under an agreement notice published in the London, Edinburgh or Belfast Gazette; and

(e) in any place—

(i) in relation to Crown property;

(ii) in relation to persons subject to the control of the Defence Council or employed under or for the purposes of the MOD or the Defence Council; and

(iii) in relation to matters connected with anything done under a contract entered into by the Secretary of State for Defence for the purposes of the MOD or the Defence Council.

General Service Medal

Mr. Bennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list (a) campaigns since 1969 for which General Service medals have been issued and (b) campaigns since 1969 where requests for the issue of General Service medals were refused (i) by the Medals Committee and (ii) by his Department; and if he will give the number of casualties in each of the campaigns listed in answer to (b). [73543]

Mr. Spellar: Since the beginning of 1969 the General Service Medal 1962 has been issued with the following clasps:

Northern Ireland

Dhofar

Lebanon

Mine Clearance—Gulf of Suez

Gulf

Kuwait

Northern Iraq and Southern Turkey

Air Operations Iraq.

I am not aware of any campaign since 1969 which has not been recognised by either one of these clasps or one of the other campaign medals available to British Service personnel such as the South Atlantic Medal, the Gulf Medal and medals issued by the United Nations, Western European Union and NATO.

Mr. Bennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many representations he has received since June 1997 about awarding a General Service Medal to those who served in the Suez Canal Zone from 8 October 1951 to 19 October 1954. [73542]

Mr. Spellar: Since June 1997, the Ministry of Defence has received four Parliamentary Questions on the subject of a medal for service in the Suez Canal Zone between 1951 and 1954, including this one and another tabled by my hon. Friend for answer today. We have also responded to 30 Parliamentary Inquiries from MPs and 256 letters from at least 239 members of the public have been actioned. This latter correspondence includes letters addressed to The Queen, the Prime Minister, the Secretary of State for Defence and other Defence Ministers as well as direct approaches to officials in those branches dealing with campaign medals. In addition, I was handed a petition containing some 20,000 names in support of a medal for service in the Suez Canal Zone during the early 1950s at a meeting in March 1998, where the case for a medal was discussed in detail.

Mr. Bennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many people have applied for General Service Medal Africa (1902–56) in the last five years; and if service in the Suez Canal Zone counts for entitlement to that medal. [73541]

Mr. Spellar: In the last five years 268 requests for the Africa General Service Medal 1902–56 have been received by my Department. Of these applications, 95 were successful and medals with the appropriate clasp(s) issued.

Service in the Suez Canal Zone during the qualifying period of the Africa General Service Medal 1902–56 does not count for entitlement to that medal. The medal is not issued alone, but with the appropriate clasp, which recognises specific periods of service in areas laid down in the appropriate Command Paper. No clasp to the Africa General Service Medal 1902–56 was instituted for service north of the Sahara.

Meteor Missile

Mr. Menzies Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make it his policy to conclude a draft agreement with other European countries to develop the Meteor missile. [72754]

Mr. Spellar [holding answer 25 February 1999]: Technical and commercial assessment of the bids to meet the MOD's requirement for a Beyond Visual Range Air-to-Air Missile, BVRAAM, continues. The Matra BAe Dynamics Meteor missile bid is in competition with Raytheon Systems Ltd. FMRAAM and ERAAM proposals to meet the BVRAAM requirement. A decision on the competition is expected later this year.

Discussions are continuing with potential partner nations, Germany, Italy, Spain and Sweden, on a Memorandum of Understanding for collaboration on the METEOR proposal provided by Matra BAe Dynamics. Progress is being made and it is hoped that the MOU negotiations will be concluded by the summer. If the METEOR bid is successful, it is expected that the agreed MOU would be signed shortly after a decision on the competition is announced.

Defence Vetting Agency

Mr. Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what criteria he used to choose between the relocation of the Defence Vetting Agency to Hartham or York; and if an investment appraisal was undertaken to assess savings from co-location of the Second Division and the Defence Vetting Agency. [72967]

Mr. Doug Henderson [holding answer 25 February 1999]: An investment appraisal into a number of collocation options demonstrated that collocation of the Defence Vetting Agency (DVA) from its existing four locations on to a single site would represent value for money. Subsequent studies showed that there was little, in financial terms, to choose between Hartham and York, as a location for the DVA.

Meanwhile, it became apparent that the Defence Communications Services Agency (DCSA) needed additional office accommodation near its headquarters at Corsham, and the Hartham site would meet this requirement. I therefore decided to accept collocation of the DVA at York as being in the best interests of my Department overall, as well as meeting the needs of the DVA.

The above was set out in a consultative document, which was put to the Trade Unions on 9 November 1998 and a copy will be placed in the Library of the House.

No investment appraisal was made of the impact of collocating the DVA alongside HQ 2 Division or indeed any other particular Defence organisation.

Departmental Staff

Mr. Chaytor: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what steps he has taken to relocate staff in (a) his Department and (b) the agencies for which he is responsible to the regions of the United Kingdom with the highest levels of unemployment; and what plans he has further to decentralise the location of his Department and its agencies. [70468]

Mr. Spellar [holding answer 15 February 1999]: When considering sites for relocation of MOD and agency establishments, the Department's primary concerns are operational requirements and efficiency. Other considerations include local employment levels, geographic location and environmental impact.

Currently, the MOD has sites UK-wide. As a result of the Strategic Defence Review, decisions are being made to relocate or collocate a wide range of MOD functions in order to make the Department more efficient. This process is ongoing.

Gaul (Sinking)

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what evidence is held by his Department on the sinking of the trawler 'Gaul' which is not already in the public domain; and if he will make a statement. [72941]

Mr. Spellar: There has been an extensive search of our records and I am satisfied that my Department does not hold any evidence on the sinking of the trawler 'Gaul'.

Birth Certificates

Mr. Cann: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list those purposes for which his Department and its executive agencies require a birth certificate to be furnished by (a) employees, (b) contractors, (c) those applying for (i) employment and (ii) contracts and (d) other persons. [73471]

Mr. Spellar: The Ministry of Defence may request birth certificates from prospective employees, both service and civilian, and individuals undertaking work for the Department, to establish proof of identity. However, other official documents, such as a full 10 year passport, may be furnished as proof of identity and are normally acceptable.

Defence Animal Centre

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he will set targets for the Defence Animal Centre for 1999–2000. [72815]

Mr. Spellar [holding answer 25 February 1999]: With effect from 1 April 1999 the DAC will no longer be an Agency in its own right and will become part of the Army Training and Recruitment Agency (ATRA). The targets set for the DAC will therefore be incorporated within the ATRA targets.

Bullying

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many (a) RAF and (b) Royal Navy personnel have been dismissed for bullying, or related offences, in each of the last five years; [73788]

(2) how many Royal Marine personnel have been dismissed for bullying, or related offences, in each of the last five years. [74263]

Mr. Doug Henderson: I will write to the hon. Member and a copy of my letter will be placed in the Library of the House.

Royal Ordnance

Mr. Maples: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what is his assessment of the risk to UK armed forces' safety and capability of having no UK-based manufacturer of ammunition and rocket propellant after closure of the Royal Ordnance Factory at Bishopton. [73391]

Mr. Spellar [holding answer 26 February 1999]: All explosive products require Ordnance Board qualification before they can be considered safe and suitable for use by the Armed Forces. We do not foresee any difficulty in obtaining Ordnance Board qualification for products using propellant sourced from friendly and reliable countries in Europe and further afield. Military capability is a question not of where the product comes from, but of the adequacy of supply arrangements. The Government ensure that satisfactory security supply arrangements are in place for the procurement of all key equipments and their components.

Mr. Edwards: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement about progress towards a best supplier agreement between his Department and Royal Ordnance. [73648]

Mr. Spellar [holding answer 26 February 1999]: Under the Smart Procurement Initiative developed as part of the Strategic Defence Review, MOD is reviewing its relationships with all its suppliers to ensure that the relationship is of mutual benefit to each party. Where appropriate, this includes examining the potential for establishing preferred supplier arrangements. For British Aerospace, and Royal Ordnance in particular, we are looking into the ways by which Royal Ordnance could become the preferred MOD supplier for a number of types of ammunition, where the company has shown through competition, that it can offer a cost effective product.

Mr. Edwards: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement about the future of the Royal Ordnance Plant, Glascoed. [73546]

Mr. Spellar: The Royal Ordnance factory at Glascoed is a major recipient of work stemming from the award to Royal Ordnance in December 1998 of the £100 million large calibre training ammunition multi year buy. While the future of Glascoed is a matter for the company, the terms governing the sale of the Royal Ordnance Factories to British Aerospace require the Ministry of Defence to be informed of any intention by the company to relinquish any major asset.

Somchem/Denel

Mr. Maples: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assistance was given by the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency to Somchem/Denel in preparing its tender for the modular charge system contract recently awarded to them. [73390]

Mr. Spellar [holding answer 26 February 1999]: No assistance was given by the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency, DERA, to Somchem/Denel in preparing its tender for the Modular Charge System sub-contract. DERA's only role in this procurement was to work, under tasking form the MOD, to provide independent technical advice on the submissions from each company participating in the competition, which were provided through the prime contractor, and to organise the associated firing trials.

Mr. Maples: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence in calculating the savings to be achieved from awarding the modular charge system contract to Somchem/Denel what account he took of (a) possible qualification costs to be incurred in the future by other suppliers of propellants, (b) the cost of the loss of the Bishopton factory as a competitor for the supply of propellants, (c) the cost of extra stocks of propellant needed to offset the risks to supply associated with a foreign competitor and (d) the cost of any failure to supply by Denel. [73392]

Mr. Spellar [holding answer 26 February 1999]: The Somchem charge was a clear winner of the Modular Charge System sub-contract competition. The implications of this outcome were considered very carefully, including the cost of qualifying alternative sources of propellant, as necessary, should Royal Ordnance close the site at Bishopton. We are confident in the security of supply from Somchem, and do not consider that additional propellant stocks are required. The contracting arrangements will, as is normal for MOD contracts, protect our financial position in the event of any default by the contractor. There are sufficient alternative suppliers of propellant in friendly and reliable countries overseas to facilitate competition and we do not consider, therefore, that prices will necessarily rise in future if Bishopton closes.

Services Discipline

Mr. Stinchcombe: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what consultations he plans in relation to the review of services discipline and law announced in the Strategic Defence Review White Paper. [73775]

Mr. Spellar: In the Strategic Defence Review White Paper, we announced that we believed that there would be advantages to be gained from having a single tri-Service Act governing discipline in the Armed Forces.

Clearly, all three Services will be heavily involved in the project and there will be extensive consultation with them as work proceeds. Furthermore, as Service law frequently mirrors the civilian criminal law, it will be necessary to involve other Government departments with an interest in our proposals.

However, this project will be a substantial undertaking and it will be some time before the nature of the changes, and hence the scope for wider consultation, are determined.

Missiles

Mr. Page: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many (a) air launched and (b) cruise missiles have been procured from the USA in the past decade; and what missile purchases other than Rapier the USA has made from the UK in that period. [73559]

Mr. Spellar [holding answer 26 February 1999]: WE have procured 210 Advanced Medium Range Air to Air Missiles and 300 Sidewinder missiles from the USA over the past decade. In addition, we are currently procuring 65 TOMAHAWK cruise missiles from the US, the first of which we delivered this month. Information on purchases by the USA from the UK of missiles other than Rapier is still being collected. I shall write to the hon. Member when this information is available and a copy of my letter will be placed in the Library of the House.

Landmine Clearance

Mr. Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many serving members of Her Majesty's armed forces are qualified in landmine clearance; and what was the corresponding figure in 1994. [74206]

Mr. Spellar: There are presently 8,666 personnel trained as combat engineers in the army, 1,100 officers and 7,566 soldiers, of whom 413 are trained in explosive ordnance disposal, which encompasses landmine clearance. The information on these numbers for 1994 is not readily available and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. However, it is unlikely to differ significantly from the current figures.

Disposal Sales Agency

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he expects to set targets for the Disposal Sales Agency for the year 1999–2000. [72764]

Mr. Spellar: I aim to announce the key targets for the Disposal Sales Agency early in financial year 1999–2000.

Joint Air Reconnaissance Intelligence Centre

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which targets the Joint Air Reconnaissance Intelligence Centre did not meet in 1997–98; and what monitoring he has undertaken of those targets in 1998–99. [72766]

Mr. Spellar: The Joint Air Reconnaissance Intelligence Centre, JARIC, met all of its Key Targets in 1997–98.

The performance of JARIC is monitored by the Agency Owner's Advisory Board, which is chaired by JARIC's "Owner", the Director General Intelligence and Geographic Resources, DGIGR, and is made up of the Agency's major customers and its Non-Executive Director. The Chief Executive of JARIC formally reports his progress against Key Targets to the Owner's Board twice a year and also through the Owner's Quarterly Performance Reviews. The first Owner's Board to review the 1998–99 Key Targets met on 7 October 1998 and the second met on 24 February 1999. In his capacity as the Owner, DGIGR is acting on behalf of the Secretary of State.

Porton Down Research Volunteers

Mr. David Atkinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many former national servicemen who volunteered to be the subject of research at Porton Down have to date been awarded a war disablement pension; and if he will make a statement. [72906]

Mr. Bayley: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested is not available, and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Drugs-related Offences (Service Personnel)

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many RAF personnel have been dismissed for drugs-related offences in each of the last five years. [72938]

Mr. Spellar: It is not yet possible to provide confirmed figures for 1997 and 1998. However, figures for 1993–96 are as follows:

RAF personnel dismissed for drugs related offences following a sentence of dismissal from Service at Court Martial

| Year | Number |
| 1993 | 20 |
| 1994 | 8 |
| 1995 | 1 |
| 1996 | 1 |

Note:
Latest figures available

In addition to the above figures, the numbers of RAF personnel administratively discharged for drug related incidents, including following conviction by a civilian court, are:

| Year | Number |
|---|---|
| 1993 | 10 |
| 1994 | 22 |
| 1995 | 14 |
| 1996 | 15 |

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many (a) Army and (b) Royal Navy personnel have been dismissed for drugs related offences in each of the last five years. [73792]

Mr. Spellar: It is not yet possible to provide confirmed figures for 1997 and 1998. However, figures for those dismissed for drug related offences following a sentence of dismissal from Service at Court Martial, Summary Trial or Summary Proceedings, or a sentence of imprisonment from a civilian court for 1994–96 are as follows:

| Year | RN/RM | Army | Total |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1994 | 45 | 68 | 113 |
| 1995 | 31 | 38 | 69 |
| 1996 | [1]12 | 29 | 41 |
| 1997 | [2]— | [2]— | [2]— |
| 1998 | [2]— | [2]— | [2]— |

[1] The RM figures for this year may be subject to slight revision
[2] Not yet available
Note:
Latest figures available

In addition to these figures, the numbers of those administratively discharged for drug related incidents are:

| Year | RN/RM | Army | Total |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1994 | 0 | 136 | 136 |
| 1995 | 0 | 146 | 146 |
| 1996 | 1 | 121 | 122 |
| 1997 | 1 | 103 | 104 |
| 1998 | 1 | 119 | 120 |

In addition, further personnel have been administratively discharged under the compulsory drug testing (CDT) programmes operated by the RN/RM and the Army. These figures are:

| Year | RN/RM | Army | Total |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1995 | — | 106 | 106 |
| 1996 | — | 178 | 178 |
| 1997 | 12 | 426 | 438 |
| 1998 | 13 | 336 | 349 |

Note:
1. RN introduced CDT in April 1997
2. Army introduced CDT in December 1994

Weapons of Mass Destruction

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what representations he has made concerning the supply of weapons of mass destruction technology to (a) Egypt, (b) India, (c) Iran, (d) Iraq, (e) Libya, (f) Pakistan, (g) Sudan, (h) Syria and (i) North Korea by (1) Russia and (2) China. [72642]

Mr. George Robertson: The UK maintains a continuing dialogue with Russia and China concerning the risks posed by proliferation of technology associated with weapons of mass destruction. Contacts are maintained, at all levels, both bilaterally and multilaterally through relevant international forums.

Training Exercise (Brunei)

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the jungle training exercise in Brunei carried out between 1 April 1997 and 31 March 1998. [72790]

Mr. Spellar: These exercises provide necessary training for jungle warfare instructors and for some units who are required to be able to operate safely in a jungle environment as part of their operational role. I understand that these exercises, which are individually assessed by the Army authorities, are regarded as having satisfied the purposes for which they were mounted.

Nuclear Fuel

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what consultations he has had with (a) ministerial colleagues and (b) British Nuclear Fuels concerning the provision of military protection for consignments of plutonium Mox fuel transported by ship to Japan from Sellafield. [70660]

Mr. Spellar: Responsibility for the security of the MOX shipments rests with the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry, who carried out consultations in the normal way. In accordance with international obligations, the MOX fuel will be carried in armed transport ships under the protection of specially trained officers of the United Kingdom Atomic Energy Authority Constabulary, UKAEAC. British Nuclear Fuels works with all relevant Government authorities on security issues. In this instance, the Naval Recruiting and Training Agency provided training for UKAEAC under a commercial agreement.

Departmental Targets

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he will set targets for the (a) Defence Intelligence and Security Centre, (b) Defence Medical Training Organisation and (c) Defence Transport and Movements Executive for 1999–2000. [72778]

Mr. Spellar: We aim to announce to Parliament the performance targets from 1999–2000 for each of these three Agencies by the end of April 1999.

Recruitment (Fijian Nationals)

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Fijian nationals have been recruited into the United Kingdom armed forces in the last five years. [73013]

Mr. Spellar: In the five years to 1 January 1999, Fijian nationals have been recruited into the Army. All 17 were recruited in the 1998–99 financial year. No Fijian nationals have been recruited into the Royal Air Force during this same period. Information on the number of Fijian nationals recruited into the Naval Service is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Chiefs of Staff

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on what dates the chiefs of staff have met since 21 July 1998. [74256]

Mr. George Robertson: The Chiefs of Staff have met on the following occasions since 21 July 1998:

10 September 1998, 22 September 1998, 6 October 1998, 13 October 1998, 27 October 1998, 11 November 1998, 16 November 1998, 1 December 1998, 17 December 1998, 18 December 1998, 19 December 1998, 21 December 1998, 11 January 1999, 12 January 1999, 14 January 1999, 3 February 1999 and 23 February 1999.

Military Exercises

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what assessment he has made of infantry battalion exercises in Kenya carried out between 1 April 1997 and 31 March 1998; [72830]

(2) how many personnel were deployed on the three infantry battalion exercises in Kenya carried out between 1 April 1997 and 31 March 1998; [72829]

(3) what is his assessment of the value of the three infantry battalion exercises in Kenya carried out between 1 April 1997 and 31 March 1998. [72975]

Mr. Spellar [holding answer 1 March 1999]: 2,185 personnel from three units were deployed on the three infantry battalion exercises in Kenya carried out between 1 April 1997 and 31 March 1998.

These exercises were designed to enable these personnel to gain extensive and realistic training experience by practising their skills and conducting advanced arms training in a demanding environment, over extended lines of communication, and I understand that these objectives were achieved.

Cold Weather Exercise (Romania)

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many personnel were deployed on the mountain and cold weather exercise in Romania carried out between 1 April 1997 and 31 March 1998; [72849]

(2) what assessment he has made of the principal benefits of the mountain and cold weather exercise in Romania carried out between 1 April 1997 and 31 March 1998. [72982]

Mr. Spellar: A company of 100 personnel from 42 Commando conducted late autumn training in Romania during October 1997. I understand that some 60 Romanian personnel also participated in the exercise. This was the third annual deployment by the Royal Marines to Brasov in the Carpathian mountains. This exercise enabled the Royal Marines to continue to develop their mountain and cold weather operational capability, and also gave them an excellent opportunity to conduct environmental training outside the usual NATO training areas. A further significant benefit was to further the United Kingdom's bilateral defence relationship with Romania, which has developed significantly in recent years, through joint training and patrolling exercises with Romanian mountain troops.

Imphal Barracks, York

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what representations he has received on the future of Imphal Barracks, York; and if he will make a statement. [73085]

Mr. Doug Henderson: Since the announcement of the proposed collocation of the divisional headquarters in Craigiehall, Edinburgh, I have answered six Parliamentary Questions and received three letters from hon. Members on this issue, and two further letters from members of the public.

Roll-on Roll-off Ships

Miss Kirkbride: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how the procurement of the roll-on roll-off ships indicated in the Strategic Defence Review is progressing under the PFI-PPP; and when he expects the contract to be awarded. [74056]

Mr. Spellar: Four consortiums have been short-listed to meet MOD's Military Sealift requirement through the Private Finance Initiative procurement of roll-on roll-off ships. We intend that Invitations to Negotiate will be issued by the end of March. The preferred bidder will be chosen this Autumn and we plan to place the contract in mid 2000 after detailed negotiations.

Rosyth

Mrs. Ewing: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what discussions he has had with Babcock concerning the proposed removal of the nuclear submarines from the quayside berths at Rosyth to dry land storage; what assessment he has made of (a) the safety issues and (b) the requirement for additional facilities for the dry storage of reactor components at Rosyth; what estimate he has made of the amount of radiation leakage from the existing nuclear hulks at Rosyth; and if he will make a statement. [72892]

Mr. Spellar: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Defence on 4 March 1998, Official Report, column 626. The MOD is currently in discussion with a number of companies, including Babcock Rosyth Defence Ltd., as part of the investigation into options for the storage of decommissioned submarines. The results of the investigation, which are expected to be available by mid-1999, will address all relevant issues, including safety and any requirement for additional facilities for the dry storage of reactor compartments. The decommissioned submarines at Rosyth are regularly and independently monitored. Evidence to date shows that external radiation levels are well within permissible limits.

HEALTH

Nurses' Pay

14. Mr. Blizzard: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many nurses will benefit from an above-inflation pay rise in the current year. [72390]

Mr. Denham: A headcount shows that 418,000 nurses, midwives and health visitors in the Hospital and Community Health Service in England will benefit from a pay rise in April 1999 of at least 4.7 per cent., almost twice the inflation rate of 2.4 per cent. Half of nurses, midwives and health visitors will get 8 per cent. or more this year, including their increment.

Primary Care

15. Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what representations he has received about the introduction of primary care groups. [72391]

Mr. Denham: We have received many representations about the introduction of Primary Care Groups and I am pleased to note that, from April, we shall have 481 Primary Care Groups covering the whole of the population of England working to tackle health inequalities and deliver improvements in the quality and efficiency of patient services.

19. Sir Sydney Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what is his estimate of the annual cost of a primary care group. [72395]

Mr. Denham: The annual cost of a Primary Care Group will vary depending upon its population size, level of devolved responsibility and the organisational structure that they adopt.

32. Mr. Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what action he is taking to increase the accountability of primary care services to the communities they serve. [72408]

Mr. Denham: We are committed to making the governing arrangements of National Health Service organisations more representative of local communities. As part of this process, Primary Care Groups will have individuals on the Primary Care Group board who can effectively represent the local community and users' and carers. In addition, we issued guidance on the accountability and the involvement of users and the public as part of Health Service Circular 1998/139 "Developing Primary Care Groups", copies of which are available in the Library.

Waiting Lists

16. Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the total cost, since 2 May 1997, of reducing waiting lists to 1.06 million; when this target is likely to be met; and if he will make a statement. [72392]

Mr. Denham: This year we made an extra £417 million available for the National Health Service to support a range of actions to bring down NHS waiting lists and keep them down. We are making an extra £320 million available next year from the NHS Modernisation Fund, plus an extra £20 million capital specifically to support further sustainable reductions in the number of patients waiting for NHS treatment.

We are committed to reducing NHS waiting lists to 1.06 million within the lifetime of this Parliament, and thereby reducing waiting times. The first step in delivering this target will be a record reduction in waiting lists by April this year to below the 1.16 million we inherited.

21. Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on hospital and consultant waiting lists since 31 March 1997 for the Mid Essex hospital trust area. [72397]

Mr. Denham: I am taking a close interest in the waiting list position at Mid Essex Hospitals NHS Trust. I was pleased to note that waiting lists have begun to come down over recent months and the Trust is committed to achieving further reductions in 1999–2000.

29. Mr. Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what penalties will be levied against West Sussex health authority hospitals which fail to meet their targets for reduction in waiting lists by 31 March. [72405]

Mr. Denham: Any penalties levied against West Sussex Health Authority hospital trusts for failing to deliver their waiting list targets by the end of March 1999 would be matter for the health authority to discuss with individual trusts in the light of their overall performance in 1998–99.

31. Mr. Skinner: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on the latest NHS waiting figures. [72407]

Mr. Denham: The latest waiting list figures give the position at the end of January 1999 and show 153,250 fewer patients on waiting lists than at the end of April 1998. During December there was a slight increase in the total as the National Health Service quite rightly focused its attention on dealing with the large number of emergency cases but we remain on track to deliver our commitment to reduce the total to below the 1.16 million we inherited by April 1999.

Psychiatric Units (Segregation)

17. Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the advantages of men and women being segregated while in-patients in psychiatric units. [72393]

Mr. Hutton: No formal assessment has been carried out. However, we are well aware of the risks that can arise when men and women are cared for together and want to minimise these risks. That is why the achievement of safe facilities for the mentally ill which protect their privacy and dignity is one of our main objectives.

"National Framework for Older People"

18. Mr. Bill O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he intends to publish "National Framework for Older People"; and if he will make a statement. [72394]

Mr. Hutton: The process for the development of the National Service Framework for the Care of Older People is already under way. It is anticipated that emerging findings will be published in the autumn and that the National Service Framework will be published in April 2000.

Methicillin Resistant Staphylococcus

20. Mr. Rendel: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to make it compulsory for methicillin resistant staphylococcus aureus to be included on death certificates in cases where it is likely to have been a cause of death. [72396]

Ms Jowell: No. Doctors are required to complete the medical certificate of cause of death to the best of their knowledge. It is not always clear if Methicillin Resistant Staphylococcus Aureus has been a cause of death or contributed to it, but if the certifying doctor considers it was, this should be recorded on the certificate.

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps he is taking to assist hospitals to prevent incidents of MRSA. [73344]

Ms Jowell: The Department has a wide range of activity underway to improve the control of hospital infections including methicillin resistant staphylococcus aureus. Details are given in the section "Infection Control" in the Government response to "The House of Lords Select Committee on Science and Technology Report: Resistance to Antibiotics and Other Antimicrobial Agents CM4172", which was published on 17 December 1998, copies of which are available in the Library. A Health Service Circular will soon be issued asking the National Health Service to strengthen measures to prevent and control antibiotic resistant infections.

Long-term Care

22. Mr. Kirkwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps he proposes to take to improve the provision of long-term care; and if he will make a statement. [72398]

Mr. Hutton: The Government have set in hand a number of initiatives to improve the provision of long-term care—including those set out in the White Paper "Modernising Social Services"—and the Carers Strategy published on 8 February. The Royal Commission which we set up to look at long term care for older people published its report on 1 March. The Government are carefully considering its recommendations.

Women's Unit

23. Ms Beverley Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress has been made in developing the work of the women's unit. [72399]

Ms Jowell: We recently announced an important new programme of work for the Women's Unit. Priorities include integrating the women's perspective into policies, addressing the needs of teenage girls and examining women's incomes over their lifetime. Combined with a major new Listening to Women consultation exercise launched last week, these initiatives will help to ensure that government works better for women and therefore better for everyone.

Viagra

24. Sir Teddy Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the cost of Viagra prescriptions in the forthcoming financial year. [72400]

Mr. Denham: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Health announced on 21 January the start of a public consultation on substantive policy proposals about the treatment of impotence on the National Health Service. The cost of Viagra prescriptions in the forthcoming financial year will be affected by the implementation of any decision we make on our proposals following consultation. Those proposals, if implemented, would, we estimate, reflect the current level of annual expenditure on drug treatments for impotence (including Viagra), an estimated £10–12 million.

Fluoride

25. Mr. Crausby: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has for public consultation prior to introducing fluoride into the public water supply. [72401]

Ms Jowell: We consider that there should be more wide-ranging consultations than are required under current legislation. Details will be included in a policy statement on oral health and fluoridation in the Public Health White Paper which we plan to publish in the spring.

Malnutrition

26. Mr. Dalyell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what discussions he has had with the World Health Organisation relating to malnutrition. [72402]

Ms Jowell: The Department of Health has had no discussions with the World Health Organisation on the subject of malnutrition.

Carers

28. Mr. Borrow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what action he is taking to support and promote the work of carers. [72404]

Mr. Hutton: Our National Carers' Strategy, published on 8 February, describes a substantial new policy package to help carers. We have announced a new special grant, totalling £140 million over the next three years, to enable local authorities to provide a wider range of services to help carers to take a break from their caring responsibilities. We will also be bringing forward legislation, when Parliamentary time allows, to ensure that local authorities are able to address carers' wishes and needs more directly. Our strategy includes special measures to help young carers and increased help and support for the parents of disabled children. Copies of the strategy report are available in the Library.

NHS Pay Awards

30. Mrs. Virginia Bottomley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what discussions he has had with the chairman of the West Surrey health authority on the local funding of NHS pay awards. [72406]

Mr. Denham: None.

The Chief Executive of the National Health Service Executive wrote to all trust and health authority Chief Executives on 1 February 1999 setting out our response to the Pay Review Body reports, the funding of pay awards, plans for modernising the pay system and other steps being taken to improve recruitment and retention in nursing.

Detailed allocations to health authorities will be made shortly.

East Anglian Ambulance NHS Trust

33. Mrs. Brinton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement concerning the inquiry into the East Anglian Ambulance NHS trust. [72409]

Mr. Hutton: The report was published today and copies are available in the Library.

General Practitioner Shortages

34. Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what representations he has received about the shortage of GPs in Sunderland; and if he will make a statement. [72410]

Mr. Denham: Hon. Members have kept me informed about general practitioner recruitment and retention in Sunderland. The health authority has already undertaken a number of measures to support existing GPs and has successfully introduced a Career Start Scheme. We look forward to receiving the health authority's proposals for a Personal Medical Services Pilot aimed at improving recruitment.

West Pennine Health Authority

35. Mr. Woolas: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what representations he has received on the allocation of resources for 1999–2000 to the West Pennine Health Authority. [72411]

Mr. Denham: We are not aware of any recent representations about the resource allocations for 1999–2000 to the West Pennine Health Authority.

Teenage Pregnancies

36. Jacqui Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what actions his Department is taking to help in reducing the number of unwanted teenage pregnancies. [72412]

Ms Jowell: On 31 July, my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister asked the Social Exclusion Unit (SEU) to work with other Departments building on the work undertaken by this Department to develop an integrated strategy to cut rates of teenage parenthood, particularly under-age parenthood, towards the European average and to propose better solutions to combat the risk of social exclusion for vulnerable teenage parents and their children. The SEU has consulted widely to develop its recommendations. It will be reporting shortly.

A and E Facilities

Fiona Mactaggart: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will report on progress with modernising NHS accident and emergency facilities. [72381]

Mr. Hutton: I refer my hon. Friend to the oral answer my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State gave to the hon. Member for Kettering (Mr. Sawford) today, Official Report, column 865.

Blood Donations

Maria Eagle: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what reports he has received on the impact on the level of blood donations of the recent National Blood Service campaign to recruit more donors. [72403]

Mr. Hutton: The country's centrally held blood stocks have risen nearly threefold since the National Blood Authority's advertising campaign started on 5 January. Compared with January last year there has been an average increase of 3 per cent. in the number of donations collected daily, a 25 per cent. increase in new donors giving blood and an increase of almost 100 per cent. in new donors on the register.

Working Hours (NHS)

Mr. Breed: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what representations he has received concerning the working hours of (a) nurses and (b) other NHS staff. [72376]

Mr. Denham: Discussions have taken place with representatives of National Health Service staff about the best ways to implement the Working Time Regulations and agreements have been made in the General Whitley Council and with the British Medical Association. The Government believe these Regulations are important because they protect NHS staff from the risks of long hours, and therefore lead to better patient care.

Organ Removal

Mr. Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what guidelines his Department gives to hospitals and trusts about (a) the information to be given to, and (b) the permission to be secured from, relatives of patients who die in surgery, before the organs of the deceased are retained; [71089]

(2) if he will investigate the extent of the practice of hospitals and trusts of retaining the organs of patients who die in surgery; [71088]

(3) if he will review the legislation governing the retention of tissue or organs of patients who die in surgery; and if he will make a statement. [71090]

Mr. Hutton: Deaths which occur during an operation, or before recovery from anaesthetic, must be reported to the coroner, who may order a post mortem examination to establish the cause of death. Such examinations may require the removal of tissue or organs for further tests. Under the Coroners Rules 1984, it is for the coroner to determine how long the tissues or organs removed should be preserved.

Although the main organs will be returned to the body wherever possible before burial or cremation, in most cases the time necessary to perform the laboratory tests would cause long and unacceptable delay to the funeral. In these cases, and where tissue samples have been taken, the retained specimens will normally be disposed of separately when no longer required.

Departmental guidance has not been issued on these matters, nor are there plans to review the relevant legislation. However the Royal College of Pathologists is currently considering good practice guidelines in this area which will include all post mortem examinations, not just those ordered by the coroner. We will work with the College to ensure the guidelines give advice on how best to address these sensitive issues with bereaved relatives.

Dental Services

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what is the average annual cost of treatment per patient attending an NHS dentist. [72650]

Mr. Denham: The average cost of an adult course of treatment in England and Wales in the quarter ending December 1998 was £33.84.

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the number of dental patients in the last year for which figures are available who failed to received necessary treatment due to an inability to pay. [72651]

Mr. Denham: Help with paying charges is available through the National Health Service low income scheme for those who cannot afford to pay dental charges. In addition, anyone on income support, income based Job Seeker's Allowance, family credit or disability working allowance receives free dental treatment, as do all children.

Breast Cancer Screening

Mr. Stinchcombe: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which breast cancer screening centres that are conducting pilot studies into the impact of extending the routine call/recall element of the breast screening programme to women aged 65 to 69 years have collated preliminary results; and if he will make a statement. [72660]

Mr. Hutton: Preliminary results of the pilot study carried out in Brighton (one of three studies) were published in the British Medical Journal, Volume 317, page 388, dated 8 August 1998. Copies of the journal are available in the Library.

The National Screening Committee (NSC) has considered the case for extending the National Health Service breast screening programme to older women. The view of the NSC was that the first priority must be to ensure that all women are screened at three yearly intervals and to maintain the quality of the existing programme. The NSC acknowledged the promising nature of the interim results of the pilot studies for extending the programme to older women, but recommended that decisions on national implementation should await the final results from all three pilot schemes in A[illegible] 2000.

G. Davies

Mr. Keetch: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will investigate the circumstances of the admission to the Hereford NHS hospital of G. Davies of Hereford, on 17 August 1997; and if he will make a statement. [73380]

Mr. Hutton: Ministers cannot comment on the cases of individual patients due to the need to maintain patient confidentiality.

Improper Prescribing

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will list the doctors struck off in each of the last five years for improper prescribing of medicines and the medical school at which they qualified. [73310]

Mr. Denham: The information requested is not available centrally.

Arachnoiditis

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will institute a full public inquiry on the links between Myodil and arachnoiditis. [73948]

Mr. Hutton: We have no plans to hold an inquiry into the use of Myodil and its associated risk of arachnoiditis.

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will introduce a no-fault compensation scheme for those who have suffered from arachnoiditis as a result of medical treatment. [73947]

Mr. Hutton: We have no plans to introduce a non-fault compensation scheme for those who have suffered arachnoiditis as a result of medical treatment.

Asthma

Mr. Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will estimate the cost to the NHS of the medication for the treatment of asthma in (a) 1997 and (b) 1998. [73925]

Mr. Hutton: In 1997, the net ingredient cost of drugs used in the treatment of asthma and dispensed in the community in England was £466.2 million. Information for 1998 is not yet available. Some of the drugs may be used for other conditions and it is not possible to split the cost between drugs used to treat asthma and those used to treat other conditions. The net ingredient cost is the basic cost of a drug and does not take account of discounts, dispensing costs, fees or prescription charges income.

Pharmaceutical Companies (Payments to Doctors)

Mr. Austin: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what reports he has received regarding recent allegations that doctors have been paid money by a drugs company to encourage them to prescribe certain drugs; what action he has taken; and if he will make a statement. [73531]

Mr. Denham [holding answer 1 March 1999]: There have been no reports of United Kingdom doctors receiving payments from a pharmaceutical company to prescribe drugs. Regulations which came into force in 1994 prohibit the promise, offer or supply of gifts or other inducements to persons qualified to prescribe or supply medicines. It is also an offence for health professionals to solicit or accept such gifts. Guidelines on the promotion of medicines are contained also in the Association of the British Pharmaceutical Industry Code of Practice for the Pharmaceutical Industry, which is administered by the Prescription Medicines Code of Practice Authority, copies of which are available in the Library.

The Medicines Control Agency wrote to all pharmaceutical companies and professional bodies in 1997 reminding them of their legal obligations and our policy of not tolerating unlawful promotions which seek to exert improper influences on prescribers. The public have a right to expect that health care professionals will make decisions solely on the basis of their patients' interests and not on incentives to prescribe or supply certain medicines.

Allergies

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what training provided by his Department is currently available to NHS general practitioners on the possible causes of allergies and their treatment. [74293]

Ms Jowell: The medical education curriculum is a matter for the General Medical Council, medical schools, the relevant Medical Royal Colleges and, in the case of general practice, the Joint Committee on Postgraduate Training for General Practice. These bodies have a vested interest in ensuring that doctors are prepared for the conditions and circumstances they will encounter in hospitals and in general practice.

Each trainee general practitioner during their year of general practice training, their two year hospital rotation and during their pre-registration year, will almost certainly see patients with allergy related illnesses. Doctors are also encouraged to continue with their medical education after qualification and they would be expected to spend some time developing their knowledge of illnesses commonly encountered including allergic conditions.

In addition, there is a range of advice and guidance available to general practitioners and other health professionals on allergies. This includes advice on the management of anaphylaxis which the Department sent to all doctors in 1994 in Chief Medical Officer's Update No. 2.

Haemophilia Society

Sir Alastair Goodlad: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what projects he intends to promote with the Haemophilia Society; and if he will make a statement. [74246]

Mr. Hutton: We are currently funding the Haemophilia Society's Hepatitis C Youth Information and Support project. We have indicated that we are willing to assist the society in other forward looking initiatives, and officials are working with them on potential projects.

Psychiatric Consultant Posts

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many psychiatric consultant posts there are per head of the population in each health authority in the North West Region. [73760]

Mr. Hutton: The information requested is in the table.

Number of consultants in psychiatry specialty by health authorities in North West per region per 100,000 population at 30 September 1997

| Health authority | Numbers | Per 100,000 population |

| Wirral HA | 10 | 2.7 |

Mental Health Care

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what amounts were spent by (a) social services and (b) the NHS on providing mental health care through voluntary organisations and small independent service providers in the Warrington, North constituency for each of the past five years. [73762]

Mr. Hutton: Information is not available by constituency for social services or National Health Service expenditure for mental health provision in the voluntary and private sector. Information on social services expenditure is available only for the Warrington Social Services Department, from its institution in April 1998, and Cheshire Social Services Department for the four years 1995–96 to 1998–99, and this is given. The NHS information given is the expenditure by North Cheshire Health Authority on mental health provision in the voluntary and private sector for the whole of Warrington for the five years 1994–95 to 1998–99.

Social Services expenditure

|---|---|
| 1995–96 | 209,726 |
| 1996–97 | 273,502 |

| 1998–99 | 1,439,759 |

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much was spent per head of the population on mental health in (a) the Warrington, North constituency, (b) the North Cheshire Health Authority and (c) each other health authority in the North West Region in each of the past five years. [73761]

Mr. Hutton: This information requested is available only by health authority and not by constituency. Due to health authority boundary/population changes in the North West region consistent information is available only for the years 1997–98 and 1996–97 and this is given.

| Wigan and Bolton | 47.46 | 46.58 |
| Wirral | 42.59 | 34.72 |

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much was spent on each health authority in the North West Region on (a) in-patient psychiatric facilities, (b) mental health provision through voluntary organisations and small independent service providers and (c) other community mental health services for each of the past 10 years. [73759]

Mr. Hutton: The total mental health spend by health authority is attached and this includes expenditure on National Health Service community mental health services. Owing to health authority boundary/population changes in the North West region, consistent information is available only for the years 1997–98 and 1996–97.

Figures are not available for mental health provision through voluntary organisations and small independent service providers.

Health Authority Annual Accounts 1997–98 and 1996–97

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much money was spent on mental health services (a) nationally and (b) in Gloucestershire; and what is the average amount spent by (i) shire counties and (ii) all local authorities in each of the last three years. [73816]

Mr. Hutton: In 1997–98, the latest year for which information is available, £2,767 million was spent on the purchase of mental illness healthcare in England including £23.6 million by Gloucestershire Health Authority.

Total expenditure and the average spend on services for people with mental health needs by social services departments for the latest 3 years for which information is available, is set out in the table:

| Local authority | Gross expenditure (£000) | Average spend per local authority (£000) | Average spend per person aged 18 to 64 (£) |

Residential and Nursing Homes

Mr. Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will list those local authorities which no longer directly run (a) residential and (b) nursing homes. [74060]

Mr. Hutton: As at 31 March 1998, there were seven local authorities that did not directly run residential care homes for older people (including those who are mentally infirm). The authorities were Bromley, City of London, Knowsley, Somerset, Stockport, Tameside and Wandsworth. This information is taken from the Department of Health's statistical collection RA1998, Form A, Part 1. Data for 1999 will become available later this year.

Local authorities do not directly run nursing homes.

Gamma Knife Technology

Helen Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will take steps to ensure the continued availability of treatment through Gamma Knife technology in Sheffield. [72387]

Ms Jowell: Current expert advice is that the gamma knife has been overtaken by new linear accelerator technology (the linac scalpel), which can provide a greater range of treatments. Consequently, in January the NHS Executive agreed, with Sheffield Health Authority and the Central Sheffield University Hospitals NHS Trust, that a migration plan would be devised. This will enable the phasing in of the linear accelerator technology over a three year period whilst continuing the gamma knife service, achieving both continuity and modernisation as the linear accelerator technology comes on stream. The migration plans have been received and a business case will be considered shortly.

Meningitis

Mr. Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what guidance he has given to schools in respect of outbreaks of meningitis. [74234]

Ms Jowell: Local outbreaks of meningococcal meningitis and septicaemia are managed by local Consultants in Communicable Disease Control who, in conjunction with any outbreak control team, are responsible for providing advice and information to schools and to parents and for organising any local action in the event of a case of meningococcal disease. Guidance on handling outbreaks in schools was published in the Public Health Laboratory Service's Communicable Disease Report on 10 January 1997, copies of which are available in the Library.

The Department's public education programme provides reliable factual information for parents and young people on spotting meningococcal infection, including how to do the "glass test" to check rashes, through a Departmental leaflet entitled "Knowing about meningitis and septicaemia", available from general practitioners' surgeries. The Department also funds the Health Education Authority to produce public information about meningococcal disease, including a tailor-made leaflet for students called "Look out for your mate" (of which around 1 million copies were distributed through universities and colleges last year), the booklet "A Guide to Childhood Immunisations", which goes to parents of new born children, and a book "Birth to Five" given to new parents. In addition the Department collaborates with the two meningitis charities, the National Meningitis Trust and the Meningitis Research Foundation, to raise public and professional awareness.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Ministerial Visits

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development, pursuant to her answer of 15 February 1999, Official Report, columns 427–28, on ministerial visits, which hon. Members have been informed of a planned visit to their constituency by her in the last 12 months. [72224]

Clare Short [holding answer 23 February 1999]: The MPs, parties and constituencies covered in the cities visited by me and the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State are as follows:

| Name | City visited |
|---|---|
| Don Foster, Lib Dem | Bath |

As indicated previously, it is not possible for me to say which constituencies I and the Under-Secretary of State visited in the cities concerned.

Single Currency

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if she will list the subject areas within her Department's responsibilities which will be covered by the information campaign on Britain's membership of a single currency. [73673]

Clare Short: The Treasury will continue its dialogue with key external bodies to determine what information the public and business would need at each stage of the changeover process. Any information campaign would cover key concerns that the public and business may have. Chapter eight of the Treasury's Outline National Changeover Plan provides further information. Copies of the Plan are available in the House Library.

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what plans she has to issue information from her Department to help the public make an informed decision when they vote on the single currency. [73583]

Clare Short: Any plans by the Government to issue information during a referendum campaign on whether or not the UK should join the single currency would be made in light of the Government's response to the recommendations from the Neill Committee on the conduct of referendums. The Government will announce their conclusions on those recommendations when my right hon. Friend the Home Secretary publishes a White Paper and draft Bill before the summer recess.

Air Miles

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many Air Miles have been earned by her and each of her Ministers; and how she proposes to use them. [73328]

Clare Short: The Government's policy on the use and disposal of air miles was set out by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister on 12 January 1999, Official Report, column 141.

We do not keep a record of air miles earned by Ministers. We intend to ensure that they are either used for official purposes or donated to charity.

Aid Programmes (Sustainability)

Ms Abbott: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps she has taken to ensure that the objectives of sustainability and environmental sensitivity are incorporated in UK aid programmes. [74315]

Clare Short: Our approach to sustainable development and environmental protection is set out in the White Paper on International Development. In December we published DFID's policy statement on the environment—Eliminating world poverty: why the environment matters—which sets out in more detail our policies and procedures. Copies are in the Libraries of the House. We are about to publish supplementary guidance to our Manual of Environmental Appraisal and to provide training to staff, in order to strengthen good practice. The new guidance will be made publicly available.

Landmines

Mr. Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what controls have been exercised by her Department over the use of funds paid from the United Kingdom Government to European Union landmine clearance programmes; and for what those funds have been used. [74162]

Clare Short: UK's contributions to the European Commission are subject to reporting and audit requirements. In 1998, EC expenditure (combined DG1A, DG1B, DGVIII, ECHO) on mines action totalled some 50.7 million euros (approximately £36 million) for programmes in 11 countries, and for research and development, and contribution to ICRC's Mines Appeal. The share attributable to the UK was £5.4 million.

During the UK's Presidency of the European Union in the first half of 1998, we worked closely with member states to achieve more targeted discussions on European Union (EU) mine action within the EU Working Group on Disarmament and Security (CODUN); we urged greater transparency and accountability of European Commission (EC) activities and the implementation of the EU Joint Mine Action Programme.

My Department has in addition committed £200,000 towards European Union trials for a multi-sensor detection system. We monitor the project, which is on-going, through reports and technical meetings.

Mr. Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what proportion of her Department's budget designated for landmine clearance related activity was spent on (a) conferences, (b) transport costs for officials, (c) meetings between officials and (d) research and development in the last year for which information is available. [74217]

Clare Short: In 1998–99, we have contributed about (a) 1 per cent. to support civil society participation at international conferences central to the Ottawa process; (b) 0.2 per cent. for official travel to and participation in international conferences, technical discussions and project monitoring; (c) meetings between government officials are not funded from the humanitarian mine action budget; (d) research and development 9.3 per cent.

Mr. Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if she will make a statement on the current situation regarding her Department's funding for the MINELIFTA project. [74142]

Clare Short: My Department has not made a funding commitment to MINELIFTA. Up until now, it has not met our criteria for field testing. A new programme of resources dedicated to research and development of equipment for application in humanitarian mine clearance will be launched later this year. Full details of this scheme will be publicised shortly.

Mr. Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if she will list the non-military agencies currently being funded by her Department for landmine clearance operations; and where they are operating. [74385]

Clare Short: The agencies currently receiving funding for humanitarian mine clearance are:

The HALO Trust operating in Cambodia, Georgia, Mozambique;

Mines Advisory Group working in Cambodia, Northern Iraq, Laos;

Norwegian People's Aid in Bosnia;

United Nations Office for the Co-ordination of Humanitarian Assistance in Afghanistan, Bosnia is about to start;

United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees in Cambodia.

Mr. Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development when she expects to make available the further £5 million for landmine clearance-related work. [74161]

Clare Short: In October 1997 I announced that I would double my Department's bilateral annual expenditure on humanitarian mine action to £10 million by the financial year 2000–2001. Planned expenditure for 1998–99 is well over £6 million—a 27 per cent. increase on the previous financial year. I expect to meet the commitment I made.

Mr. Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what research and development work has been undertaken since May 1997 funded from her budget for landmine clearance. [74245]

Clare Short: From May 1997 to date, about £720,000 has been spent on assessment trials of prototypes and full field trials of equipment for anti-personnel mine detection and clearance, preliminary vegetation clearance and operator safety tests. In addition, my Department has contributed about £140,000 to studies to improve the effectiveness of activities managed by the United Nations.

Mr. Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what are her Department's targets for bringing about a reduction in the amount of civilian casualties from landmines overseas. [74386]

Clare Short: All the Department for International Development-funded projects work to the United Nations standard for humanitarian mine clearance which aims for a minimum 99.6 per cent. clearance on verification. This ensures that cleared land can be used with confidence by the beneficiaries. Mine awareness is normally included within projects to reduce risk to communities in areas where clearance has not been completed. We look for opportunities to use appropriate technology within our projects to increase clearance rates while achieving the high standards required for humanitarian mine clearance activities.

Tuvalu

Dr. Marek: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what training support her Department has given to Tuvalu in each of the last five years; and what plans she has to increase the amount. [73970]

Clare Short: Our bilateral development assistance to the Pacific is provided from a single regional programme (total spending will be around £3.75 million in the current financial year). In the particular case of Tuvalu, the view was taken following Independence in 1978 that we could best assist that country's development through the establishment of a Trust Fund to help meet both recurrent and capital expenditure. The Fund was established in 1987 with contributions of £3.2 million each from Britain, Australia and New Zealand. With prudent management, the Fund has since grown substantially in real terms, while providing a reliable source of funds for the Government of Tuvalu.

Tuvalu is also eligible for awards from a Pacific-wide allocation of the Department for International Development (DFID) and The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) funding for Chevening Scholarships. Three such awards have been made over the past five years. In addition, Tuvalu benefits from the support we give to regional institutions (such as the University of the South Pacific, the South Pacific Forum and the Pacific Community) and from our contributions to multilateral agencies (including notably the European Development Fund) active in the region.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

Ministerial Meetings (USA)

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many times Ministers in his Department have met their counterparts in the US Government since 1 June 1998; and if he will list the (a) dates, (b) locations, (c) Ministers involved and (d) names of the US counterparts at each meeting. [71983]

Mr. Tony Lloyd [holding answer 25 February 1999]: Foreign Office Ministers have frequent contact with members of the US Administration in the United States, in the UK and elsewhere overseas. Since 1 June 1998, the FCO Ministers listed have visited the United States and have had formal meetings with their approximate US counterparts as follows:

| Dates | Location | Minister | US counterpart |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1-3 July 1998 | Washington | Mr. Fatchett | Karl Inderfurth, Assistant Secretary for South asian AffairsJohnny Carson, Principal Deputy Assistant Secretary for African AffairsDennis Ross, Special Middle East Coordinator |
| 13 July 1998 | Washington | Baroness Symons | Ambassador Wendy Sherman, Under-Secretary for Global AffairsPeter Romero, Assistant Secretary for Inter-American AffairsJohn Hamilton, Deputy Assistant Secretary for Central America, Caribbean and Cuba |
| 22-25 February 1999 | Washington | Mr. Fatchett | Stanley Roth, Assistant Secretary for East Asian and Pacific AffairsKarl Inderfurth, Assistant Secretary for South Asian AffairsMartin Sheehan, Counter Terrorism CoordinatorTom Pickering, Under Secretary for Political AffairsDavid Welch, Assistant Secretary for International OrganisationsMartin Indyk, Assistant Secretary for Near Eastern AffairsDennis Ross, Special Middle East Coordinator |

The Secretary of State last visited Washington in January 1998. He has had numerous meetings, sometimes several times a month, with Madeleine Albright outside the United States, most recently in Rambouillet. He will next visit Washington in April 1999, for the NATO Summit.Unfortunately, the information the hon. Member requires on meetings which have taken place in the UK and third countries is not held centrally, and to obtain it would incur disproportionate costs.

Gibraltar

Mr. Gill: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has received regarding the verdict of the European Court of Human Rights on the United Kingdom's failure to make arrangements to enable Gibraltarians to vote at election to the European Parliament; and if he will make a statement. [73623]

Dr. Marek: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what action he proposes to take following the decision of the European Court of Human Rights on visiting rights for citizens of Gibraltar. [73409]

Ms Quin: Neither my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary nor I have yet received any formal representations regarding the Court's decision, but I am well aware of the strong interest it has generated, including in both Houses and in Gibraltar. We will be taking all available steps to secure an extension of the EP franchise to Gibraltar. We can do this only by amending the 1976 EC Act on Direct Elections. This will require the agreement of all EU member states. HMG will seek such an amendment in the current negotiations in Brussels on establishing Common Principles for EP elections.

Foreign Media Articles (Ministers)

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) if he will instruct his (a) desk officers and (b) relevant staff overseas to compile a list of those articles written by the Prime Minister which they have successfully placed in foreign media; and if he will place that list in the Library; [73606]

(2) if he will list those articles (a) he and (b) his Ministers have written for foreign publications since 1 May 1997; [73605]

(3) if he will make it his policy to record for future reference those articles his Department places in the foreign press provided by the Prime Minister's Office; [73604]

(4) if he will list those (a) ministers, (b) other parliamentarians and (c) non-parliamentarians who have written articles for which his Department has facilitated placement in the foreign press and foreign journals since 1 May 1997. [73602]

Mr. Fatchett: We do not maintain the records necessary to compile lists of this sort. To do so would not be a worthwhile use of resources.

India and Pakistan

Mr. Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the actions taken by his Department further to the testing of nuclear devices by (a) India and (b) Pakistan. [73979]

Mr. Tony Lloyd: As G8 and EU Presidency, the UK played a leading role in co-ordinating the international response to the Indian and Pakistani nuclear tests. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary hosted a meeting of colleagues from G8 and other countries, at which a senior officials Task Force was established. The Task Force met twice in 1998 under UK chairmanship. In contacts with India and Pakistan, we continue to urge both countries to adhere to international non-proliferation regimes, to take the steps called for by United Nations Secretary Council resolution 1172, and to make progress in their bilateral dialogue.

My Department has tightened procedures governing exports of dual-use goods to India and Pakistan, and discouraged contact between UK nuclear scientists and nuclear industry personnel and their Indian and Pakistani counterparts.

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with the Governments of (a) India and (b) Pakistan on religious freedom within those countries; and if he will make a statement. [73891]

Mr. Fatchett: I raised our concerns about the situation of religious minorities with the Indian Home Minister in November, as did the Foreign Secretary with the Indian National Security Adviser on 20 January in London. I raised our concerns about religious minorities in Pakistan with the Pakistani Minister of Law during my visit there in February.

Information Working Group (European Union)

Sir Richard Body: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will deposit in the Library a copy of the presentation made by the United Kingdom delegation to the seminar on information about the EU held in Brussels on 27 March 1998; and if he will make a statement on the role of the Information Working Group in respect of the conclusions of this seminar. [73770]

Ms Quin: The UK delegation made a presentation on the Internet and circulated a selection of frames from the FCO internet website http://www.fco.gov.uk. A copy of this has been deposited in the Library. The seminar was co-chaired by the UK Presidency and the Director-General of DGX of the Commission. The UK Presidency chairwoman was also chair of the Information Working Group. This Group discussed draft conclusions to follow-up the seminar. These were adopted by the General Affairs Council on 29 June 1998.

Congo

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received about the cost to Zimbabwe of the military expedition in the Democratic Republic of the Congo and about the sources of the finance for the operation. [73954]

Mr. Tony Lloyd: We are concerned about the impact on the Zimbabwe economy of its involvement in the DRC. Zimbabwe's defence budget is one of the highest in the region. The cost of sustaining the conflict could put the region's long-term development at risk. The Government of Zimbabwe has said that the Government of the Democratic Republic of the Congo is funding the direct costs of its intervention, and that the Government of Angola is providing logistics support.

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to the Zimbabwean Government about its decisions to send troops to the Democratic Republic of the Congo. [73956]

Mr. Tony Lloyd: I have twice raised this personally with President Mugabe, most recently when I visited Zimbabwe on 25 February. Other representations include letters from my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister to President Mugabe, and lobbying both here and in Harare. We have consistently urged the President to use his influence to bring about a negotiated peaceful settlement to the conflict.

Zimbabwe

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assistance he plans to give to the National Constitutional Assembly of Zimbabwe to encourage democracy in Zimbabwe. [73955]

Mr. Tony Lloyd: We have assisted organisations which are members of the National Constitutional Assembly (NCA) with civic education programmes to encourage democracy in Zimbabwe. At present we are not assisting the NCA itself, but are keeping the situation under review.

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to the Zimbabwean Government about the arrest and detention of the journalists Grace Kwinjeh, Farai Muncazi and Fernando Goncalves. [73953]

Mr. Tony Lloyd: I urged President Mugabe, at my meeting with him in Harare on 25 February, to uphold international human rights standards, including freedom of the press.

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he or his officials last met representatives of the National Constitutional Assembly of Zimbabwe. [73952]

Mr. Tony Lloyd: In the course of their normal duties, officials at the British High Commission in Harare have frequent contact with representatives of the National Constitutional Assembly, some of whom also represent other organisations such as the Zimbabwe Congress of Trades Unions and the Zimbabwe Council of Churches.

I met some of these individual organisations when I visited Zimbabwe in January 1998, and some of them called on officials in London last year. Officials visited Zimbabwe have also met representatives of these organisations.

North Atlantic Assembly

Mr. Colman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what changes have been made in the composition of the United Kingdom parliamentary delegation to the North Atlantic Assembly. [74392]

Mr. Tony Lloyd: The right hon. Member for South Shields (Dr. Clark) has replaced the hon. Member for City of York (Mr. Bayley) as a member of the delegation.

Colombia

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has held with representatives of the U.S. Government concerning their anti-drugs policies in Colombia. [73714]

Mr. Tony Lloyd: The UK maintains a wide-ranging dialogue on drugs policy with the US. I visited Bogota in September 1997 and October 1998, when I held discussions with the Colombian government on their own approach to the drugs problem.

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has held with the Government of Colombia concerning (a) human rights abuses and (b) internal migrations. [73716]

Mr. Tony Lloyd: I have raised the question of human rights, including internal displacement, several times with senior members of the Colombian Government, including President Pastrana and his predecessor, President Samper, both in London and during my two visits to Colombia. These discussions have covered, among other things, the activities of the paramilitaries (which are a major cause of internal migration), impunity, the safety of human rights workers and individual cases.

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has held with representatives of British companies operating in Colombia about (a) human rights and (b) environmental damage. [73715]

Mr. Tony Lloyd: I have discussed both human rights and environmental issues with BP.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

KPMG

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will list the services that KPMG have performed for his Department (a) since 1 May 1997 and (b) in the corresponding period prior to 1 May 1997, indicating the remuneration made in each case. [72013]

Mr. Byers [holding answer 22 February 1999]: Information on contracts let to KPMG is not held centrally, and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

The above information does not include contracts let by the Department's Executive Agencies, and I have asked the respective Chief Executives to reply separately to this question.

Letter from Desmond Flynn to Mr. David Ruffley, dated 26 February 1999:

You asked the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he would list the services that KPMG have performed for his Department (a) since 1 May 1997 and (b) in the corresponding period to 1 May 1997, indicating the remuneration made in each case. In the absence of Peter Joyce, the Chief Executive, I have been asked to reply on behalf of The Insolvency Service.

KPMG, as an organisation, have not performed any services for The Insolvency Service in the periods in question. Payments have however been made to KPMG in relation to work done by individual members of the firm in relation to disqualification proceedings brought against directors of failed companies where those individuals acted as liquidator, administrative receiver or administrator of the company.

The fees paid for such work are as follows:

(a) since 1 May 1997 £85,600

(b) in the corresponding period prior to 1 May 1997 £72,100.

Letter from Ian Jones to Mr. David Ruffley, dated 26 February 1999:

You recently tabled a Parliamentary Question to the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry about the services that KPMG have performed for his Department. I have been asked to reply on behalf of the Employment Tribunals Service (ETS) which is an executive agency of the DTI.

The ETS has not engaged the services of KPMG.

Letter from David Hendon to Mr. David Ruffley, dated 26 February 1999:

The Secretary of State for Trade and Industry has asked me to reply on behalf of the Radiocommunications Agency to your Parliamentary Question about the Agency's use of KPMG.

This Agency entered into no contracts with KPMG since 1 May 1997. It used KPMG's services on one occasion before that date. In financial year 1996/97 the Agency commissioned KPMG to provide financial advice on the establishment of a joint venture company. The remuneration amounted to £120,244 ex-VAT.

Letter from Dr. Seton Bennett to Mr. David Ruffley, dated 26 February 1999:

The Secretary of State for Trade and Industry has asked me to reply on behalf of the National Weights and Measures Laboratory to your question about the services that KPMG have performed for the Agency both prior to and since 1 May 1997.

Since its creation as a Next Steps Agency in 1989, the National Weights and Measures Laboratory has not availed itself of the services of KPMG.

Letter from P. R. S. Hartnack to Mr. David Ruffley, dated 26 February 1999:

I am replying for the Patent Office to your question to the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry about the services performed by KPMG and details of any remuneration made by the Patent Office. I can confirm that a nil return is appropriate.

Letter from John Holden to Mr. David Ruffley, dated 26 February 1999:

I have now been invited to reply directly to you concerning your question, no 72013, tabled on 16 February 1999, asking the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will list the services that KPMG have performed for his Department since 1st May 1997 and in the corresponding period prior to 1st May 1997.

I can advise that KPMG have provided consultancy support in developing the business case for the introduction of the Government Procurement Card between October 1998 and March 1999. The consultancy was commissioned by the Treasury and has been undertaken at no cost to Companies House.

Low Pay Commission

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will make a statement on in the current work programme of the Low Pay Commission. [73814]

Mr. Ian McCartney: The Low Pay Commission has been asked to monitor and evaluate the introduction and impact of the national minimum wage, with particular reference to the effect on pay, employment and competitiveness in low paying sectors and small firms; particular groups of workers, such as young people, women, ethnic minorities, homeworkers, people with disabilities and voluntary sector workers; pay structures, including the effect on differentials and different pay systems; and training.

In view of the representations received on the accommodation offset that can be counted towards the national minimum wage, we have also asked the Commission to give early advice on that issue. It is for the Commission to formulate a programme of work to meet these remits.

Offshore Wind Farm Industry

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what action he is taking to encourage the transfer of British technology and expertise in the offshore oil and gas industries to the offshore wind farm industry. [73815]

Mr. Battle: Offshore wind has the potential to make a substantial contribution in future to sustainable and diverse energy supplies and I am pleased to see that UK industry is coming together in this area.

Through the New and Renewable Energy (NRE) programme, my Department last week sponsored a British Wind Energy Association (BWEA) seminar on Offshore Engineering. Many of the companies attending the seminar currently operate in the oil and gas industries and the application of technology currently used in the oil and gas sectors to offshore wind farms was discussed.

Poole Bay

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if his Department is requiring Elf Exploration plc to carry out further drilling operations in Poole Bay. [74055]

Mr. Battle: The Petroleum Licence covering block 98–12 in Poole Bay was awarded in 1991 with an obligation on the licensees to drill at least three exploration wells. The first of these was drilled in 1993, south east of the location of the well currently under discussion. This was unsuccessful and the licensees asked for all the outstanding work obligations to be waived. A waiver was granted in respect of one of the wells, but my Department took the view that the other should be drilled in order to fully explore the potential of the licensed area.

The current licence operator, Elf Exploration UK plc, has been preparing to seek consent to a further well to test a small structure which lies between the first well on the licence and the Wytch Farm oil field, but has now sought my Department's agreement to waive the outstanding commitments and relinquish the licence. This request is being considered and a response will be given as soon as possible.

Working Time Regulations 1998

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if juvenile employees working part-time on paper rounds are subject to the holiday pay provisions of the working time regulations. [72024]

Mr. Ian McCartney [holding answer 22 February 1999]: Newspaper delivery boys and girls are not entitled to paid annual leave under the regulations if they are below minimum school leaving age; anyone aged 16 or over who delivers newspapers is, like any other part time worker, entitled to paid annual leave but only pro rata according to the hours they normally work.

Photovoltaic Industry

Mr. Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will make a statement on his Department's support for the UK photovoltaic industry. [73926]

Mr. Battle: Last week I announced 3 major new PV initiatives:

(a) a call for proposals for the development of PV components and systems, with the aim of enhancing the competitiveness of UK companies;

(b) a field trial for around 100 homes across the country to test a variety of actual PV installations under UK conditions;

(c) development of a scheme to demonstrate the use of PV in large-scale building applications.

The total value of these initiatives is expected to be £15 million, with £5 million coming from the DTI. In the case of the demonstration scheme the final go-ahead will have to await the outcome of the Renewables Review, on which I expect to issue a Consultation Paper shortly.

These new initiatives are in addition to the work on solar photovoltaics that my Department is already funding (under the DTI's New and Renewable Energy Programme, the Engineering and Physical Sciences Research Council PV R&D programme, and the Foresight Scolar Programme), and will be taken forward in consultation with the PV and building industries.

Renewable Energy

Mr. Casale: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many people are currently employed in the generation of energy from renewable sources (a) in the United Kingdom and (b) in other member states of the European Union. [73772]

Mr. Battle: There are over 500 companies involved in renewable energy in the UK, which are estimated to employ some 3,500 people directly. These companies include manufacturers, developers, consultants, and operators.

Statistics for European Countries are not generally available. In the EU White Paper—Energy For the Future: Renewable Sources of Energy—the Commission cites the example of the wind energy sector which it estimates has created 30,000 jobs in Europe. The White Paper also states that if the contribution of renewables to energy supply in Europe were to double from the current 6 per cent. to 12 per cent. by 2010 it would create at least 500,000 jobs.

Genetic Testing

Mr. Chope: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what proposals he has to regulate the use of genetic testing in relation to employment; and if he will make a statement. [74145]

Mr. Battle: The Human Genetics Advisory Commission has set up a Working Group under the chairmanship of Mrs. Doris Littlejohn (President, Employment Tribunals (Scotland)) to consider the implications of genetic testing for employment. I look forward to receiving their advice later this year.

Human Genetics Advisory Commission

Mr. Chope: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will set out the qualifications and areas of expertise of the members of the Human Genetics Advisory Commission. [74146]

Mr. Battle: Affiliations and qualifications of members of the Human Genetics Advisory Commission are as follows:

Acting chair

Baroness O'Neill Principal, Newnham College, Cambridge; Chairman, Nuffield Foundation.

Members

Professor Cairns Aitken CBE Professor-emeritus of Rehabilitation Studies, University of Edinburgh; Fellow of the Royal College of Physicians of Edinburgh; Fellow of the Royal College of Psychiatrists.

Dr. Micheala Aldred Director, Retinoblastoma Society; Trustee, Genetic Interest Group.

Professor Martin Bobrow CBE Professor of Medical Genetics, University of Cambridge; Fellow of the Royal College of Physicians; Fellow of the Royal College of Pathology.

Mrs. Doris Littlejohn CBE President Employment Tribunals (Scotland).

Professor Norman Nevin Chairman Gene Therapy Advisory Committee; Professor of Medical Genetics, Northern Ireland Regional Genetics Centre; Fellow of the Ulster Medical Society.

Reverend Dr. John Polkinghorne KBE; Chairman, Advisory Committee on Genetic Testing, Member of the General Synod of the Church of England; Fellow of the Royal Society; Past President of Queens' College Cambridge.

Dr. George Poste CBE Chief Science and Technology Officer, SmithKline Beecham Plc; Fellow of the Royal Society.

Ms Moira Stuart Reporter/presenter, British Broadcasting Corporation.

British Coal (Canteen Workers)

Mr. Clapham: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry, pursuant to his answer of 10 February 1999, Official Report, column 224, what was the average award made to those canteen workers where cases have been settled. [73962]

Mr. Battle: The British Coal Corporation tell me that the average settlement cost is around £1,300 per claim.

Mixed Oxide Fuel Shipments

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment he has made of the international proliferation implications of MOX fuel shipments. [73212]

Mr. Battle: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer given by the Minister of State, Foreign and Commonwealth Office, my right hon. Friend the Member for Leeds, Central (Mr. Fatchett), to my hon. Friend the Member for Bury, North (Mr. Chaytor) on 2 December 1997, Official Report, column 122.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment he has made of the accessibility of the plutonium in MOX fuel contained in BNFL shipments to Japan for the purposes of making nuclear weapons. [73211]

Mr. Battle: The process by which MOX fuel is made combines the uranium and plutonium in such a way that separation by physical means is not possible. To recover plutonium from MOX fuel would require a chemical separation process requiring complex and highly specialised plant, equipment and skills. Very stringent physical protection and safeguards measures are applied to MOX fuel at all times to prevent its theft or diversion.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what discussions have taken place between his Department and (a) the Foreign and Commonwealth Office and (b) the Ministry of Defence on the proposed shipments of plutonium to Japan by BNFL. [73210]

Mr. Battle: Responsibility within Government for the security of MOX shipments rests with the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry. Consultations between DTI and other Government Departments, including the Foreign and Commonwealth Office and the Ministry of Defence, have continued in the normal way.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry when he expects the Japanese to take ownership and control of the materials involved in the proposed shipment of plutonium to Japan; and what agencies are involved in overseeing these shipments. [73209]

Mr. Battle: The MOX fuel, which is already owned by the Japanese utilities, will come under the control of the Government of Japan on arrival at the port of entry. For the UK Government, the Department of the Environment, Transport and the Regions deals with the safety of movements of nuclear materials carried out by the UK, while my Department handles security issues associated with these shipments.

Mr. Edwards: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry for what reasons armed vessels with armed escorts are required to accompany shipments of MOX fuel and other nuclear material from BNFL to its overseas customers. [73562]

Mr. Battle [holding answer 26 February 1999]: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave to my hon. Friend the Member for Stroud (Mr. Drew) on 18 February 1999, Official Report, columns 364–65.

Mr. Edwards: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment he has made of the extent to which the production and export of MOX fuel and other nuclear materials which will be returned to BNFL's overseas customers after reprocessing are consistent with the terms of the Non-Proliferation Treaty. [73561]

Mr. Battle [holding answer 26 February 1999]: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer given by the then Under-Secretary, my hon. Friend the Member for Hornsey and Wood Green (Mrs. Roche), to my hon. Friend the Member for Bury, North (Mr. Chaytor) on 9 December 1997, Official Report, column 528.

Cannabis Medical Trials

Mrs. Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will make a statement on the progress of the cannabis medical trials. [72374]

Mr. Battle: The Medical Research Council have invited two research groups to submit full detailed proposals for clinical trials on the potential therapeutic uses of cannabis. These proposals are expected to be submitted in time to undergo peer review and be submitted to MRC's research selection boards for recommendation on funding in October.

Oil Extraction (St. Kilda)

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what representations he has received regarding proposed oil extraction near St. Kilda; and if he will make a statement. [69388]

Mr. Battle: I have received correspondence from environmental groups, members of the public and hon. Members expressing concern about the impact of petroleum extraction on St. Kilda, and about the potential contribution to climate change of continuing exploitation of fossil fuels.

There is no evidence that either the offer of petroleum licences in the Atlantic or activity under such licences has compromised the environmental sensitivity of the area, jeopardised the status of any World Heritage Sites or harmed any particular species or habitat.

Prior to offering acreage west of the Hebrides in the 17th Seaward Licensing Round, the Department took the advice of the Joint Nature Conservation Committee (JNCC), the Government's statutory adviser on conservation matters, about the potential environmental impact of activities under licences. The JNCC advised — and my Department accepted — that because of the environmental importance of the protected area around St. Kilda, no acreage within 25 miles of the island should be offered for licensing. In actual fact, the nearest licence awarded is 45 miles away.

As a further safeguard, conditions were attached to these licences at the request of JNCC and the Scottish Office Agriculture, Environment and Fisheries Department (SOAEFD) which prohibit seismic acquisition and drilling during specified sensitive seasons in order to minimise any potential disruption to local ecosystems.

The advice from the JNCC, and the Department's subsequent decision-making process about the offer of blocks for petroleum licensing, takes full account of the requirements of the EU Habitats Directive (92/43/EEC). Such advice from the JNCC and other consultees has led to some blocks being excluded from licence offers in particular licensing rounds, despite clear interest from oil and gas companies which wished to see them made available.

All exploration wells are subject to the Petroleum Pipe-lines (Assessment of Environmental Effects) Regulations 1998, which implement the European Union Environmental Impact Assessment Directive (85/337/EEC) across the whole of the UK Continental Shelf. Under these Regulations, the Secretary of State must take account of the likely environmental impact of the well before he may decide whether or not to consent to its drilling. Both the JNCC and SOAEFD are consulted about the likely effects of wells in this area and may recommend that a full environmental statement is required before a consent decision can be made. Such statements must be made available to the public for their comments and the Secretary of State must then take into consideration any comments he has received when making his decision about consent for the project.

Under the Regulations, the same process must be applied to any application for consent to a further well to appraise the commercial potential of an oil or gas discovery, and again to any subsequent proposal to develop such a find for production. The production of an environmental statement is mandatory for most development projects. No application has yet been received for consent to commercial extraction of oil or gas west of the Hebrides.

Offshore activity, including all exploration wells, is also subject to the Merchant Shipping (Oil Pollution Preparedness and Response Convention) Regulations 1998. These require an oil spill contingency plan to be submitted to this Department for approval before drilling activities may commence. The Maritime and Coastguard Agency (MCA) are consulted in relation to such plans. Each contingency plan is project-specific and will take account of relevant environmental sensitivities.

The UK offshore oil and gas industry has a good environmental record. Areas west of Scotland were first licensed for petroleum exploration and production in 1972. The first commercial developments in the area are the Foinaven and Schiehallion oil fields, which lie west of Shetland, more than 200 miles northeast of St. Kilda. Regrettably, there have been some small oil spills around these facilities since production started, but all dispersed naturally with no evidence of damage to the environment.

However, the companies involved have been asked to reassess their operational procedures to ensure that the risk of even small oil spills can be reduced still further.

The Government are committed to playing its part in tackling the threat of global warming and agrees that we need to move away from dependence on fossil fuels. The Government intend to develop a strategic UK climate change programme for publication later this year which will set out proposals for policies and measures to achieve international targets and its domestic policy aims, including increased support for renewables. The aim of the programme will be to develop an equitable, balanced strategy, covering all sectors of the economy and engaging all parts of the community. It will be finalised after public consultation and the Government will take forward its implementation, probably in 2000 and subsequent years.

Electron Microscopes

Mr. Skinner: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what is his estimate of the number of electron microscopes employed in the United Kingdom for the purposes of assessing the presence of asbestos fibres in lung tissue in order to advise (a) special medical boards on respiratory diseases; and (b) coroners. [70180]

Mr. Battle: Within the DTI, the Office of Science and Technology (OST) has a specific interest in areas of research using electron microscopes, investigating the health effects of fibre inhalation, including asbestos fibres, in relation to the pathogenesis of disease, through the Medical Research Council (MRC) Toxicology Unit in Leicester.

The DSS is responsible for "special medical boards" which, I am informed, do not use electron microscopy for assessing the presence of asbestos fibres in lung tissue. The Home Office are not aware of any figures for Coroners. My Department has no such estimate; even if it were possible to gather such information, it would involve disproportionate cost.

Pilot Projects

Yvette Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will list the pilot projects instigated by his Department since 1 May 1997, indicating the area in which each pilot took, or is taking, place. [72640]

Mr. Byers: Details of the pilot projects instigated by my Department since 1 May 1997 are set out in the table.

Pilot projects instigated by DTI since 1 May 1997

|---|---|
| Investigation into the feasibility of introducing Intelligent Character Recognition Systems into Companies House. | England and Wales (but restricted to nine regular presenters of documents) |
| Running a service whereby presenters of documents can file them electronically with Companies House using an approved software package (four packages approved to date). | England and Wales |
| Providing access to images of all Companies House documents via the CH Direct service. Service piloted with 18 customers. | Mainly in the UK, but also world-wide via the Internet. |
| A project to enable trade fair intermediaries to access the TradeUK National Exporters Database and the Export Sales Leads Service at overseas trade fairs via the Internet. | World-wide. |
| A project to pilot the Hints to Exporters series on the Internet, rather than through printed copies. | World-wide. |
| Manufacturing for Biotechnology Initiative. A pilot initiative to raise awareness of manufacturing opportunities for biotechnology SMEs and to enhance manufacturing potential. | National |
| Joint project with the British Jewellery and Giftware Federation to test the scope for trade associations to commission the chargeable export services delivered by British Diplomatic Missions worldwide on behalf of companies in their sector. | National |
| Competitiveness and management organisation in SMEs. The pilot compares differences in management styles, then helps companies to choose the styles that suit their particular culture. | East Midlands |
| A project to encourage market research companies to achieve British Standard BS7911. | National |
| Capex Scoreboard. List of 500 UK companies' capital investment figures in comparison with 300 international companies for benchmarking purposes. | National |
| Research on the innovation stories behind successful entrants for the Design Council's Millennium Products awards. | Pilot interviews conducted nationally. |
| Pilot awareness campaign promoting the use of automatic identification technologies among SMEs. | Hertfordshire |
| UK-Russia High Technology Forum. Aims to encourage technology transfer between Russia and some countries in the FSU with the UK. | National |
| Joint project with North Nottinghamshire TEC and local Business Links to examine the challenge of delivering Level Two ICT skills to a mass market. | North Nottinghamshire |
| Joint project with Merseyside SATRO and schools in Liverpool and Salford to examine whether DTI's CD-ROM based information on business best practice could be of value in an educational environment. | Liverpool and Salford |
| Joint project with DfEE to identify the value that firms place on the skills of their workforce in 12 sectors. | National |

Departmental Policies

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what systems he has in place to ensure that policies being developed by his Department are subject to a crime impact (a) assessment and (b) audit and are not likely to lead to enhanced criminal opportunities. [72680]

Mr. Byers [holding answer 24 February 1999]: Government Departments are co-operating on policy developments, and I liaise closely with Ministerial colleagues at the Home Office on any likely implications for crime of new policies.

Minister for Science

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will place an agenda and minutes for the meeting on 15 December 1998, which the Minister for Science chaired, in the Library. [73020]

Mr. Byers [holding answer 25 February 1999]: The meeting referred to was part of the Public Consultation on the Biosciences, which my noble Friend chairs. The meeting was attended by representatives of many different interested parties. This exercise looks at public attitudes to regulation of the biosciences. Minutes for the meeting have been circulated to all attendees of the meeting and a copy has been placed in the Library of the House.

Internet Web Caching

Mr. Fabricant: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment he has made of the effects on information technology in the United Kingdom of the implementation of the resolution by the European Parliament to outlaw Internet web caching. [73383]

Mr. Wills: Unauthorised reproduction of copyright material in electronic form is generally prohibited under the Copyright, Designs and Patents Act 1988. The European Parliament's proposed amendment to the draft Directive on copyright in the information society, which would mean that temporary copies such as occur in caching could infringe copyright if right owners have not agreed to use of their material in the relevant service, would not therefore change the situation in the UK. Current UK copyright law does not seem to have inhibited the development of information technology services, or placed undue burdens on those providing such services. However, we support moves to clarify the liability of service providers under copyright and other laws, along the lines proposed in the draft Directive on electronic commerce.

Electronic Red Boxes

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will name the Ministers in his Department who are regular users of the new electronic red boxes. [73693]

Mr. Byers [holding answer 26 February 1999]: The Minister of State for Energy and Industry has been using the electronic red box developed for the DTI for some time. This facility enables him to work on electronic copies of documents at home and to access many of the Department's information systems. Following evaluation of his experience later this year, consideration will be given to extending its use to other Ministers.

Business Regulation (USA)

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment he has made of the operation of the Regulatory Flexibility Act 1980 in the United States. [73231]

Mr. Kilfoyle: I have been asked to reply.

Whilst it is not for us to assess the effectiveness of the United States' internal legislative arrangements, we are aware of this Act and officials in the Cabinet Office Better Regulation Unit are in contact with their US counterparts with the aim of increasing our mutual understanding and promoting the exchange of best practice. Many of the main provisions of this Act cover the same ground as certain requirements in our own system of regulatory impact assessment.

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment he has made of the operation of sunset regulation in the United States. [73224]

Mr. Kilfoyle: I have been asked to reply.

We are aware of the discussions in the United States and other countries about the use of sunset clauses in regulation. Officials in the Cabinet Office Better Regulation Unit actively participate in such discussions both bilaterally and at the OECD with the aim of increasing mutual understanding and promoting exchanges of best practice. We are not aware of any federal United States legislative requirement for sunset clauses.

Mr. Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment he has made of the operation of the Small Business Regulatory Enforcement Fairness Act 1996 in the United States. [73223]

Mr. Kilfoyle: I have been asked to reply.

Whilst it is not for us to assess the effectiveness of the United States' internal legislative arrangements, we are aware of this Act and officials in the Cabinet Office Better Regulation Unit are in contact with their US counterparts with the aim of increasing mutual understanding and promoting the exchange of best practice. Many of the main provisions of this Act, aimed at small business, cover the same ground as the UK's Access Business initiative.

SCOTLAND

Stuart Gair Case

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland (1) what steps have been taken to interview new witnesses or witnesses who have changed their evidence in the case of Stuart Gair; and if he will make a statement; [68173]

(2) what date he received a submission on behalf of Stuart Gair; what action he has taken; and when he expects to complete his consideration. [68188]

Mr. McLeish [holding answer 4 February 1999]: A petition claiming a miscarriage of justice in Stuart Gair's conviction was submitted by Mr. Gair's solicitor to my right hon. Friend on 10 September 1998.

An initial review of the new evidence in Mr. Gair's case has been carried out by the Scottish Office and clarifications and further information sought from the solicitor. However, no interviews or inquiries have yet been commissioned. Mr. Gair's solicitor has indicated that he does not want the Crown Office to be involved in the examination of this case and has requested that my right hon. Friend appoint an impartial body to carry out any investigations.

In the light of this continuing objection by Mr. Gair's solicitor, the most appropriate way forward would seem to be for the Scottish Criminal Cases Review Commission to instruct or carry out any necessary investigations once it comes into operation on 1 April this year. The new Commission will have powers to undertake its own inquiries and to obtain statements and reports. One of the main intentions behind our setting up this Commission is to make the review of alleged miscarriages of justice in Scotland clearly independent and to ensure public confidence in the process.

In these circumstances we are not in a position to estimate how long it might be before a decision is reached in this case.

Disability Discrimination Act 1995

Mr. Berry: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what assessment he has made of the impact on his Department's policies of the goods and services provisions of the Disability Discrimination Act 1995 to be implemented in October 1999. [71268]

Mr. Galbraith [holding answer 22 February 1999]: We are acting to ensure that the Department's policies meet the needs of disabled people and comply with legal requirements. The Department already takes positive steps to make it easier for disabled people to make use of its services. We shall continue to do so, not only by complying fully with new duties in the Disability Discrimination Act but by aiming to do more where appropriate.

Existing guidance on policy appraisal is currently being reviewed in the light of the guidance "Policy Appraisal for Equal Treatment" which the Cabinet Office issued to all Government Departments in November 1998. This was signed jointly by the Minister for Women, the Secretary of State for Education and Employment and the Home Secretary. The new guidance will ensure that all new and existing policies and programmes are assessed for any differential impact, not only on disabled people but on women and people from ethnic minorities. That includes the need to ensure that policies and their outcomes comply with the law. Where necessary, we shall act to remove any differential impact.

From 1 July 1999, this will be a matter for the Scottish Parliament. The report of the Consultative Steering Group on the Scottish Parliament strongly recommended that the Parliament should have an Equal Opportunities Committee. Monitoring and reporting of progress on the Disability Discrimination Act will be for the Scottish Executive.

Rowett Research Institute

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland when his Department received the research dossier on GMO research into potatoes from Dr. Pusztai of the Rowett Research Institute; when the Minister for the Cabinet Office requested copies of the work submitted to his Department under contract by Dr. Pusztai; which other Government departments or research units have received copies; and on what dates. [72528]

Mr. Macdonald: A copy of the report produced by Dr. Putszai for the Rowett Research Institute in response to the Institute's Audit Committee was copied to the Scottish Office on 26 October 1998. The report was published by the Rowett Research Institute on 16 February 1999. Dr. Pusztai was contracted by the Rowett Research Institute to undertake the research on GMO potatoes and it was for the Institute to consider and publish the report.

The Government welcome the decision by the Rowett Research Institute to publish Dr. Pusztai's report, together with the audit committee's response to this report. The Government also welcome the request by the Rowett Research Institute to the Royal Societies of London and Edinburgh to conduct an independent analysis of Dr. Pusztai's and Dr. Ewen's research. For this to take place, it is clearly essential that all those involved should respond to the requests within the scientific community to make available the data and papers on which their conclusions are based.

From 1 July 1999, this will be a matter for the Scottish Parliament.

University Fees

Mr. Gorrie: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what estimate he has made of the income to be raised by fees paid by (a) Scottish students at Scottish universities, (b) English, Welsh and Northern Irish students at Scottish universities and (c) Scottish students at English, Welsh and Northern Irish universities in the current year and each of the next five years. [72658]

Mrs. Liddell: No separate estimates have been made for fees income for Scottish universities as requested. The table provides estimates for fees income for Scottish higher education institutions and further education colleges for the years 1998–99 to 2001–02 only:

|---|---|---|---|---|
| Scottish higher education institutions (1) | 15 | 26 | 35 | 40 |
| Scottish further education colleges | 4 | 6 | 6 | 6 |
| Total for Scottish institutions | 19 | 32 | 41 | 46 |
| Scottish students at other UK institutions | 1 | 2 | 2 | 2 |

All figures are at 1998–99 prices

It is assumed that most students coming to Scotland from elsewhere in the UK will attend higher education institutions. Within the figures at (1) their contribution is estimated as £2 million, £5 million, £7 million and £10 million respectively. This is estimated using the same average private contribution as for Scottish and EU students. Actual amounts will be dependent on the specific funding body responsible providing student support in whatever part of the UK the student comes from.

From 1 July 1999, this will be a matter for the Scottish Parliament.

Schizophrenia Psychoses

Sir Alastair Goodlad: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many people discharged from hospital in Scotland following a main diagnosis of schizophrenia psychoses and subsequently taken to hospital by the police under the Mental Health Acts were refused admission in the last year for which figures are available. [73236]

Mr. Galbraith: The information is not collected or held centrally.

From 1 July 1999, this will be a matter for the Scottish Parliament.

Sir Alastair Goodlad: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what research projects his Department is funding in the current year to test the effectiveness of community care for people suffering from schizophrenia psychoses; and if he will make a statement. [73365]

Mr. Galbraith: The Chief Scientist Office (CSO) within the Scottish Office Department of Health has responsibility for managing funds which support research activity to further the development of patient care and health services within the NHS in Scotland.

Mental Health is one of the health priorities in Scotland, and CSO's awards to mental health research projects in 1998–99, total some £2M. Many of these projects may be relevant to schizophrenia psychoses alongside other severe mental health problems, and some may have implications for methods of care, including community care, for sufferers. Projects, completed or still running in 1998–99, which we have identified as definitely relevant to schizophrenia psychoses (and perhaps—to varying extents—to community care for sufferers) are detailed below. Their awards total some £657K of the £2M.

CSO also manages the NHS in Scotland's Research and Development (R&D) Support Fund, which supports research and development in NHS hospitals, general practice and other health care settings in Scotland. R&D Support Fund expenditure on mental health is estimated to be some £3M in 1998–99. R&D Support Fund expenditure on schizophrenia psychoses cannot be identified separately, except at disproportionate cost. From 1 July 1999, this will be a matter for the Scottish Parliament.

| Project title, research base and project duration | Award |
|---|---|
| Role of Obstetric Complications in the Aetiology of Schizophrenic and Affective Psychosis (Royal College of Psychiatrists, London, 1 October 1997 to 31 September 1998) | 9,276 |
| Schizophrenia in the Elderly: Its Prevalence and Suffers' Needs for Health and Social Care (Lanarkshire Healthcare NHS Trust, 1 July 1997 to 30 June 1996) | 85,034 |
| Cognitive Therapy with Medication-resistant Psychotic Symptoms: A Clinical Trial with Nurses as Therapists (University of Dundee, 1 January 1997 to 31 December 1999) | 112,688 |
| Hospital Discharge for People with a Mental Illness (University of Glasgow, 1 December 1997 to 31 January 2000) | [1]67,177 |
| A Randomised Controlled Comparison of Neuroleptic Maintenance in Combination with Individualised Psychoeducation in the Prevention of Relapse in Schizophrenia (Ayrshire & Arran Community Healthcare Trust, 1 June 1997 to 12 May 2000) | 115,989 |
| The Prevalence and Impact of Substance Misuse in Schizophrenic Patients in Scottish Urban and Rural Settings (Health Services Research Unit, Aberdeen, 1 February 1999 to 30 January 2001 —dates to be confirmed) | 166,424 |

[1] Co-funded by CSO and Social Work Services Group of The Scottish Office

Sir Alastair Goodlad: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many people with a main diagnosis of schizophrenia psychoses were discharged from mental illness hospitals in Scotland in each of the last three years; and how many of them were taken into local authority residential care in the same year. [73360]

Mr. Galbraith: The number of people with a main diagnosis of schizophrenia psychosis discharged from mental illness hospitals in Scotland for the last 3 years for which complete information is available is shown in the table.

| Year ending | Number |
|---|---|
| 31 March 1994 | 2,739 |
| 31 March 1995 | 2,623 |
| 31 March 1996 | 2,680 |

Information on discharges to local authority residential care is not collected or held centrally.

From 1 July 1999, this will be a matter for the Scottish Parliament.

Sir Alastair Goodlad: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many of those convicted of crimes in Scotland in the last year for which figures are available have ever been admitted to National Health Service mental illness hospitals with a main diagnosis of schizophrenia psychoses. [73357]

Mr. Galbraith: The information is not collected or held centrally.

From 1 July 1999, this will be a matter for the Scottish Parliament.

Sir Alastair Goodlad: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will list the admissions by diagnosis and order of admission indicating percentage changes over the previous year in numbers and rates per 100,000 population of patients suffering from schizophrenia psychoses in Scotland in the last year for which figures are available. [73368]

Mr. Galbraith: The number of admissions to psychiatric in-patient care in Scotland, with a main diagnosis of schizophrenic psychoses during the latest years for which complete information is available, is shown in the table:

| | Number of admissions | Rate per 100,000 population | + or − per cent. |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1995 | 3,547 | 69.1 | — |
| 1996 | 3,611 | 70.3 | +1.8 |

From 1 July 1999, this will be a matter for the Scottish Parliament.

Departmental Expenditure

Mrs. Laing: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will list general Government expenditure in Scotland on (i) agriculture, (ii) fisheries, (iii) education, (iv) prison service, (v) police service, (vi) health, (vii) transport and (viii) housing, in (a) cash terms and (b) 1998–99 prices, for each year since 1992. [73624]

Mr. Dewar: Figures for identifiable general government expenditure in Scotland from 1992–93 to 1996–97 were published in "Public Expenditure Statistical Analyses 1998–99", Cm 3901, in April 1998. A breakdown into more detailed functional categories is not available.

Indecency Offences

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many persons have been (a) charged with and (b) convicted of offences of (i) sodomy, (ii) gross indecency and (iii) shameless indecency by one male person with another in each year for the last 10 years. [73544]

Mr. McLeish: The available information on prosecutions for homosexual offences, including statutory offences, is given in the tables. From 1 July 1999, this will be a matter for the Scottish Parliament.

Males proceeded against where the main offence was sodomy, gross indecency, shameless indecency or statutory homosexual offences Scotland 1988–97

SOCIAL SECURITY

Bereavement Support

Mr. Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if he will estimate the total cost to the taxpayer of benefits paid to widows and widowers (1) if the benefit rules were to remain unchanged and (2) if the reforms in "Support in Bereavement" were implemented, in (a) 2002, (b) 2007, (c) 2012 and (d) 2017. [71100]

Angela Eagle: The information is in the table.

Indicative estimates of the expenditure on widows benefit without reform and the net savings which may accrue following reform

£ million in 1998–99 benefit rates

| | Expenditure on existing widow benefit scheme without reform | Costs(+)/Savings(-) from proposals (net of means-tested benefit offsets) |
|---|---|---|
| 2002–03 | 950 | +100 |
| 2007–08 | 800 | −100 |
| 2012–13 | 800 | −200 |
| 2017–08 | 950 | −450 |

Notes:

1. Estimates for the effects of reform are presented net of means-tested benefit offsets, in line with those in "A new contract for welfare: support in bereavement". Means-tested benefit offsets were estimated using the 1995–96 Family Resources Survey and the Income Support Quarterly Statistical Enquiries. They assume a constant offset ratio in order to provide illustrative estimates for later years.

2. The forecast of expenditure under the existing Widows Benefit scheme together with the underlying contributory benefit effects of reform have been provided by the Government Actuary's Department.

3. Estimates provide broad orders of magnitude and are rounded to the nearest £50 million.

4. A start date of 2001–02 has been assumed.

Benefit Integrity Project

Mr. Bennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security when the Benefit Integrity Project ended in Greater Manchester; what has replaced it; and how the replacement is different from its predecessor. [73547]

Mr. Bayley: The administration of Disability Living Allowance is a matter for Peter Mathison, Chief Executive of the Benefits Agency. He will write to my hon. Friend.

Letter from Peter Mathison to Mr. Andrew F. Bennett, dated 1 March 1999:

The Secretary of State for Social Security has asked me to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking when the Benefits Integrity Project ended in Greater Manchester, what has replaced it, and how the replacement is different from its predecessor.

The Benefit Integrity Project (BIP) will end nationally on 31 March 1999 and is to be replaced by a new and fairer system. No new cases will be selected for the BIP after this date. Cases where action has already started will continue to be processed through the stages of adjudication including review and appeal.

From April, a new system of "Periodic Review" will be introduced. This will incorporate the lessons already learned from BIP, and will be fairer as it will gather information by home visits and postal enquiries across the whole range of rates and components of Disability Living Allowance (DLA). It will therefore provide for awards to be increased as well as decreased in line with entitlement.

At the outset, those DLA recipients whose cases have been examined by the BIP will be excluded from the process, as will those people in any one of the specific categories of exclusions from the BIP. People with a fixed period award due to end within the next three years will also be excluded.

The process will be evaluated after six months. The findings will be used to continue to improve the process to make it more sensitive to the circumstances of the individual concerned. Additionally, we will be testing new ways of evidence gathering for DLA claims. Discussions are taking place with disability groups to ensure that the new system is sensitive and is both fair and effective.

I hope that you have found this reply helpful.

Child Support Agency

Mr. Peter Bradley: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many applications have been made to the Child Support Agency for the deferment of arrears; and how many have been granted. [73719]

Angela Eagle: Information is not available about the number of applications for deferment of arrears. However, Child Support Agency records show that there are currently 7,647 cases, where arrears of child support maintenance have been deferred. As at 31 January 1999 the Agency had made 1,233 payments of compensation to parents with care under the deferred debt scheme.

Mr. Peter Bradley: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what discussions his Department has had with the Child Support Agency over its decision not to inform non-resident parents of the Government's policy on the deferment of arrears arising from delays in the Agency's completion of assessments. [73718]

Angela Eagle: Child Support Officers are expected to consider whether deferment of arrears should be offered in all cases where arrears of maintenance are due to delay by the Child Support Agency in completing initial maintenance assessments and periodic or change of circumstance reviews. A non-resident parent may also ask the Agency to consider deferring arrears of maintenance at any time. We are satisfied that these arrangements are sufficient to ensure that non-resident parents are offered deferment of arrears, whenever this is appropriate.

Lone Parents

Ms Harman: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many lone parents receive Income Support, broken down by constituency. [73474]

Angela Eagle: Information is not available in the format requested. Such information as is available is as follows.

In August 1998 there were 955,000 lone parents receiving Income Support. Reliable information by parliamentary constituency is not available at present.

Currently, the best estimate for the number of Lone Parents in each parliamentary constituency is based on the number of cases in each Local Authority area whose boundary overlaps that of the constituency. However, this will overstate the number of cases in many areas, as a single Local Authority may overlap several parliamentary constituencies.

It is anticipated that reliable constituency breakdowns for England will become available by the end of March.

Source:

August 1998 Income Support Statistics Quarterly Enquiry, the latest figures available.

Air Miles

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many Air Miles have been earned by him and each of his Ministers; and how he proposes to use them. [73329]

Mr. Timms: The Government's policy on the use and disposal of air miles was set out by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister on 12 January 1999, Official Report, column 141.

Detailed information on any air miles earned by Ministers as a result of official travel is not recorded centrally.

National Insurance

Mr. Ennis: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many people in the Barnsley, East and Mexborough constituency will gain from the reduction in national insurance contributions scheduled for April. [73372]

Mr. Timms: The information is not available.

Throughout Great Britain, some 20 million people will pay an average of nearly £70 a year less in National Insurance contributions as a result of the abolition of the employee entry fee in April 1999.

Pension Splitting

Mr. Sayeed: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what estimate he has made of the charges which will be made for couples splitting a pension on divorce. [73551]

Mr. Timms: Broad estimates of the charges, which private pension schemes might make for couples sharing a pension on divorce, are contained within Annexe 2 of the Regulatory Impact Assessment of the Welfare Reform and Pensions Bill as introduced in the House of Commons on 10 February 1999. Copies of the Assessment have been placed in the Libraries of the House.

Cold Weather Payments

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what was the total amount of money paid in cold weather payments in 1998. [73781]

Mr. Timms: Last winter (1997–98) over 55,000 Cold Weather Payments were made at a total cost of almost £0.5 million.

To date this winter (1998–99), an estimated 26,000 payments have been made at a total cost of over £220,000.

The expenditure depends on the severity of the temperature conditions during each winter.

Winter Fuel Payments

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many state pensioners received the winter fuel allowance in the last year for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [73783]

Mr. Timms: This winter, around 10 million eligible pensioners received a Winter Fuel Payment. Around 1.5 million of the poorest pensioners—those receiving Income Support or income-based Jobseeker's Allowance—received their payments in November 1998. The remaining 8.5 million eligible pensioners receiving one of the other qualifying benefits received their payments during January 1999.

Housing Benefit

Dr. Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if he will assess the benefits of introducing a universal housing benefit scheme covering both rent and mortgage payments. [73747]

Angela Eagle: The help provided for people on low incomes to meet their housing costs is kept under review. Housing Benefit helps people on low incomes meet their rent, whether they are in or out of work. Help with mortgage costs is provided for those on Income Support or income based Jobseeker's Allowance. Extending help with mortgage costs to those with low incomes but above the level of Income Support or income based Jobseeker's Allowance could cost up to £1 billion per year, if it was fully taken up.

Radiation

Mr. Paul Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if he will make a statement on the Industrial Injuries Advisory Council's report on diseases caused by radiation. [74675]

Mr. Bayley: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State has today laid a copy of the council's report before Parliament (Cm 4280). We have given the report careful consideration and are pleased to say that we have accepted the recommendations set out in the report. Regulations implementing the recommendations will be made in due course.

Decision-making and Appeals

Mr. Caplin: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security when he will lay regulations under the decision making and appeals provision of the Social Security Act 1998; and if he will make a statement. [74676]

Angela Eagle: Last year in the Social Security Act we laid the foundations for a new system for handling decisions and appeals in benefits, child support and vaccine damage claims. Today my right hon. Friends the Lord Chancellor and the Secretary of State for Social Security are laying the main Regulations, which will provide the detailed legal framework for this new system.

The new system for handling decisions and appeals is a major step to modernise the delivery of Social Security and child support as part of the Government's programme for welfare reform. The current system needs to change. It is confusing for claimants and staff. Putting mistakes right is complicated and claimants often have to appeal, even when a mistake is obvious to all concerned. Appeals take far too long to be cleared—on average seven months—even where they have no prospect of success. These delays are unacceptable.

The changes we are making will enable the Benefits Agency, Child Support Agency and Employment Service to provide a more helpful and accessible service to the public.

Under the new system, decisions will continue to be based on the facts and the law, with a right of appeal to an independent tribunal. There will be clearer, simpler decisions and a programme to develop simpler communications for the public. There will be new arrangements for handling disputes, so mistakes are put right more easily without having to go to appeal. There will be one type of appeal tribunal, rather than five, with one unified set of rules and three, two or one member tribunals according to the issues raised by the appeal. Appeals, which have no prospect of success, will be resolved more quickly.

The new arrangements will come into operation during the second half of this year. They will apply to child support from the beginning of June. For benefits they will be introduced in stages between July and November, to help maintain service to the public while the new arrangements start to operate.

The Independent Tribunal Service will be replaced by The Appeals Service, which will encompass both the administration of appeals and the appeal tribunals. The administration of appeals will be undertaken from April 2000 by a new executive agency of this Department. My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State will set targets for the Agency, which will be published and reported on annually. The President of appeal tribunals and the panel members who hear appeals will be appointed by my right hon. Friend the Lord Chancellor and remain independent of this Department.

Benefit claimants and child support clients will receive full information about what the new system means for them as the changes come into effect.

National Pensioners Convention

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if he will list the meetings which he has had with the National Pensioners Convention since May 1997; who attended them; and if he will publish the proceedings of these meetings. [73735]

Mr. Timms: As under previous Administrations, it is not the normal practice to provide details of private meetings with specific individuals or organisations.

Benefit Interviews

Mr. Duncan Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what procedure to obtain benefits will be required of claimants who are allowed to defer or not attend the interview in the Single Gateway to Benefit. [74000]

Angela Eagle: Where a decision has been made to either waive or defer a claimant's work-focused interview, the claimant will need to provide a fully completed claim form and meet all the relevant entitlement conditions to obtain benefit.

Mr. Duncan Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what estimate he has made of the time required for the interview of those entering the Gateway. [73989]

Angela Eagle: The length of time required to conduct an interview for those entering the Gateway will vary according to the needs of the individual concerned.

Benefit Fraud

Mr. Duncan Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what the expenditure on the advertisement of the Benefit Fraud Hotline has been in each month since May 1997. [73994]

Mr. Timms: Since May 1997 there have been two advertising campaigns for the National Benefit Fraud Hotline. The first was in March 1998 at a cost of £225,000 and the second started in October 1998 and is due to be completed at the end of March 1999 at a cost of £290,247.

Mr. Duncan Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many calls to the Benefit Fraud Hotline have been recorded in each month since May 1997. [73995]

Mr. Timms: The information is in the table.

Number of calls recorded at the National Benefit Fraud hotline since May 1997

| Month/Year | Number |
|---|---|
| May 1997 | 19,272 |
| June 1997 | 16,272 |
| July 1997 | 18,808 |
| August 1997 | 14,755 |
| September 1997 | 16,236 |
| October 1997 | 13,202 |
| November 1997 | 11,770 |
| December 1997 | 10,829 |
| January 1998 | 17,206 |
| February 1998 | 15,780 |
| March 1998 | 15,345 |
| April 1998 | 19,007 |
| May 1998 | 13,149 |
| June 1998 | 13,692 |
| July 1998 | 15,512 |
| August 1998 | 11,104 |
| September 1998 | 13,694 |
| October 1998 | 12,805 |
| November 1998 | 14,285 |
| December 1998 | 12,160 |
| January 1999 | 13,925 |

Private Pensions

Mr. Duncan Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security (1) what amount is unpaid with respect to national insurance rebates for contracted out private pensions; [73996]

(2) what interest has accrued on the money which has not been paid to contracted out private pensions as national insurance rebates; [73998]

(3) for how long the national insurance rebates to contracted out private pensions have not been paid; [73997]

(4) what estimate he has made of the loss of investment profit from the failure of the payments of the national insurance rebates to contracted out private pensions. [73999]

Mr. Timms: The information is not available in the format requested.

The calculation of the National Insurance Rebates contains an assumption that they are paid in the October following the end of the tax year for which they are due. Normally around 90 per cent. of payments have been made by that date, increasing to 95 per cent. by December. This year by October 14 per cent. had been paid, by December this had increased to 46 per cent. Currently 77 per cent. has been paid.

The delay in payment of the age related rebates has allowed the retention of Government gilt's which would otherwise have been sold to meet the age related rebate payments. In determining any potential gain to the National Insurance Fund as a result of the delay, certain assumptions need to be made about the pattern of payments that would have been made and the rate of return on gilts. Assuming certain payment patterns and a 6 per cent. rate of return then the gain to the National Insurance Fund is tentatively estimated to be around £58 million.

We have been paying compensation at the rate of 0.5 per cent. per month for each month of delay, since November 1998. To date £21 million has been paid and it is estimated that the total compensation figure will be around £38 million.

We have not made any estimates about the actual loss of investment incurred as a result of the delays. Instead we have implemented a system to compensate individuals which takes into consideration the following factors: First the calculation of the rebate, in particular the assumption within the calculation that the payment is made in October, following the end of the tax year for which it is due. Second the need to provide certainty for scheme members and personal pension holders. Third the investment return prevailing at the time (September 1998) and finally the need for straightforward and cost effective administrative arrangements which would minimise the additional work required by pension providers, scheme administrators and Contributions Agency.

The level of compensation was discussed with the Government Actuary's Department who agreed that 0.5 per cent. per month represented a reasonable level of compensation given the prevailing market conditions in September 1998 and on the assumption that the arrangements put in place at that time were designed to cover a few months delay.

Benefits (Personal Advisers)

Mr. Duncan Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what the cost of training a personal adviser is; what length of time it takes to train a personal adviser; and what specific areas of training personal advisers undergo for (a) the New Deal for Lone Parents and (b) the Single Gateway to Benefit. [73990]

Angela Eagle: Personal advisers working on the New Deal for Lone Parents receive up to six weeks training, at an average cost of £4,337 (including travel and subsistence), half of which is provided by the Employment Service and half by the Benefits Agency. All personal advisers are fully trained in the skills and knowledge required to deal with the client group, and specifically in jobsearch activity; benefits and allowances training; advanced interviewing and presentational, marketing and representational skills.

The Single Gateway pilots will provide the information we need to determine the optimum investment in training for our personal advisers. The programme of learning we are currently developing will, however, ensure that personal advisers have the necessary balance of skills in order to deal with a wide range of clients in differing circumstances.

Mr. Duncan Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what proportion of advisers in the Single Gateway to Benefit will be trained to deal with all areas of special needs in each interview centre. [73991]

Angela Eagle: One of the key questions which the single gateway pilots will help us address is how far it is reasonable to expect one individual to be able to deal with the special needs of all our customers. In the initial stages of the pilots we will be setting up adviser teams. Each team will have the range of expertise required.

Mr. Duncan Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security, pursuant to his oral statement of 23 February 1999, Official Report, column 225, what estimate he has made of the total number of personal advisers required for the Single Gateway to Benefit when it is rolled out nationally in its final stage. [73987]

Angela Eagle: We will use the single gateway pilots to determine the number of personal advisers that would be required if the Single Work-Focused Gateway were to be rolled out nationally. We will consider national implementation in the light of these findings.

Mr. Duncan Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what proportion of personal advisers required for the Single Gateway to Benefit is planned to be recruited from outside the employment and benefit agencies. [73988]

Angela Eagle: The recruitment arrangements for Personal Adviser posts have been developed to fill posts, as far as possible, using existing staff in the Employment Service, the Benefits Agency and the Local Authorities. Staff whose current job is directly affected by the introduction of Single Work-Focused Gateway will have priority.

Staff will be selected for Personal Adviser posts on the basis of their suitability and competence for the work. There is no pre-determined proportion of posts to be filled by staff from the Employment Service, the Benefits Agency or the Local Authorities. If there are insufficient suitable internal candidates to fill posts, external recruitment will be considered.

Four of the pilots will be run by the private/voluntary sectors. They may wish to use their own staff to undertake the service or may contract existing Employment Service, Benefits Agency and Local Authority staff.

CSA Computer System

Mr. Rendel: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security (1) when the contract to develop the new CSA computer system under the ACCORD project will be formally awarded; and if he will make a statement; [74224]

(2) how much the contract to develop the new CSA computer system under the ACCORD project will cost; and when the money for it was authorised. [74227]

Angela Eagle: In December 1998 the Department announced the setting up of the Modern Service One Project (MS1). This project represents the first key stage of the strategy to transform the Department's service delivery and supporting information systems in line with our objectives for modernising the service.

The modernisation of the Child Support Computer System is being taken forward as part of the MS1 Project. Negotiations are proceeding with AFFINITY under the ACCORD arrangements for the delivery of the IS/IT products required to support MS1. Currently the MS1 project is working with AFFINITY in the clarification and development of more detailed requirements and high level design of the first key products to be delivered. It is anticipated that this work, scheduled to take three months, will enable the Department to finalise contracted arrangements. Until the negotiations are complete costings for the new Child Support Computer System will not be available.

Mr. Rendel: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many hours downtime the current CSA computer system has experienced each week in (a) 1996–97 and (b) 1997–98. [74225]

Angela Eagle: The information is in the table and shows the weeks in which there was downtime in 1996–91 and 1997–98.

| Period week commencing | Downtime Hours |
|---|---|
| Service availability—by week—1996–97 | |
| 1 April 1996 | 1.60 |
| 29 April 1996 | 0.48 |
| 27 May 1996 | 0.08 |
| 17 June 1996 | 4.32 |
| 29 July 1996 | 7.90 |
| 12 August 1996 | 0.50 |
| 21 October 1996 | 1.91 |
| 4 November 1996 | 0.60 |
| 11 November 1996 | 0.10 |
| 18 November 1996 | 0.30 |
| 6 January 1997 | 0.50 |
| 3 February 1997 | 0.50 |
| 10 February 1997 | 0.10 |
| Service availability—by week—1997–98 | |
| 14 April 1997 | 0.10 |
| 21 April 1997 | 0.10 |
| 28 April 1997 | 0.10 |
| 12 May 1997 | 9.66 |
| 2 June 1997 | 1.00 |
| 30 June 1997 | 1.70 |
| 14 June 1997 | 0.10 |
| 28 July 1997 | 0.30 |
| 11 August 1997 | 0.10 |
| 26 January 1998 | 0.98 |
| 16 March 1998 | 0.32 |

Notes:
The downtime is attributable to the Child Support System Mainframe and the software that runs on it.

Television Licence Fee

Mr. MacShane: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what percentage of the income of a retired man on a single pension is represented by the cost of the annual BBC licence fee. [74069]

Mr. Timms: It is estimated that the BBC licence fee for a colour television set represented 1 per cent. of the average annual gross income of a single retired man on a State Pension in 1996–97.

Poverty Report

Mr. Rendel: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if responsibility for the production of the annual poverty report in relation to Scotland will fall to his Department or to the new Scottish Executive. [74231]

Angela Eagle: The Government plan to report on tackling the causes of poverty and social exclusion on a UK-wide basis.

Mr. Rendel: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what statistics he will collect and publish as part of the poverty report. [74229]

Angela Eagle: We will be drawing on a wide range of statistical information looking at the causes of poverty and social exclusion. The report will also contain information on indicators of success.

Mr. Rendel: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what targets he will set for (a) his Department and (b) other Departments in his annual poverty report. [74230]

Angela Eagle: This report will act as a cross-departmental framework for tackling the causes of poverty and social exclusion. It will include information on indicators of success, drawing on targets already in place or currently being developed, against which we can chart progress.

Mr. Rendel: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security when he expects to publish the first annual poverty report. [74228]

Angela Eagle: We aim to publish the first annual report on tackling poverty and social exclusion later this year, a final date is yet to be set.

LORD CHANCELLOR'S DEPARTMENT

Access to Justice Bill

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Minister of State, Lord Chancellor's Department what plans he has to inform and advise the public about changes to legal aid following the publication of the Access to Justice Bill [Lords]. [73377]

Mr. Hoon: The Access to Justice Bill was published on 2 December 1998, but the Government's proposals to reform legal aid were first outlined in October 1997. Since then, my Department and the Legal Aid Board have publicised them in numerous speeches and interviews and in articles in the media. Consultation papers have been published on various aspects of the reforms. The White paper, Modernising Justice, published in December 1998, set out the Government's intentions and a summary of the White paper has been widely circulated. The full text of the White paper is also available on the Internet. Explanatory notes for the Access to Justice Bill are also publicly available.

Decree Absolute Index

Ms Oona King: To ask the Minister of State, Lord Chancellor's Department what plans he has to make the Decree Absolute Index open to public inspection without the present fee. [73469]

Mr. Hoon: There are no plans to allow public inspection of the Decree Absolute Index free of charge. However, the usual fee remission and exemption rules do apply.

Community Project Scheme

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Minister of State, Lord Chancellor's Department how many visits by magistrates have taken place under the community project scheme run by the Magistrates' Association and partially funded by his Department at (a) schools and (b) community groups, since the scheme began. [73613]

Mr. Hoon: The Magistrates in the Community Project was established in 1995 and was developed from the Schools Project. In the last three years there were 5,400 visits to schools and 1,980 visits to community groups, a total of 7,380 visits.

Scriveners' Company

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Minister of State, Lord Chancellor's Department, (1) pursuant to his answer of 22 February 1999, Official Report, column 44, concerning representations from the Scriveners' Company, what other representations he has received concerning proposals to amend the Scriveners' jurisdiction; [73285]

(2) pursuant to his answer of 22 February 1999, Official Report, column 44, what representations he has received on proposals to amend scriveners' jurisdiction from sources other than the Scriveners' Company. [73972]

Mr. Flight: To ask the Minister of State, Lord Chancellor's Department (1) what representations he has received calling for the abolition of the monopoly of the Worshipful Company of Scriveners of notarial work in London; [73468]

(2) what discussions he has had regarding the proposal to end the monopoly of the Worshipful Company of Scriveners of notarial work in London. [73467]

Mr. Chope: To ask the Minister of State, Lord Chancellor's Department how many responses were received to his consultation on the abolition of the scriveners' jurisdiction. [74214]

Mr. Hoon: In the course of the review of the monopoly undertaken by the Department last year, the Lord Chancellor received representations from 12 parties. Of these, six were in favour of ending the monopoly, four were in favour of retaining the monopoly, and two were neutral. The respondents were:

In favour of abolition of the monopoly:

The Office of Fair Trading

The Law Society

The Association of Solicitor Notaries in Greater London

Mr. Kober-Smith

Mr. Hartwig

Ms Roney

In favour of retention

The Worshipful Company of Scriveners

The Society of Public Notaries of London

John Venn & Co.

Mr. O'Meara

Neutral

The Faculty Office of the Archbishop of Canterbury

The Notaries' Society.

The Lord Chief Justice, the Bar Council, the Institute of Legal Executives, and the Corporation of London were also consulted but did not make any representations.

Single Currency

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Minister of State, Lord Chancellor's Department what plans he has to issue information from his Department to help the public make an informed decision when they vote on the single currency. [73579]

Mr. Hoon: Any plans by the Government to issue information during a referendum campaign on whether or not the UK should join the single currency would be made in the light of the Government's response to the recommendations from the Neill Committee on the conduct of the referendums. The Government will announce their conclusions on those recommendations when my right hon. Friend the Home Secretary publishes a White Paper and draft Bill before the summer recess.

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Minister of State, Lord Chancellor's Department if he will list the subject areas within her Department's responsibilities which will be covered by the information campaign on Britain's membership of a single currency. [73664]

Mr. Hoon: The Treasury will continue its dialogue with key external bodies to determine what information the public and business would need at each stage of the changeover process. Any information campaign would cover key concerns that the public and business may have. Chapter eight of the Treasury's Outline National Changeover Plan provides further information. Copies of the Plan are available in the House Library.

Jurors (Payment)

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Minister of State, Lord Chancellor's Department what is the daily allowance for people on jury service; and what plans he has to uprate the allowance. [73303]

Mr. Hoon: The daily allowances where the periods of time over which earnings or benefit are lost or additional expense is incurred are: Up to 4 hours—£24.84 and more than 4 hours—£49.68. Where a juror has served on more than 10 days, they can claim up to a maximum of £99.37 for each day over the tenth day. We will be considering whether or not the allowances should be increased.

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Minister of State, Lord Chancellor's Department if he will introduce a system of allowances for jurors based on their actual income loss. [73301]

Mr. Hoon: It is necessary to place a limit on the amount of financial loss allowance payable to jurors to ensure that the expenditure from the public purse is not excessive. There are no plans to alter the current system, which allows jurors to receive up to £49.68 per day for loss of earnings, rising to a daily maximum of £99.37 after 10 days of jury service. Courts will listen sympathetically to applications for excusal or deferral if financial hardship might result.

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Minister of State, Lord Chancellor's Department what reports he has received of jurors seeking to evade jury service because they cannot afford the loss of income to their business. [73658]

Mr. Hoon: I understand that there have been occasional complaints from self employed people called for jury service. Generally, these are dealt with at the originating court and information is not kept centrally.

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Minister of State, Lord Chancellor's Department on what basis the current level of juror allowance is set. [73304]

Mr. Hoon: The allowances are broadly based on the average earnings figures. For employed people, they are not subject to deductions for income tax or national insurance. They are updated periodically to allow for inflation. All increases are approved by the Treasury.

Zimbabwe

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Minister of State, Lord Chancellor's Department what official visits he, his Ministers or officials have paid to Zimbabwe since May 1997; whom they met; and what was discussed. [73463]

Mr. Hoon: Since May 1997 neither myself, the Lord Chancellor, nor any officials from my Department have made any official visits to Zimbabwe.

Air Miles

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Minister of State, Lord Chancellor's Department how many Air Miles have been earned by (a) him and (b) the Lord Chancellor; and how they propose to use them. [73339]

Mr. Hoon: The Government's policy on the use and disposal of Air Miles was set by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister on 12 January 1999, Official Report, column 141.

Detail information on any Air Miles earned by Ministers as a result of official travel is not recorded centrally.

Barristers' Renumeration

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Minister of State, Lord Chancellor's Department what is the minimum amount to which a junior barrister would be entitled when representing a client on legal aid for one day. [73302]

Mr. Hoon: Legal aid renumeration regulations do not set minimum entitlements.

AGRICULTURE, FISHERIES AND FOOD

Fisheries

Mrs. Butler: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what is the reduction in the number of foreign vessels licensed by his Department over the last two years; and what steps those vessels are taking to maintain an economic link with the United Kingdom. [74617]

Mr. Morley: Following changes in registration requirements in 1993 information is no longer maintained on the beneficial ownership of UK registered fishing vessels. However, we estimate that over the last 2 years the number of over 10 metre vessels which are part or wholly owned by overseas interests has fallen from some 160 to 140.

From 1999 onwards all vessels fishing against the UK's quotas are required to demonstrate that a satisfactory economic link is maintained with our coastal communities. That link may be achieved by landing at least 50 per cent. of the vessel's catch of quota stocks in the UK, by employing a crew of whom 50 per cent. are normally resident in a UK coastal area, by incurring operating expenditure in the UK for goods and services provided in UK coastal areas or by demonstrating an economic link by other means providing sufficient benefit to populations dependent on fisheries and relative industries. Responsibility for maintaining an economic link rests with the vessel owner and compliance will be assessed annually after the conclusion of each quota year.

There is clear evidence that these new arrangements, which have been blessed by the Commission, are being taken very seriously. Although vessel owners are not required to give notice of the means by which they will be achieving an economic link there has been a series of discussions with the Fisheries Departments about the means by which satisfactory links can be established.

As a result of such discussions we have accepted that some 17 vessels belonging to the North Sea Fish Producers Organisation may achieve part of their economic link by making part of their annual quota allocation available for redistribution by the Fisheries Departments, with the remainder of their link being achieved through other means such as landings, crewing or expenditure in the UK. The quota, which will consist of 50 tonnes of North Sea sole along with smaller quantities of turbot and brill and Channel plaice, will be used to extend the fishing opportunities for the inshore fleet and in particular the under 10 metre vessels.

Genetically Modified Foods

Mr. Baker: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food, pursuant to the answer of 2 February 1999, Official Report, column 604, to the Member for North Cornwall (Mr. Tyler), what was the date of the first assessment by his Department of the impact of genetically modified feed material on human health; if he will list the studies commissioned in this area with the dates of those studies; and if he will make a statement. [73400]

Mr. Rooker [holding answer 1 March 1999]: The implications for human health from the use of animal feed materials derived from a genetically modified crop were first considered in 1994.

Work was commissioned in 1996 with the Laboratory of the Government Chemist to determine the effects of processing on maize by-products, in connection with the application for a marketing consent for pest resistant maize. A further MAFF-funded study at Leeds University has looked at the various parameters used to process animal feeds and their effect on DNA; this was completed in 1998.

More recently, follow-up work has been commissioned with ADAS, to investigate the effects of processing on DNA in certain feeds under controlled commercial conditions.

There has been other relevant work which has considered the potential for gene transfer from GM organisms to gut bacteria.

Mr. Baker: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what assessment he has made of the agricultural implications of the introduction of genetically modified crops into United Kingdom agriculture. [73401]

Mr. Rooker [holding answer 1 March 1999]: The Government believe that there are potential benefits to UK agriculture from the introduction of genetically modified crops. At the same time we recognise that there are widespread concerns about potential risks which they may pose to the agricultural environment. In response to these two considerations, we have set in hand a programme of research into the potential risks, and are proceeding with caution at the farm level by arranging a limited number of field-scale trials this year with full ecological monitoring.

Ms Walley: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will place in the Library responses to his Department's consultation document on genetically modified herbicide-resistant crops in the United Kingdom; and if he will make a statement. [72227]

Mr. Rooker: The comments on this discussion paper (issued on 10 July 1997) can be found in the Libraries of the House, and are available for viewing by the public on request in my Department's library at Whitehall Place.

The responses received were taken fully into account when formulating the statement I made to the House of Lords Select Committee on European Legislation on 21 October 1998.

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will make a statement on the reports from outside bodies on genetically modified food received by his Department in September 1998. [73502]

Mr. Rooker: The Government welcome all reports by outside bodies that make a constructive contribution to the debate about genetically modified (GM) food and biotechnology. In this context, the Government particularly welcomed the Royal Society report on GM foods and crops published in September 1998.

Sir Teddy Taylor: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what discussions he has had with the Catering Committee about genetically modified foods in the House; and if he will make a statement. [72999]

Mr. Rooker: I have had no such discussions with the House Catering Committee on this matter.

I would, however, refer the hon. Member to the statement issued by Sue Harrison, the Director of Catering Services and Head of the Refreshment Department for the House of Commons, on 17 February 1999, in which she makes it clear that although the use of foods containing genetically modified (GM) organisms is avoided wherever possible, there is no outright ban on the use of such foods in the House of Commons dining rooms and cafeterias.

The Government continue to be committed to ensuring that all GM foods are clearly labelled to enable all consumers, including hon. Members, to be able to make an informed choice about whether or not to eat such foods.

Sir Teddy Taylor: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what powers Her Majesty's Government have to impose a moratorium on the production and sale of genetically modified foods (a) with and (b) without EU permission. [72998]

Mr. Rooker: Under Article 12 of the EC Novel Foods Regulation (258/97), a member state may act to either temporarily restrict or suspend the trade in, and the use of, an approved novel food or food ingredient in its territory if as a result of new information, or a reassessment of existing information, it has detailed grounds for believing that its use endangers human health or the environment. In such cases, it is required to immediately inform the European Commission of its decision. The European Commission then has three months from the date of referral to resolve the matter or adopt the member state's proposed measure.

Sir Teddy Taylor: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will introduce legislation to require all genetically modified foods to be clearly labelled when offered for sale to the general public. [72997]

Mr. Rooker: It is already a requirement under EC law (EC Regulations 258/97 and 1139/98) that foods are labelled to inform consumers when their content has been genetically modified. GB legislation to enforce Regulation 1139/98, which requires all foods containing genetically modified soya and maize to be clearly labelled, will be brought into force as quickly as parliamentary procedures allow.

Quarantine

Mr. Wigley: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will make a statement on the outcome of the review of quarantine rules in the cases of blind people who need their guide dogs to accompany them on visits abroad. [72822]

Mr. Rooker [holding answer 1 March 1999]: The Government are considering the outcome of the consultation on the review of quarantine rules undertaken by the Advisory Group on Quarantine. We will announce a specific way forward as soon as we can.

Sir George Young: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what plans he has to amend the secondary legislation on quarantine to make it compatible with European Community law. [72907]

Mr. Rooker: The Government are considering the outcome of the consultation on the report of the Advisory Group on Quarantine, which recommended changes to the quarantine system. Implementing such changes would require legislative amendment.

Sir George Young: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what contingency plans he has drawn up in case his defence in respect of the Quarantine Abolition Fighting Fund application for judicial review should fail. [73000]

Mr. Rooker: Any action that the Department took following the judicial review would depend on the terms of the judgment, whatever that might be.

Mr. Malins: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will authorise the release from quarantine of clinically healthy dogs and cats which show valid serological evidence of immunity to rabies; and if he will make a statement. [72942]

Mr. Rooker: No. The Government are considering the outcome of the consultation on the review of quarantine rules undertaken by the Advisory Group on Quarantine. The Advisory Group recommended that changes to the present system should not be introduced until an alternative administrative and operational infrastructure is in place.

BSE

Mr. Charles Kennedy: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will make a statement on reports that files on BSE controls between 1990 and 1995 are missing from his Department. [72292]

Mr. Nick Brown: All the material facts about Departmental papers have been passed to the BSE Inquiry. It would not be appropriate or fair for me to make any comment while that Inquiry is still in progress.

Beef Ban

Mr. Yeo: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what advice he has received from the Government's Chief Scientist about banning beef on the bone. [72611]

Mr. Nick Brown: None. This is primarily a matter for the Chief Medical Officer, Professor Liam Donaldson, who advised me and my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Health after he had considered the most recent scientific assessment by the Spongiform Encephalopathy Advisory Committee.

Consultation Exercise

Mr. Yeo: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what is the latest possible date for responses to the consultation exercise, Towards a New Direction for UK Agriculture. [66906]

Mr. Nick Brown: There is no specific close down date. Responses will be taken into account in decisions on the national implementation of CAP reforms over the foreseeable future. Those received while negotiations are still continuing will be fed into the final stages of that process.

Beef on the Bone

Mr. Yeo: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food (1) when he expects to make a decision about the lifting of the ban on beef on the bone; [68105]

(2) what is the current advice he has received from the Chief Medical Officer on the safety of beef on the bone. [68059]

Mr. Nick Brown: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given to my hon. Friend the Member for Wirral, South (Mr. Chapman) on 4 February 1999, Official Report, columns 1077–78.

Mr. Yeo: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will publish the advice of the Chief Medical Officer on the safety of beef on the bone in each of the last three years. [68060]

Mr. Nick Brown: The advice to Ministers on this matter, given by the then Chief Medical Officer, Sir Kenneth Calman, on 3 December 1997, was the subject of a Department of Health Press Release issued on 5 December 1997. Further advice from his successor, Professor Liam Donaldson, was given in a memorandum on 18 January and published on 4 February. Both the Department of Health Press Release and the memorandum are available in the Library of the House.

Bovine TB

Mr. Drew: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food (1) when he plans to renew support for research into bovine TB traces in badgers killed by road traffic accidents; [73216]

(2) in what form the results of research into bovine TB traces in badgers killed by road traffic accidents will be published; and when he expects such results to be available. [73217]

Mr. Rooker: The Krebs report and that of the Independent Scientific Group recommended a limited reintroduction of the Road Traffic Accident survey as part of a programme to establish the prevalence of TB among badgers. We are currently considering the implementation of these recommendations and an announcement, including details of data publication, will be made when a decision is reached.

Novel Foods

Mr. Yeo: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will list those matters that have been referred to the Standing Committee for Foodstuffs under Regulation (EC) No. 258/97 concerning novel foods and novel food ingredients. [69871]

Mr. Nick Brown: The following matters have been discussed at the Standing Committee for Foodstuffs under Regulation 258/97 since it came into force in May 1997:

Lactulose
Hemp extract
Soya and Maize labelling
Psyllium seed Husk
Sitostanal esters
Stevia rebaudiana
Erythritol
Phospholids
Genetically modified tomato products
Phytosterol esters
Olestra
High pressure processing
Linola
Criteria for accepting notifications under article 3(4) of regulation 258/97
Oilseed rape oil
Processed genetically modified maize
Interesterified fats
Genetic modification issues

Mr. Yeo: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will list for each of the initial assessments in connection with the placing on the market of genetically modified novel foods or novel food ingredients, pursuant to Article 4 of Regulation (EC) No. 258/97, the comments or reasoned objections made by (a) himself, (b) other Member States and (c) the European Commission. [69874]

Mr. Nick Brown [holding answer 8 February 1999]: Initial assessments under EC Regulation 258/97 have been made for the following novel and GM foods: Stevia rebaudiana, phospholipids, chicory, and tomatoes (for processing).

The UK Advisory Committee for Novel Foods and Processes (ACNFP) concluded that there was insufficient information provided to be able to come to a view on the safety of the Stevia rebaudiana, chicory and phospholipids. Concern was also expressed about the lack of suitable labelling proposals for the latter two. The ACNFP concluded that the GM tomato products were as safe as processed products from non-GM tomatoes.

I am pressing the European Commission to develop clear rules on confidentiality to enable us to publish details of comments or reasoned objections made by other Member States relating to novel food applications.

Winemaking Industry

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will make a statement on the current situation of the English winemaking industry. [73503]

Mr. Morley: In recent years the English and Welsh wine industry has been remarkably successful and innovatory, having made particular progress with the development and production of sparkling wine. English and Welsh wine is very much on the edge of the major wine producing area of Europe and because of this there are inevitable difficulties of climate, relatively low yields and other uncertainties. This has led to the cessation of production of some marginal vineyards in recent years. However, I am sure the industry can look to the future with confidence. My colleagues and I take every opportunity to promote its products.

Air Miles

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food how many air miles have been earned by him and each of his ministers; and how he proposes to use them. [73330]

Mr. Nick Brown: The Government's policy on the use and disposal of air miles was set out by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister on 12 January 1999, Official Report, column 141.

Detailed information on any air miles earned by Ministers as a result of official travel is not recorded centrally.

Ministerial Meetings (US Ministers)

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food how many times Ministers in his Department have met their counterparts in the US Administration since 1 June 1998, indicating the dates and locations of each meeting, the Ministers involved, and the name of the US counterpart. [71982]

Mr. Nick Brown: I met my US counterpart, Mr. Dan Glickman the US Agriculture Secretary, on 22 January 1999 in Berlin for a formal bilateral meeting to discuss issues of mutual concerns.

Cattle Tagging

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will make representations to the European Commission regarding new cattle tagging requirements to be implemented on 1 January 2000 in respect of the particular difficulty that these will present to commoners in the New Forest. [73009]

Mr. Rooker: Cattle need to be tagged early in their lives so they can be traced and it is in the farming industry's interest to ensure this happens. Currently cattle eartags must be applied within 30 days of the birth of an animal. For dairy animals, one of the eartags required must be applied within 36 hours.

The 30 day deadline will reduce to 20 days on 1 January 2000. If there are major practical difficulties with this next year, we will look at bringing these to the attention of the European Commission.

Organic Farming

Mr. Soley: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will make a statement on the level of financial support in the EU for organic farming. [72959]

Mr. Morley: Aid actually paid varies considerably between and within member States both in respect of levels of aid and types of production. EC Regulation 2078/92 sets out the limits on EU funding towards such aid.

Following the recommendation of the Select Committee on Agriculture and having taken views from consumers, environmentalists and farmers, we have announced plans to almost double the rate of aid available to farmers in England converting to organic practices. Subject to the approval of Parliament, the new rates will be introduced shortly.

Fishing Vessels (Inspections)

Mr. Gill: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food how many fishing vessels were boarded by fisheries inspectors in the last year for which records are available; how many such actions resulted in legal proceedings for breach of regulations; and what was the nationality of the vessels concerned. [73282]

Mr. Morley: During 1998, the UK enforcement authorities boarded 4,189 fishing vessels at sea. Those boardings resulted in the masters and/or owners of 19 vessels being successfully prosecuted for breaches of fisheries regulations. The nationality of the vessels concerned were 8 UK, 5 Belgian, 5 French and 1 Irish. There are some cases which are still being processed and the numbers of prosecutions may therefore rise.

Countryside Stewardship Scheme

Ms Keeble: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food how many applications made to the countryside stewardship scheme have been (a) approved and (b) funded in (i) 1996–97, (ii) 1997–98 and (iii) 1998–99. [73098]

Mr. Morley: The Ministry only approves applications for which funding is available. The number of applications approved in each year are as follows:

| Financial years | Approved applications |
|---|---|
| 1996–97 | 1,135 |
| 1997–98 | 1,172 |
| 1998–99 | 1,272 |

To date

Ministerial Visits

Mr. Gray: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will list the parliamentary constituencies which he has visited in an official capacity in the past 12 months. [71348]

Mr. Nick Brown [holding answer 15 February 1999]: I have visited the following parliamentary constituencies in an official capacity since my appointment as Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food:

Battersea
Cardiff, Central Cotswold
Dumfries
East Lothian
Edinburgh, Central Exeter
Fermanagh and South Tyrone
Harrogate and Knaresborough
Hereford
Hexham
Kensington and Chelsea
Kingston and Surbiton
Lagan Valley
Livingston
Mid Ulster
Midlothian
Montgomeryshire
North Cornwall
North Norfolk
North-West Norfolk
Northavon
Oxford, East
Plymouth, Devonport
Plymouth, Sutton
Roxburgh and Berwickshire
South Down
South-East Cambridgeshire
South-West Devon
South-West Norfolk
Teignbridge
Tiverton and Honiton
Torridge and West Devon
Totnes
Truro and St. Austell
Upper Bann
Vale of York
Vauxhall
West Tyrone
Workington

Departmental Policies

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what systems he has in place to ensure that policies being developed by his Department are subject to a crime impact (a) assessment and (b) audit and are not likely to lead to enhanced criminal opportunities. [72750]

Mr. Morley [holding answer 24 February 1999]: I refer the right hon. Member to the reply given by my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for the Home Department in relation to departmental co-operation, on 24 February 1999, Official Report, column 311. I can also confirm that MAFF's policies are subject to audit monitoring to prevent and detect fraud, both internal and external to the Department. In particular, MAFF applies controls to guard against fraud and irregularities in administering Common Agricultural Policy schemes. These controls are subject to regular audit under EU procedures.

ENVIRONMENT, TRANSPORT AND THE REGIONS

Railway Improvements

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions how many (a) new stations were opened and (b) miles of track were restored to use for passenger services in each of the years between 1985–86 and 1997–98. [73170]

Dr. Reid: The table shows the number of new stations opened in each of the years between 1985–86 and 1997–98. Statistics from 1994 onwards were supplied by Railtrack, which was established on 1 April 1994 and privatised on 20 May 1996.

| Year | Stations opened |
| 1985 | 19 |
| 1986 | 4 |
| 1987 | 6 |
| 1988 | 23 |
| 1989 | 15 |
| 1990 | 20 |
| 1991 | 6 |
| 1992 | 15 |
| 1993 | 14 |
| 1994 | 16 |
| 1995 | 10 |
| 1996 | 4 |
| 1997 | 3 |
| 1998 | 8 |

The British Railways Board has no central record of annual mileage of track restored to use for passenger services. Since 1994, Railtrack have restored 37 miles of track to passenger use.

PCV Licences

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what measures his Department has taken to facilitate speedier delivery of PCV licences via the DVLA in Swansea. [73096]

Ms Glenda Jackson: All applications for vocational (lorry and bus driver) licences are given high priority by the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency. The current service standard target is to deliver 95 per cent. of licences to applicants within 9 working days of receipt which includes postage time. The Agency is currently bettering this target by one day. The remaining applications—which are subject to conduct investigations by the Traffic Commissioners or medical consideration by the Agency's doctors—are normally cleared within 20 working days.

Applications can be submitted in multi-batches by training organisations and special provisions exist for licences to be collected from the Agency.

Jubilee Line Extension

Mr. Ottaway: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what is his current estimate of the total cost of constructing the Jubilee Line extension; and if he will make a statement on the changes since his previous estimate. [73001]

Ms Glenda Jackson: London Transport's current estimate of the total cost of constructing the Jubilee Line Extension is £3.2 billion. The estimate referred to in my response of 4 November 1998, Official Report, column 567, was based on a cost review undertaken in August 1998 before the completion date was revised and a three-phase opening strategy adopted.

Local Government Expenditure

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions (1) if he will list for each (1) unitary authority, (2) shire county, (3) shire district, (4) metropolitan district and (5) London borough council (a) the real terms percentage increase in standard spending assessment between 1997–98 and 1998–99, (b) the real terms percentage increase in Revenue Support Grant between 1997–98 and 1998–99, (c) the value of reduction grants received in 1998–99, (d) the real terms percentage increase in non-domestic rate income between 1997–98 and 1998–99 and (e) the real terms percentage increase in total external support between 1997–98 and 1998–99; [73643]

(2) if he will list for each (1) unitary authority, (2) shire county, (3) shire district, (4) metropolitan district and (5) London borough council (a) the real terms cash increase in standard spending assessment between 1997–98 and 1998–99, (b) the real terms cash increase in Revenue Support Grant between 1997–98 and 1998–99, (c) the real terms cash increase in non-domestic rate income between 1997–98 and 1998–99, and (d) the real terms cash increase in total external support between 1997–98 and 1998–99. [73644]

Mr. Prescott: The information requested has been placed in the Library.

The real terms percentage difference between the data for 1997–98 and 1998–99 has been deflated by the GDP deflator, and expressed in terms of the 1998–99 equivalent. "Total External Support" has been defined as the sum of Revenue Support Grant, income from Non-Domestic Rates and Damping Grants. The data used for 1997–98 refer to the RSG calculated using the Adjusted 1997–98 SSAs.

The 1997–98 SSAs have been adjusted for: Local Government Reorganisation on 1 April 1998; the Personal Social Services SSA have been adjusted to include the indicative Special Transitional Grant for Community Care; and the Education SSA have been adjusted to include the deduction for nursery vouchers.

No adjustments have been made for the changes detailed in The Local Government Finance Report (England) 1997/1998: Amending Report 1999.

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will list for each (1) unitary authority, (2) shire county, (3) shire district, (4) metropolitan district and (5) London borough council (a) the real terms (i) percentage and (ii) cash increase in standard spending assessment between 1998–99 and 1999–2000, (b) the real terms (i) percentage and (ii) cash increase in revenue support grant between 1998–99 and 1999–2000, (c) the value of reduction grants that will be received in 1999–2000, (d) the real terms (i) percentage and (ii) cash increase in non-domestic rate income between 1998–99 and 1999–2000 and (e) the real terms (i) percentage and (ii) cash increase in total external support between 1998–99 and 1999–2000. [73645]

Mr. Prescott: The information requested has been placed in the Library.

The real terms percentage difference between the data for 1998–99 and 1999–2000 has been deflated by the GDP deflator, and expressed in terms of the 1999–2000 equivalent.

"Total External Support" has been defined as the sum of Revenue Support Grant, income from Non-Domestic Rates and Damping Grants.

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions (1) if he will list for each (1) unitary authority, (2) shire county, (3) shire district, (4) metropolitan district and (5) London borough council the real terms cash and percentage change between (A) 1997–98 and 1998–99 and (B) 1998–99 and 1999–2000 in (i) standard spending assessment and (ii) revenue support grant for (a) education services, (b) social services, (c) highways maintenance, (d) police services and (e) fire services; [73352]

(2) if he will list for each (1) unitary authority, (2) shire county, (3) shire district, (4) metropolitan district and (5) London borough council what percentage of the real terms cash change between (A) 1997–98 and 1998–99 and (B) 1998–99 and 1999–2000 in (i) standard spending assessment and (ii) revenue support grant has been ring-fenced for (a) education services, (b) social services, (c) highways maintenance, (d) police services and (e) fire services. [73353]

Mr. Prescott: A table showing the real terms cash change figures together with a table showing the real terms change figures expressed as a percentage of total standard spending assessment for the education block, the personal social services block, the highways maintenance block, the police block and the fire block have been placed in the library.

The 19897–98 SSAs have been adjusted for: Local Government Reorganisation on 1 April 1998: the Personal Social Services SSA have been adjusted to include the indicative Special Transitional Grant for Community Care: and the Education SSA have been adjusted to include the deduction for nursery vouchers.

No adjustments have been made for the changes detailed in The Local Government Finance Report (England) 1997–98: Amending Report 1999.

Although Standard Spending Assessments are determined for individual blocks of services, there is no obligation on authorities to adopt a similar pattern of spending; the SSAs are not ring-fenced.

Revenue Support Grant is a block grant which is not determined for individual services. It is not ring-fenced.

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will list for each (1) unitary authority,(2) shire county, (3) shire district, (4) metropolitan district and (5) London borough council their proposed Band D council tax rates for 1999–2000. [73379]

Mr. Prescott: The information requested is not yet available. The tax setting legislation gives Shire County Councils until 1 March to set a budget and issue a precept on their billing authorities for the year ahead. The other authorities listed have until 11 March to set a budget and council tax rates. In both instances, the authorities are required to inform me of their decisions within 7 days of taking them. As a result, my department intends to publish a Statistical Bulletin in the week beginning 22 March giving the council tax rates at each band that have been set for 1999–2000.

Hushkitted Aircraft

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what representations he has received concerning the threat of retaliatory measures against Concorde flights from Britain to the US following the imposition of environmental measures to ban hush-kit aircraft from the 1 April 2002 in Europe. [73971]

Ms Glenda Jackson: We have received representation from British Airways. The European Union draft Regulation on Hushkitted aircraft, which has passed its second reading in the European parliament, has not yet been adopted by the Council of Ministers.

Warcop to Appleby Railway Line

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions when the section of railway line from Warcop to Appleby in Cumbria was sold; to whom; and for what price. [73951]

Dr. Reid: The railway line from Warcop to Appleby was transferred to Sustrans for a nominal sum in May 1998 for use as a cycle path as part of the National Cycle Network. The transfer is subject to arrangements for shared use of the line with the Eden Valley Railway who are acquiring part of the trackbed from Sustrans.

Paved Areas (Chewing Gum Removal)

Mr. Martlew: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what is the estimated annual cost to local authorities for the removal of chewing gum from paved areas; and if he will make a statement. [73895]

Mr. Meale: Information on the cost to local authorities for the removal of chewing gum from paved areas is not collected centrally. The total cost of street cleansing for the local authorities in England 1997–98 was £342 million.

Council Tax

Mr. Ottaway: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will list for each notifiable authority in England the band D council tax for 1999–2000 and the change over that for 1998–99 in (a) cash and (b) percentage terms. [73928]

Ms Armstrong: The information requested is not yet available. The tax setting legislation gives major precepting authorities until 1 March to set a budget and issue a precept on their billing authorities for the year ahead and other authorities until 11 March to set their budgets and council tax rates. In both instances, the authorities are required to inform the Secretary of State of their decisions within 7 days of taking them. As a result, my department intends to publish a Statistical Bulletin in the week beginning 22 March giving the council tax rates that have been set at each band for 1999–2000.

Gas

Mrs. Brinton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry over the potential for carbon emission reductions which could be achieved by extending until 2002 the powers of the Director General of Gas Supply to set standards of performance with regard to the promotion of the efficient use of gas. [74284]

Mr. Meale: Ministers in the Department of the Environment, Transport and the Regions and the Department of Trade and Industry regularly discuss matters in which both Departments have an interest, including energy efficiency. These discussions are informal and private.

Energy Efficiency

Mrs. Brinton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what total level of investment in domestic energy efficiency he estimates will be required between now and 2010 in order to meet (a) the Kyoto 12.5 per cent. carbon dioxide reduction target and (b) a 20 per cent. target. [74288]

Mr. Meale: Our UK Climate Change Programme Consultation Paper discussed and invited comment on how the UK could meet its climate change objectives, including possible contributions from domestic energy efficiency. The Government are now considering responses and will develop and consult further on a new climate change programme for the UK in the light of this process.

Social Housing

Mr. Love: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what recognition will be given within planning projections for new housing over the next two decades to requirements for socially rented housing; and if he will make a statement. [74189]

Mr. Raynsford: The latest household projections published in 1995 identify the number of households expected to form over the period 1991–2016 but not the tenure of the housing they might occupy.

Welsh Highland Railway

Mr. Wigley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions on what date he received the report of the inspector into the application by the Ffestiniog Railway company to re-open the Welsh Highland Railway between Dinas and Porthmadog; and what was the average time taken by ministers to make a decision of such reports in the past three years. [74298]

Ms Glenda Jackson: The Inspector's report following the public inquiry into the Welsh Highland Railway was received on 22 April 1998. In those five Transport and Works Act cases where decisions have been taken by the Secretary of State in the last three years following a public inquiry, the average time has been between 12 and 13 months from receipt of the Inspector's report. Four reports are currently before the Secretary of State for determination in addition to that for the Welsh Highland Railway. These reports were received on 6 October 1997, 2 February 1998 (interim decision letter issued on 8 September 1998), 6 February 1998 and 23 February 1999.

Housing Stock (Local Authorities)

Mr. Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will list those local authorities which have successfully completed a large-scale voluntary transfer of their housing stock to date. [74156]

Mr. Raynsford [holding answer 2 March 1999]: Seventy-seven local authorities have successfully completed eighty-four large scale voluntary transfers of all or part of their housing stock to date. A list of those authorities is set out in chronological order.

French Transport Strikes

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will make a statement on the amount of compensation awarded to British transport companies affected as a result of French transport strikes; what proportion of overall claims have been settled; and what representations to the French Government he has made. [74437]

Dr. Reid: Some 1,200 British claims were made in respect of the 1996 French lorry drivers' strike. We understand that some 25 per cent. have so far received a favourable response. Precise figures are not available because claims were not dealt with centrally in France but were dealt with by Prefectures in the Departments in which blockades occurred. For the same reason, information about the amount of compensation paid is not available. We continue to work with the French authorities to secure the timely and fair consideration of claims.

Train Operating Companies

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what recent representations he has received in respect of the performance of train operating companies. [72480]

Ms Glenda Jackson: Since January, my Department and the Office of Passenger Rail Franchising have received almost 400 representations on the performance of train operating companies.

Red Routes (London)

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what is the current mileage of red routes in each London borough; what was the figure for each of the last five years; and what is the anticipated figure for 1999–2000. [73764]

Ms Glenda Jackson: The red route network was designated by Statutory Instrument in 1992 (SI 1992/1372). The breakdown by borough is given in the table. Since 1992 the SI has been amended twice (SI 1995/1130 and SI 1997/1001) to make small changes to the network in Ealing, Haringey, Hackney, Hillingdon and Lewisham and to correct minor descriptive errors. The programme for the implementation of the red route measures is set out in the Traffic Director's Annual Report, a copy of which is in the Library.

Bus Lanes (London)

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what is the length of bus lane for each London borough; what was the figure for each of the past five years; and what is the anticipated figure for 1999–2000. [73765]

Ms Glenda Jackson: I have placed the information requested in the Library.

Cycle Lanes (London)

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what is the current mileage of cycle lanes in London broken down by borough; what were the figures for (a) 1989–90 and (b) 1993–94; and what are the expected figures for 1999–2000. [73823]

Ms Glenda Jackson: The information requested on the length of cycle lanes for the years 1989–90 and 1993–94 is not available. This is before the work on the London Cycle Network commenced and therefore no central body existed to gather and co-ordinate the data. Approximately 190 miles of cycle network were in place when work started on the London Cycle Network in 1995–96; however, it is not known what proportion consisted of cycle lanes. The following table shows the existing lengths of the London Cycle Network on a borough-by-borough basis as at April 1998. The expected borough-by-borough figures for 1999–2000 are not yet available but it is anticipated that in total there will be 1,000 miles of the network in place by the end of this period.

Notes:

1. There have been slight modifications to the network since 1997.
2. The Traffic Director for London and the Highways Agency will also be making important contributions, along the Priority (Red) Routes and some Trunk Roads, to the provisions for Cyclists in London.

Strategic Rail Authority

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions when he will publish legislation to establish the proposed Strategic Rail Authority. [74419]

Dr. Reid: If legislative time becomes available, we will introduce a Bill to establish a Strategic Rail Authority this session. If time does not become available, then we will publish a draft Bill later this Session, for introduction as a priority at a subsequent opportunity.

Montreal Conference

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will consult the air transport (a) industry and (b) users prior to the Montreal Conference in May; and if he will make a statement on the position to be adopted by the Government at the Conference. [74412]

Ms Glenda Jackson: The International Civil Aviation Organisation will hold a Diplomatic Conference in May for the purpose of adopting a new convention intended to replace all previous instruments of the Warsaw Convention for International Carriage by Air. Officials from my Department have been involved in the development of the new convention and have formally consulted representatives of UK airlines, airline users and principal practitioners in international air law. The views received will be taken into account by the Government at the Conference.

Rail Industry Subsidies

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what plans he has to change the subsidy arrangements for the United Kingdom rail industry. [74420]

Dr. Reid: We are determined to ensure that Railtrack has adequate incentives to perform effectively and efficiently, and to develop the network, meeting the needs of customers and funders. That could point to a proportion of Railtrack's access income being paid direct by the proposed Strategic Rail Authority, rather than via train operators. We have asked the Rail Regulator for a report on this matter.

Within the overall context of our plans for the railway, financial responsibility for those passenger services that both start and end in Scotland will be transferred to Scottish Ministers.

Rail Summit

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will make a statement on the outcome of the Rail Summit. [74418]

Dr. Reid: The Rail Summit was an important step towards our goal of creating within 10 years one of the best railway systems in the world. The passenger train operators and Railtrack share that aim and want to work together—and with government—to realise it.

At the Summit, the Government:

announced they were prepared to renegotiate existing franchises and specified the criteria against which applications would be judged; introduced Sir Alastair Morton as the new chairman of the British Railways Board and head of the shadow Strategic Rail Authority; launched the consultation exercise which will lead later in the year to the shadow SRA's strategic plan for the railway;

announced the start of work on a National Passengers Survey and on ways of measuring more accurately train operators' performance; promised legislation to regulate the rolling stock leasing companies if they do not voluntarily restrict their market power.

The passenger train operators jointly promised that:

on average, train services will be more punctual next year than they are now;

by 2002, half the current rolling stock fleet will have been replaced or refurbished;

by April next year, all stations in Great Britain will have passenger information systems; an additional £39m will be spent on measures to improve the security of passengers.

The industry has given a commitment to work to deliver real improvements which are measurable year on year. There will be a second Summit in spring next year to review progress and maintain the momentum which was created on 25 February.

Radionuclide Transfer (Departmental Report)

Mr. Alasdair Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will place in the Library a copy of his Department's report "An Assessment of Artificial Radionuclide Transfer from Sellafield to South West Scotland" by Professor Murdoch Baxter, dated March 1989 (reference DOE/RW/89/127. [73824]

Mr. Meale: Yes.

A21

Mr. Norman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions (1) if he will publish the evidence used by officials of his Department to conclude that the dualling of the A21 Tonbridge to Pembury road (a) will decrease peak time traffic delays by up to 3.5 minutes and (b) may affect the great crested newt; [74340]

(2) if he will place in the Library copies of the full cost-benefit analysis for the A21 Tonbridge to Pembury dualling proposal. [74341]

Ms Glenda Jackson: I have asked the Chief Executive of the Highways Agency, Mr. Lawrie Haynes, to write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Lawrie Haynes to Mr. Archie Norman, dated 3 March 1999:

The Minister for Transport, Glenda Jackson, has asked me to reply to you about the A21 Tonbridge to Pembury dualling proposals.

A copy of the full cost benefit analysis for the scheme is being placed in the House of Commons Library. This document was published at the time of the Public Inquiry in 1993 and includes the evidence used to conclude that the proposed dualling will decrease peak time traffic delays by up to 3.5 minutes.

A have asked for a copy of the Environmental Statement for the scheme to be sent to you. It was this document which noted that a pond occupied by great crested newts would be affected by the scheme. The document was published in 1992.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Disability Discrimination Act 1995

Mr. Berry: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment he has made of the impact on his Department's policies of the goods and services provisions of the Disability Discrimination Act 1995 to be implemented in October 1999. [71271]

Mr. Banks: We are acting to ensure that the Department's policies meet the needs of disabled people and that we comply with our legal requirements. The Department already takes positive steps to make it easier to disabled people to participate in the arts, sport and leisure pursuits. We shall continue to do so, not only by complying fully with new duties in the Disability Discrimination Act but by aiming to exceed them where appropriate.

One of the Department's main objectives is to widen and improve access for disabled people and other groups by embedding consultation and consideration of their needs in mainstream policies, and by means of the funding agreements being negotiated with its sponsored bodies. This includes the need to ensure that our policies and their outcomes comply with the law. This complements the guidance "Policy Appraisal for Equal Treatment" which the Cabinet Office issued to all Government Departments in November 1998, and which was signed jointly by my right hon. Friends the Minister for Women, the Secretary of State for Education and Employment and the Home Secretary.

The Department's Management Board monitors the Department's performance and that of its sponsored bodies and will publish information on the progress being made in this area, as will other Government Departments.

Millennium Dome

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) what provision has been made for the sale of (a) British and (b) other books at the Millennium Experience; [73087]

(2) what provision will be made inside the Millennium Dome for the sale of books. [64808]

Janet Anderson: The New Millennium Experience Company (NMEC) is in discussion with a number of publishers through its licensing agency about the production of a range of Millennium Experience books for all ages. These books will be sold through high street bookshops, retailers and through other distribution channels. As regards the Dome, the aim is to provide a range of special edition Millennium Experience books, and other printed material to meet visitor needs. These will be available through the NMEC's own retailing arrangements in the Dome.

Creative Industries Task Force

Mr. Soames: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will list the members of the Creative Industries Task Force; on how many occasions since its establishment it has met; who was present at each meeting; what its work in progress is; and what conclusions it has reached to date. [72905]

Janet Anderson: The members of the Creative Industries Task Force are as follows:

Work on the Task Force

The early work on the Creative Industries Task Force focused on mapping activity in the UK creative industries and assessing its economic value. The Task Force was responsible for the Creative Industries Mapping Document, which was published in November 1998. The Mapping Document has a practical application, besides providing a statistical analysis of the economic health of the creative industries.

The Creative Industries Task Force has now embarked on an ambitious work programme for the next 12–15 months, building on the findings in the Mapping Document. There are three key strands to the programme:

(a) a focus on generic issues which affect the creative industries such as the skills base, finance for creative ventures, export promotion and intellectual property. Sub-Groups, led by Task Force members, will look at these issues;

(b) an additional Sub-Group led by Richard Caborn will consider issues impacting on the creative industries at a regional level; and

(c) a series of short, generally industry-related, inquiries will be carried out.

Cumbria Tourist Board

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what plans he has to retain a separate Cumbria tourist board within the north-west region. [73642]

Janet Anderson: Cumbria Tourist Board, as are other regional tourist boards, is an independent commercial organisation and determines its own boundary. We wish to see the arrangements for all regional bodies continue on a basis which fosters close and co-operative working to support successful and sustainable development.

Sports Institute

Mr. Peter Bradley: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what progress he has made on the establishment of the UK Sports Institute. [72101]

Mr. Banks [holding answer 1 March 1999]: I refer my hon. Friend to the reply my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State gave to my hon. Friend the Member for Hove (Mr. Caplin) on 1 March 1999, Official Report, columns 535–37.

Television Licences

Mr. MacShane: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will discuss with relevant departments a reduction of the cost of the BBC licence fee to pensioners dependent solely on the state pension. [74043]

Janet Anderson [holding answer 2 March 1999]: The independent review panel currently considering the future funding of the BBC has also been asked to examine the structure of the existing concessionary television licence scheme and whether a suitable alternative structure could be available. The panel has invited representations on a number of areas, including the concessionary arrangements, and will report to my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State by the end of July this years. There will then be a period of public consultation on the panel's recommendations. It would not be right for the Government to preempt the outcome of the review.

Films (Lottery Funding)

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will list those films which have received lottery funding to date indicating (a) how much lottery money each received, (b) their total budgets, (c) their release dates, (d) the number of screens on which they opened and (e) their takings to date. [74239]

Janet Anderson [holding answer 2 March 1999]: There are no data available centrally on the numbers of screens on which lottery-funded films opened and the record of takings of these films is not fully tracked. Some data are available and I have today placed that information together with the other data requested, in the Libraries of the House.

CABINET OFFICE

Ministerial Group on Older People

Mrs. Gilroy: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office, pursuant to his answer of 1 February 1999, Official Report, column 517, which Ministers are members of the ministerial group on older people from the various departments he listed. [73694]

Mr. Kilfoyle: Membership of the group comprises those Ministers who have particular responsibilities for policy areas which affect older people. It includes me together with my right hon. and hon. Friends the Lord Privy Seal, the Minister of State, Department of Health, the hon. Member for Southampton, Itchen (Mr. Denham); the Minister of State, Department of Social Security; the Under-Secretary of State for Health, the hon. Member for Barrow and Furness (Mr. Hutton); the Minister for Transport in London; the Minister for London and Construction; the Minister of State, Home Office, the hon. Member for Brent, South (Mr. Boateng); the Economic Secretary; the Minister for Competition and Consumer Affairs; the Minister for the Arts; the Under-Secretary of State for Education and Employment, the hon. Member for Barking (Ms Hodge); the Minister of State, Lord Chancellor's Department; the Under-Secretary of State for Defence; the Under-Secretary of State for Northern Ireland; the Under-Secretary of State for Scotland, the hon. Member for Strathkelvin and Bearsden (Mr. Galbraith); and the Under-Secretary of State for Wales, the hon. Member for Cardiff, Central (Mr. Jones).

Other Ministers with an interest in a particular subject may also attend meetings of the group from time to time.

Civil Servants (Ethnic Origin)

Mr. Vaz: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office if he will provide a breakdown in (a) numerical and (b) percentage terms of the ethnic origin as of 1 May 1998 to 31 December 1998, of civil servants at each grade; and if he will further break down those of ethnic minority origin at each grade in (i) numerical and (ii) percentage terms into (1) Indian, (2) Pakistani, (3) Bangladeshi, (4) Chinese and (5) other and mixed Asian. [73695]

Mr. Kilfoyle: Provisional information at 1 October 1998, from Mandate, the Cabinet Office's personnel database, is set out in the table. It is not directly comparable to the information in the recently published Equal Opportunities in the Civil Service Data Summary which is based on staff in post at 1 April 1998. The table excludes staff in departments who do not provide data to Mandate. However, both the Data Summary and the table show that 5.7 per cent. of all staff were from ethnic minority groups.

[2] Responsibility levels are an approximate assignment of personnel to a level of seniority broadly equivalent to the former service wide grades. As departments restructure grades, it is increasingly difficult to assign certain posts to a precise responsibility level. This accounts for apparent fluctuations in the numbers and percentages at some levels.

Next Steps Report 1998

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office if he will make a statement on the 1998 Next Steps report. [75077]

Dr. Jack Cunningham: The Government have today published the 1998 Next Steps Report, Cm 4273, which has been laid in both Houses. This Report brings together performance and trend data on 136 executive agencies and two departments operating on Next Steps lines.

The Report shows that overall nearly 76 per cent. of targets were achieved and that, where comparisons can be made with previous years, performance against targets has improved in 52 per cent. of cases.

With the introduction of Public Service Agreements (PSAs), Government have set out in precise and quantified form what improvements it is seeking to achieve over the next 3 years. Agencies will have a very important part to play in helping Ministers deliver those results. Agencies' objectives and targets are being redefined to ensure that they reflect the Government's new objectives and priorities. The degree of challenge which is built in to the PSA targets will help to ensure that agency targets are themselves set at a sufficiently stretching level, encouraging agencies to be innovative and enterprising in tackling improvement.

The Government will be publishing before Easter a White Paper on "Modernising Government" which will set out a vision for the future of public services. One of its main themes will be the need to increase co-operation across traditional bureaucratic boundaries so that public services can be delivered more cost-effectively and be better tuned to the needs of the user. Agencies, as the main service delivery arm of the Civil Service, will have a vital role to play in fostering this growth in co-operative solutions.

It is essential that continuous pressure be applied to improve individual agency performance but this must be seen increasingly within the context of contribution to broader goals.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Debt Relief

Miss Geraldine Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent discussions she has had with non-Governmental organisations about the relief of developing countries' debt. [74030]

Clare Short: In February, I met the directors of the voluntary organisations which comprise the British Overseas Aid Group, (BOAG)—ActionAid, Oxfam, the Catholic Fund for Overseas Development (CAFOD), Christian Aid and Save the Children Fund—to discuss debt. In December, I also met BOND, which represents the smaller NGOs. We agreed that poverty reduction remains our central concern, and that we need to develop and strengthen the link between debt relief and poverty reduction. The UK is pressing for this issue to be considered during the fundamental review of the Heavily Indebted Poor Countries (HIPC) Initiative, which is now underway. The World Bank and the International Monetary Fund are holding a consultation meeting, including NGOs, in London on 5 March.

Genetically Modified Food

Mr. Dafis: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if she will make a statement on her Department's role in drawing up the recent joint ministerial written statement on genetically modified food. [74280]

Clare Short: My Department was not involved in drawing up the recent joint ministerial written statement on genetically modified food which focused on concerns within UK and Europe.

We will be publishing a paper later this month on our work relating to genetically modified organisms and how we propose to assist developing countries to strengthen their capacity to handle these important issues.

Mr. Dafis: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what research has been (a) carried out and (b) commissioned by her Department into the economic impact of the growing of genetically modified crops on small-scale farmers in developing countries. [74283]

Clare Short: My Department has not carried out any research into the economic impact of growing genetically modified crops on small-scale farmers in developing countries. However we have commissioned relevant studies from University of Birmingham and the International Crops Research Institute for the Semi-Arid Tropics, to assess the environmental and social risks of introducing new or transgenic plant types into the traditional pigeon pea seed production systems of small-scale farmers in India and, from University of Swansea, to undertake social and economic assessments of the potential impact of genetically male tilapia and transgenic tilapia on fish farming in Philippines.

The results of these studies will be published.

Biotechnological Inventions

Joan Ruddock: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment she has made of the likely impact on (a) indigenous and (b) local communities in developing countries of EU Patent Directive COM (95) 661 as it relates to intellectual property rights in genetic resources. [74494]

Clare Short: The European Directive on the Legal Protection of Biological Inventions (98/44/EC) addresses which biotechnological inventions can be patented in Europe and does not affect national patent laws elsewhere.

In reaching a Common Position by the Council of Ministers in February 1998, the UK made a statement noting that there had been no consideration as to whether the provisions of the Directive would be appropriate for other countries outside the European Union, in particular developing countries.

Southern Africa

Mr. Jim Murphy: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if she will list the financial aid from her Department and its predecessor in each of the past 10 years to Southern Africa for (a) education and (b) health projects. [73912]

Clare Short: The Department for International Development (DFID) does not provide financial aid in the form of budgetary support to governments in Southern Africa. Our partnerships in this region fund technical co-operation to build local capacity and make effective use of national resources.

DFID's contribution to education and health over the last ten years in Southern Africa is as follows:

PHARE and TACIS Programmes

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if she will make a statement on the future of (a) the PHARE programme and (b) the TACIS programme. [73278]

Clare Short [holding answer 25 February 1999]: (a) The European Commission has started consultations on new guidelines for the PHARE programme from 2000. We will be seeking to ensure the programme responds to the priority needs of countries preparing for accession to the European Union, addresses the quality of the transition process so that benefits are sustainable and brings benefits to all levels of society, includes effective measures to strengthen institutions and promote better public administration and draws from previous experience in ensuring funds are efficiently and effectively used.

(b) The current Tacis Regulation expires at the end of this year, and a draft Regulation for the period 2000–06 is now under consideration. The draft is broadly acceptable, but it contains a number of new initiatives on which we are seeking clarification.

Debt Repayment

Mr. Rowe: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much debt each of the 10 most highly-indebted countries repaid in each of the last three years. [73618]

Ms Hewitt: I have been asked to reply.

The table shows (£millions) debt repayments received by the UK in the last three years from the 10 countries identified by the IMF as potentially eligible for assistance under its Heavily Indebted Poor Countries (HIPC) initiative that have the highest absolute levels of debt.

Ministerial Expenditure

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what estimate he has made of expenditure on (a) ministerial pay, (b) ministerial domestic transport and (c) other ministerial expenses in (i) 1996–97, (ii) 1997–98, (iii) 1998–99 and (iv) 1999–2000; and if he will make a statement. [69263]

Mr. Dewar [holding answer 8 February 1999]: The table shows expenditure on Ministerial pay. The table also shows total non-pay expenditure for Ministerial offices. The amounts include travel and subsistence, office services and general administration costs for both Ministers and the staff of their offices. It is not possible to disaggregate these amounts into the categories requested. Expenditure for 1999–2000 cannot be forecast at present since this will depend on decisions about the number of Scottish Ministers who form the incoming devolved administration and about the future structure of the office of the Secretary of State for Scotland.

National Manpower Statistics from payroll Information and Statistics Division, NHS in Scotland

From 1 July 1999 this will be a matter for the Scottish Parliament.

Schizophrenia

Sir Alastair Goodlad: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many people with a main diagnosis of schizophrenia psychoses were admitted for a hospital stay more than once during the last year in Scotland. [73233]

Mr. Galbraith: The number of individual patients with a main diagnosis of schizophrenia psychoses admitted to mental illness hospitals and psychiatric units in Scotland during the year ending 31 March 1996 was 2,482, of which 675 were admitted more than once.

From 1 July 1999 this will be a matter for the Scottish Parliament.

Departmental Spending

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will give a breakdown of spending planned on other public services as set out in his answer of 17 July 1998, Official Report, columns 336–40, in (a) 1998–99, (b) 1999–2000, (c) 2000–01, (d) 2001–02 and (e) 2002–03; and if he will make a statement. [74338]

Mr. Dewar: A detailed breakdown of the figures for 1998–99 to 2001–02 was placed in the library of the House of Commons on 10 November 1998.

Roads Expenditure

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what are his estimates of planned expenditure on Scottish roads for each of the years (a) 2000–01, (b) 2001–02 and (c) 2002–03; if he will list for each of these years every project costing over £2 million over its project life; and if he will make a statement. [74241]

Mr. Macdonald: Expenditure on local roads is the responsibility of local authorities and details are not held centrally. The planned net expenditure on motorways and trunk roads in Scotland in 2000–01 and 2001–02, the latest year for which expenditure has been agreed, is £175.8 million and £186.2 million respectively. Our priorities are to maintain and repair the existing network and to meet the costs of projects contractually committed or announced. Project costs exceed £2 million on the A720, the M6, the A7 (Hawick Relief Road) and the A90 (Inchmichael Interchange). Further projects may be announced later.

From 1 July 1999 this will be a matter for the Scottish Parliament.

Scottish Enterprise

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what are the causes of the increase in planned expenditure by Scottish Enterprise between 2000–01 and 2001–02; and if he will make a statement. [74243]

Mr. Dewar: The increase in the planned expenditure by Scottish Enterprise between 2000–01 and 2001–02 primarily reflects the phased introduction of a number of new training initiatives announced by the Government last year as part of the New Deal and a re-instatement of provision for the delayed Hyundai project.

From 1 July the funding of Scottish Enterprise will be a matter for the Scottish Parliament.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Brit Awards

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list those ministers in his Department who were present at the recent Brit awards in an official capacity; and who or what organisation was acting as their sponsor or host. [73492]

Mr. Straw: The Minister of State, Home Office, my hon. Friend the Member for Brent, South (Mr. Boateng), attended the Brit Awards Ceremony on 23 February, as guest of the Director General of the British Phonographic

Industry Ltd., the representative body of the British Record Industry.

Single Currency

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list the subject areas within his Department's responsibilities which will be covered by the information campaign on Britain's membership of a single currency. [73665]

Mr. Straw: The Treasury will continue its dialogue with key external bodies to determine what information the public and business would need at each stage of the changeover process. Any information campaign would cover key concerns that the public and business may have. Chapter eight of the Treasury's Outline National Changeover Plan provides further information. Copies of the Plan are available in the Library.

Emergency Services (Integration)

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on progress towards integration of fire, police and ambulance control rooms. [73500]

Mr. George Howarth: I refer the right hon. Member to the reply which my right hon. Friend the Chief Secretary to the Treasury gave to my hon. Friend the Member for Preseli Pembrokeshire (Ms Lawrence) on 13 January 1999, Official Report, columns 193–96. £7.8 million has been provided to the Department of Health under the Invest to Save Budget for pilot joint call handling centres.

Police (Kingston-upon-Thames)

Mr. Ottaway: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many serving police officers there were in the London Borough of Kingston-upon-Thames (a) on 1 May 1997 and (b) at the latest available date. [73927]

Kate Hoey: The Commissioner of the Metropolitan Police tells me that he is unable to give the information in the form requested, as records are not broken down by the number of officers policing the London Borough of Kingston-upon-Thames. The nearest figures that can be provided are those for Kingston Division, which polices the London Borough of Kingston-upon-Thames together with half of the Borough of Elmbridge.

The relevant statistics are recorded within the Metropolitan police, twice yearly, at 1 January and 1 July. The number of serving police officers in Kingston Division on 1 July 1997 was 355. As at 1 March 1999, the number was 336.7.

Electoral Procedures

Mr. Love: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what issues are being considered by the Departmental working party on electoral procedures; when it will report to ministers; what account it has taken of the recent report from the Select Committee on Home Affairs (HC 768) of Session 1997–98; and if he will make a statement. [74314]

Mr. George Howarth: My working party on electoral procedures is currently considering a wide range of issues, under the following broad headings:

maximising electoral registration and voter participation;

access by the disabled and homeless to the electoral process;

rolling electoral registration;

publication and sale of the electoral register;

anonymous electoral registration;

absent voting arrangements;

polling station and count venue issues (including location, mobile and early polling stations, and security); automated voting/counting;

days and times of polling;

use of official poll cards, and publicity for elections; civics education and the electoral process; and the role of an electoral commission.

The Government have welcomed the report of the Home Affairs Select Committee inquiry into electoral law and administration as a valuable contribution to the continuing debate about improving participation in our electoral and democratic processes. The Committee acknowledged that my working party is the correct forum within which to take forward consideration of its proposals, conclusions and recommendations; and accepted that it would be difficult to give a full response while my working party continued to meet. I now anticipate that the final report of the working party will be published this summer, and that the Committee will receive its detailed response at around the same time.

Human Rights

Mr. Derek Twigg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when the Government expects to announce the outcome of its review of international human rights instruments. [75118]

Mr. Straw: I am placing in the Library a summary of the conclusions of the review.

On 27 January, I signed the Sixth Protocol to the European Convention on Human Rights. We shall also ratify the Second Optional Protocol to the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, without any reservation to preserve the use of the death penalty in wartime.

We shall ratify International Labour Organisation Convention 111 on discrimination in employment.

We intend to ratify the Seventh Protocol to the European Convention on Human Rights (ECHR) as soon as Parliament removes inconsistencies in our family law provisions. We will seek a suitable opportunity to propose those changes. We are also considering whether legislation is necessary to enable the United Kingdom to ratify the Fourth Protocol to the ECHR.

We shall look again at the rights of individual petition under the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, the United Nationals Convention Against Torture and the Union Nations Convention on the Elimination of Racial Discrimination once the Human Rights Act has been fully implemented. We have looked closely at the merits of adopting these additional rights, but have also taken in account the impact on the vital work of preparing for and implementing the Human Rights Act 1998. This is a major piece of legislation that demonstrates our commitment to the advancement of human rights.

Fire Service College

Ms Corston: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans he has for reviewing the future role of the Fire Service College. [75119]

Mr. Straw: The Government are committed to securing best value for money through regular and systematic reviews of the services which its agencies provide and how these are delivered.

In view of the continuing poor financial performance as a trading fund of the Fire Service College at Moreton in Marsh, I have decided to commission an immediate prior options review. This will consider the College's present and future role in helping meet the requirements for central training in the fire service. The review will evaluate the performance of the Agency and will also re-appraise the prior options considered before the College was established as a trading fund, taking account of developments since that time. Should Ministers agree that agency status remains the most appropriate option, the review will bring forward recommendations for future development and funding including any necessary revisions to the College's Framework Document.

The review will be conducted by officials from the man Home Office working, among others, with Her Majesty's Fire Service Inspectorate. Views are welcomed from all interested parties. The review is expected to report in the summer.

Police Protection

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what is the annual cost of providing full police protection to an individual whose life has been threatened. [74477]

Mr. Straw: It is not the practice to publish this information as it provides an indication of the level of protection being provided.

Asylum Seekers

Mr. Gerrard: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list the countries currently considered to be in upheaval for the purpose of determining asylum claims. [73889]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: There is no country or territory currently subject to a declaration of upheaval under the Social Security (Persons from Abroad) Miscellaneous Amendments Regulations 1996. Declarations were made in respect of Sierra Leone on 1 July 1997 and the Democratic Republic of Congo on 17 May 1998. These expired after three months.

The purpose of such declarations is to ensure that people who find themselves in the United Kingdom at the point when there is a change of circumstances in their home country, of the kind envisaged in the Regulations, are not disadvantaged in terms of access to income support and related benefits if they make an in-country asylum application with reasonable promptness. Three months is the period considered to be reasonable for this purpose. A declaration of upheaval does not, in itself, carry any implication for the determination of asylum applications from the country or territory concerned. The need for this procedure would cease to exist under the scheme of support for asylum seekers contained in Park VI of the Immigration and Asylum Bill.

Mr. Stinchcombe: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many asylum seekers under the age of 18 years are currently detained. [73782]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: At 14.00 on 1 March 1999 there were 2 people who are 17 years of age in detention; awaiting removal to Belgium in the near future. Another person in detention is claiming to be 17 years old but his age is in dispute.

Mr. Stinchcombe: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) if he will make a statement on the criteria for the detention of asylum seekers in Her Majesty's prisons; [73778]

(2) what are the criteria for the administrative detention of asylum seekers who have not been (a) tried or (b) convicted of a criminal offence. [73779]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: No one is detained solely because they are an asylum seeker. Detention is authorised only in accordance with powers set out in the Immigration Act 1971 as they apply to inadmissible passengers, illegal entrants or stowaways, people subject to deportation action or on grounds of national security.

The principle criterion for detention is whether a person will comply with conditions attached to the grant of temporary admission or release. So far as possible, people are detained in discrete accommodation in Immigration Service Detention Centres or designated prison accommodation at Haslar or Rochester. But there are a few held in other establishments for reasons of geography, security or control.

The exceptions may be those convicted prisoners subject to deportation action who may continue to be held in prisons at the conclusion of their sentence awaiting the activation of the deportation order.

Mr. Stinchcombe: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many asylum seekers have been detained for over six months (a) in Her Majesty's prisons and (b) elsewhere. [73780]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The available information relates to the snapshot of asylum seekers detained solely under Immigration Act powers as at 29 January 1999 for in-country applicants and 1 February 1999 for port applicants. 116 such persons were recorded as having been detained continuously for at least six months. The breakdown between those detained in prisons and those in other places of detention is available only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Wigley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what is the position of Her Majesty's Government with regard to the provisions of Article 22 of the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child on protection for children seeking asylum. [74307]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The effect of Article 22 of the United Nation Convention on the Rights of the Child is to confer on refugee and asylum seeking children all the rights set out in that Convention. The comprehensive provision in United Kingdom law for the care and protection of children applies in full to children who have been recognised as refugees in this country and to those who have sought asylum here, but whose claim has not been determined. Although the United Kingdom has entered a reservation which makes it clear that nothing in the Convention is interpreted as affecting the operation of our immigration and nationality legislation, our law is entirely consistent with the thrust of the Convention.

Stephen Lawrence Inquiry Report

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list the (a) names and (b) job titles of his Department's officials who read the Macpherson report prior to the oral statement of 26 February 1999, Official Report, columns 660–70, by the Minister of State. [74449]

Mr. Straw: In relation to the period before the publication of the Report, it would not be in the interests of the investigation now under way of the leak of parts of the Report to give these details. After publication, the Report was widely available, including on the Internet, and would have been seen by a large number of Home Office officials.

Mr. Peter Bottomley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what response he made to the Metropolitan Police following their alerting of the Stephen Lawrence Inquiry to the unintended publication of sensitive information; [74421]

(2) when (a) he and (b) ministers in his Department learned of the inclusion of sensitive information in the Stephen Lawrence Inquiry report; [74422]

(3) if he was first contacted by (a) the Metropolitan Police or (b) the Stephen Lawrence Inquiry as to the existence of information intended to be kept in confidence which was contained in the Stephen Lawrence Inquiry report before the report was published. [74417]

Mr. Straw: Appendix 11 of the report into the Stephen Lawrence Inquiry contained detailed information which should have been kept in confidence. The Home Office was alerted to that at about 10.45am on 25 February by the Inquiry staff. They had been contacted by the Metropolitan Police. We immediately stopped further distribution of the Appendices volume. The Metropolitan Police urgently carried out risk assessments on those individuals affected and appropriate protection measures have been put in place. The police have established a 24 hour incident room in Eltham Police Station and Home Office liaison officer is posted there to assist local Members of Parliament.

Mr. Peter Bottomley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on his Department's policy in alerting independent judicial inquiries to the existence of information, which is intended to be kept in confidence, in a report which is to be published. [74423]

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what powers he had to inform the Stephen Lawrence Inquiry of the existence of the names and addresses of informants in Appendix 11 prior to publication of the inquiry report; [74424]

(2) if he will make a statement on his powers in respect of removing the names and addresses prior to publication of the informants listed in Appendix 11 of the Stephen Lawrence report. [74425]

Mr. Straw: The responsibility for determining the content of the report of a judicial inquiry, including any decision to publish supporting material by way of appendices, falls to the Chairman and members of the Inquiry. My Department can advise, when requested, whether material should be withheld on security or other grounds.

In the case of the Stephen Lawrence Inquiry, I undertook at the outset to publish the report of the Inquiry in full. Sir William Macpherson of Cluny has already said that he takes full responsibility for the original mistaken inclusion of an unredacted version of Appendix 11 in the report. Like Sir William, I am very sorry that the mistake was made. The copies of the report which are now on sale do not contain the original Appendix 11.

Mr. Butterfill: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps he took upon receipt of the report of the Stephen Lawrence Inquiry to ensure (a) the security of witnesses and (b) that any future (i) investigations and (ii) prosecutions would not be prejudiced by its publication. [74416]

Mr. Straw: The Inquiry was an independent judicial inquiry established under the Police Act. The contents of the Report were entirely a matter for the Inquiry, as its chairman has made clear.

Mr. Forth: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when the final report on the Lawrence Inquiry was first received by his Department. [74413]

Mr. Straw: Sir William Macpherson delivered the Report to me on the evening of Monday 15 February.

Mr. Forth: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which officials in his Department were (a) responsible for liaising with the Lawrence Inquiry and (b) seconded to the Inquiry. [74415]

Mr. Straw: The Secretary to the Stephen Lawrence Inquiry on secondment from the Home Office, was Stephen Wells. Further details of the staffing of the Inquiry secretariat are given in paragraphs 3.28 and 3.30 of the Report.

Responsibility in the Home Office for liaison with the Inquiry rested within the Operational Policing Policy Unit. The Head of Unit, as listed in the Civil Service Year Book, is Paul Pugh. He has been assisted by Patricia McFarlane who has responsibility for Police Community Relations within the Operational Policing Policy Unit. Other officials have assisted as part of their normal responsibilities.

Mr. Forth: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list the (a) Ministers and (b) officials in his Department who read the report of the Lawrence Inquiry between the time it was first received by his Department and its publication. [74414]

Mr. Straw: It would not be in the interests of the investigation now under way into the leak of parts of the Report to give these details.

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on his duties in respect of public interest immunity on the protection of the identity of informants in criminal investigations (a) in general and (b) in the case of informants named in Appendix 11 of the Stephen Lawrence report. [74426]

Mr. Straw: The question of public interest immunity arises in litigation, where it operates in appropriate circumstances to override the normal obligations of disclosure between the parties to the litigation. It does not arise outside legal proceedings.

The right hon. and learned Member for North-East Bedfordshire (Sir N. Lyell), as Attorney-General, informed the House of the new approach to public interest immunity of the Government then in office in a statement made on 18 December 1996. My right hon. and learned Friend the Member for Aberavon (Mr. Morris) informed the House on 11 July 1997, Official Report, column 616, that the present Government would follow the same approach to public interest immunity. Under that approach the question of public interest immunity is considered on an individual case basis. Public interest immunity is asserted by the Government only where Ministers believe that disclosure of the information in question would cause real damage to the public interest.

I do not normally have a role in criminal investigations or prosecutions, which fall to the police and the Crown Prosecution Service respectively. The assertion of public interest immunity in a prosecution would normally be the responsibility of the Crown Prosecution Service.

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department for what reasons his Department received a copy of the Stephen Lawrence report prior to its publication. [74427]

Mr. Straw: Sir William Macpherson delivered the Report to me so that my Department could arrange its printing and presentation to Parliament.

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what procedures the Macpherson Inquiry team used to vet all documents submitted prior to publication of their report; [74480]

(2) how many documents were not published by the Macpherson Inquiry on the basis of their sensitivity; [74478]

(3) what criteria the Macpherson Inquiry adopted to determine which documents should be published and which should not; [74476]

(4) how many documents submitted to the Macpherson Inquiry were not published, and how many pages the documents contained. [74479]

Mr. Straw: I understand from the Inquiry that the seven documents taken from the evidence which were included for publication in the Appendices to the Report were chosen on the basis that they were subject to discussion in the body of the Report and that they had a wider general interest. The documents were approved and proof read by the Chairman, his Advisers and his administrative staff. All these documents had been in the public domain, in either complete or redacted form during the public hearings of the Inquiry.

The Inquiry received about 30,000 documents containing a total of over 80,000 pages for Part 1 of its work. Many of these documents were duplicates because copies were submitted by more than one part to the Inquiry. About one third of the total was distributed to the parties of the Inquiry, subject to any redactions which the Inquiry considered necessary. Any redactions were agreed between the party submitting the document, the Inquiry's legal team and the Metropolitan police where necessary. This was done where confidentiality was clearly an issue or on the basis of a risk assessment.

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department from which divisions of his Department he received submissions on the Macpherson report prior to the oral statement by the Minister of State on 26 February 1999, Official Report, columns 660–61. [74483]

Mr. Straw: It is not the practice to discuss the advice given to Ministers by officials.

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list the (a) written and (b) oral contacts (i) he and (ii) his officials had with the Macpherson inquiry team from its inception to the receipt of the report by his Department. [74482]

Mr. Straw: My officials had numerous contacts with the Inquiry team throughout the relevant period, including in relation to the provision of Home Office evidence to the Inquiry. As for myself, I met Sir William Macpherson on several occasions, notably at the start and the end of the inquiry process.

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps he will take to ensure the removal of sensitive parts of the Macpherson report appendices from the Internet. [74485]

Mr. Straw: The full report from the Stephen Lawrence Inquiry and its appendices appeared on The Stationery Office's Official Publications website on the day the report was published. The entire volume containing all the appendices was immediately removed when the Home Office was alerted to the publication of sensitive material in Appendix 11 on 25 February.

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will meet the costs of (a) relocation and (b) changing identity for those informants who were named by the Macpherson report. [74487]

Mr. Straw: Witness protection in London is the responsibility of the Metropolitan Police. I will be discussing the costs of this operation with the Metropolitan Police Commissioner.

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what external legal advice he has taken on the liability of his Department for civil damages in the event of claims from informants whose names were published by the Macpherson Inquiry. [74486]

Mr. Straw: I shall continue to obtain Counsel's opinion as and when necessary for the effective functioning of the Department.

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list the (a) written and (b) oral contacts (i) he and (ii) his officials had with the Macpherson Inquiry team between receipt of the Inquiry Report in his Department and the oral statement by the Minister of State on 26 February 1999, Official Report, columns 660–61. [74481]

Mr. Straw: I met the Inquiry team on 15 February to take receipt of their Report. My officials had numerous contacts with the Inquiry team after that date to discuss the arrangements for publication. I spoke to Sir William Macpherson on 25 February to discuss with him the background to the contents of Appendix 11.

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list the (a) names and (b) job titles of his Department's officials who (i) were seconded to the Macpherson Inquiry, (ii) assisted the Inquiry and (iii) monitored the progress of the Inquiry for his Department, indicating the dates they were engaged for each of the above purposes. [74484]

Mr. Straw: The Secretary to the Stephen Lawrence Inquiry, on secondment from the Home Office, was Stephen Wells. Further details of the staffing of the Inquiry secretariat are given in paragraphs 3.28 and 3.30 of the Report.

Responsibility in the Home Office for liaison with the Inquiry rested within the Operational Policing Policy Unit. The Head of Unit is Paul Pugh. He has been assisted by Patricia McFarlane who has responsibility for Police Community Relations within the Operational Policing Policy Unit. Mr. Pugh gave oral evidence to the Inquiry on behalf of the Home Office. Other officials have assisted as part of their normal responsibilities.

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what reports he has received to date from the permanent secretary in his Department on the leaking of the Macpherson report. [74475]

Mr. Straw: The permanent secretary will inform me of the outcome of the leak investigation in due course; I will inform the House of its conclusions.

Schoolchildren (Sexual Assault)

Mr. Randall: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many successful prosecutions there have been for sexual assault of pupils in each of the last 10 years by (a) primary school teachers, (b) secondary school teachers and (c) support staff in local authority schools. [73381]

Ms Estelle Morris: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested is not available. However, my Department's statistical record shows that the number of people barred from or restricted in their employment in the education service in each of the last 3 years as a result of a conviction or a caution for a sexual offence relating to children was:

1997: 71
1998: 52

Teachers

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (1) how many (i) full and (ii) part-time teachers there were in (a) schools and (b) further education colleges in Northern Ireland in each of the past five years; and what percentage of each had a postgraduate certificate in education; [71410]

(2) how many (i) full and (ii) part-time teachers with no teaching qualifications there were in (a) schools and (b) further education colleges in Northern Ireland in each of the past five years. [71409]

Mr. McFall: The number of teachers holding the Post Graduate Certificate of Education (PGCE) or with no qualifications is not readily available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

The total number of full-time teachers in schools and full and part-time teachers in Further Education colleges is as follows:

| | (a) Schools | (b) Further Education colleges | |
|---|---|---|---|
| | (i) Full-time | (i) Full-time | (ii) Part-time |
| 1994–95 | 19,730 | 2,171 | 3,205 |
| 1995–96 | 20,125 | 2,156 | 3,154 |
| 1996–97 | 20,642 | 2,144 | 2,780 |
| 1997–98 | 20,510 | 2,064 | 2,647 |
| 1998–99 | — | 1,974 | 2,867 |

— Figures on school teachers for 1998–99 are not yet available

Pupil Funding

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much funding has been provided per pupil in each type of school in Northern Ireland in each of the past five years; and what the planned funding levels are for the next three years. [71411]

Mr. McFall: The table details the funding per pupil based on financial allocations made to schools under Local Management of Schools formula funding arrangements:

| | Nursery schools | Primary schools | Secondary schools | Controlled grammar (excluding prep depts) |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 1994–95 | 1,832 | 1,369 | 2,241 | 2,156 |
| 1995–96 | 1,888 | 1,407 | 2,281 | 2,192 |
| 1996–97 | 1,925 | 1,475 | 2,340 | 2,246 |
| 1997–98 | 2,026 | 1,519 | 2,381 | 2,286 |
| 1998–99 | 2,071 | 1,560 | 2,457 | 2,358 |

| | Grant maintained integrated primary schools | Grant maintained integrated secondary schools | Voluntary grammar schools (excluding prep depts) |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1994–95 | 1,667 | 2,524 | 2,211 |
| 1995–96 | 1,683 | 2,772 | 2,323 |
| 1996–97 | 1,738 | 2,929 | 2,394 |
| 1997–98 | 1,700 | 2,856 | 2,437 |
| 1998–99 | 1,745 | 2,894 | 2,541 |

Detailed information on the planned funding levels for the next three years is not yet available.

Prisoner Early Releases

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many persons given early release from prison under the Good Friday Agreement have been arrested or had their licences revoked. [71556]

Mr. Ingram: One person released under the Sentences Act has been arrested and charges with an offence but not in breach of licence conditions. He is remanded in custody till 25 March 1999.

Educational and Library Boards (Funding)

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many education and library boards in Northern Ireland have (a) requested and (b) received additional funding in order to reduce class sizes to under 30 pupils in the past year. [71403]

Mr. McFall: (a) Requests for additional funding are initiated by individual schools.

(b) All 5 educational and library boards have received additional funding to enable them to respond to such requests.

Tourism and Commerce

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what plans she has to promote Northern Ireland (a) tourism and (b) commerce through the Internet. [72955]

Mr. Ingram: The Northern Ireland Tourist Board (NITB), the Industrial Development Board (IDB), the Local Enterprise Development Unit (LEDU) and the Industrial Research and Technology Unit (IRTU) all have a web sites on the internet designed to promote Northern Ireland tourism or commerce.

Tourism

NITB's web-site (www.ni.tourism.com) contains detailed regional and product information. NITB is also working with new regional tourist organisations in Northern Ireland to develop a coherent approach to the development of their web-sites.

Commerce

IDB's web-site (WWW.idbni.co.uk) promotes NI as a prime business location for new inward investment and covers all aspects of IDB's operations. IDB is currently in discussions with the 26 district councils in NI to provide a hyperlink from their sites to the IDB site to further enhance investment and trade opportunities.

IRTU's site on the NI Public Service Web (www.nics.gov.uk/irtu) provides information on the Unit's R&D support programmes.

LEDU also maintain a site (www.ict.co.uk) and plan to exploit to the full ICT (Integrated Computer Technologies) as a key source of competitive advantage to small firms in Northern Ireland, which will benefit them commercially. This would be beneficial by way of making it easier to enter new markets and competing internationally.

Digital Broadcasting

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many schools in Northern Ireland currently have facilities for receiving digital broadcasting services; and what estimate she has made of how many will have that capability by the end of (a) 2000, (b) 2001 and (c) 2002. [72920]

Mr. McFall: Information on the amount of equipment capable of receiving digital broadcasting service which schools have brought, or plan to buy, within their delegated budgets is not available, and could only be obtained at disproportionate cost.

Illegal Drugs

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many visitors to prisons in Northern Ireland were found to be in possession of illegal drugs in each of the last five years; and how many were referred to the police. [72913]

Mr. Ingram: Visitors can be refused access to prisons because of suspected possession of drugs. The information required is therefore not available in the exact format requested. The table shows the number refused access on suspicion of possession and those subsequently referred to the police. Central monitoring commenced on 1 April 1996.

| Financial year | Visitors suspected of possession | Visitors referred to police |
|---|---|---|
| 1996–97 | 18 | 10 |
| 1997–98 | 30 | 20 |
| 1998–99 | 7 | 5 |

to 31 December 1998

Education Action Zones

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what plans she has to introduce education action zones in Northern Ireland. [72919]

Mr. McFall: I have no plans to introduce Education Action Zones in Northern Ireland. Alternative measures, including the School Support Programme, are already in place to help to raise standards in schools serving areas of social and economic deprivation. Following the Comprehensive Spending Review, additional resources are being made available to bring an additional 30 schools into the School Support Programme each year, and to provide extra support to other schools in socially disadvantaged areas.

LORD CHANCELLOR'S DEPARTMENT

Press Releases

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Minister of State, Lord Chancellor's Department how many press releases have been issued by his Department, its agencies and non-departmental bodies in each of the years 1990 to 1998. [71451]

Mr. Hoon [holding answer 16 February 1999]: The number of press releases issued by my Department its agencies and non-departmental bodies in the specified period is as follows. Agencies and non-departmental bodies which have not issued press releases during this period are not listed.

| | 1990 | 1991 | 1992 | 1993 | 1994 | 1995 | 1996 | 1997 | 1998 |

| Northern Ireland Court Service | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 5 | 12 | 20 | 24 |
| Public Record Office | 3 | 3 | 3 | 3 | 3 | 3 | 4 | 6 | 13 |

Office for the Supervision of Solicitors

Mr. Amess: To ask the Minister of State, Lord Chancellor's Department what discussions he has had with the Legal Services Ombudsman on the performance of the Office for the Supervision of Solicitors. [73884]

Mr. Hoon: The Lord Chancellor and I meet the Legal Services Ombudsman each year to discuss the main findings and recommendations of her annual report. Our next meeting with her is scheduled for June 1999. Our officials have more frequent contact with her, and they keep us informed of developments in the complaints handling procedures of the legal professional bodies in general, and of the Office for the Supervision of Solicitors in particular.

Access to Justice Bill

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Minister of State, Lord Chancellor's Department if he will list the media interviews connected with their official duties which he and the Lord Chancellor have given since the introduction of the Access to Justice Bill [Lords]. [73886]

Mr. Hoon: The Lord Chancellor and I have given press conferences, briefings and interviews on several different issues since the introduction of the Access to Justice Bill on 2 December 1998. The media organisations involved are listed:

"Working for Justice"

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Minister of State, Lord Chancellor's Department, pursuant to his answer to the hon. Member for Norwich, North (Dr. Gibson) of 16 February 1999, Official Report, columns 723–24, what was the cost to his Department of preparing, publishing and distributing (a) the booklet entitled "Working for Justice: a Guide to the Lord Chancellor's Department" and (b) the publication entitled "Modernising Justice: A Summary of the Government's Proposal". [73885]

Mr. Hoon: The cost to the Lord Chancellor's Department of preparing, publishing and distributing the following publications in England and Welsh versions was as follows:

(a) "Working for Justice: A Guide to the Lord Chancellor's Department": £38,300;

(b) "Modernising Justice: A Summary of the Government's Proposals": £22,800.

Elected Authorities (Northern Ireland) Act 1969

Mr. McNamara: To ask the Minister of State, Lord Chancellor's Department how many applications have been made to the High Court under the Elected Authorities (Northern Ireland) Act 1989, section 7, for a determination that a person has acted in breach of the terms of a declaration against terrorism made by him under section 4 of the Act for each year since the passing of the Act; how any determinations have been made; and against whom. [73822]

Mr. Hoon: There have been no applications made to the High Court under the Elected Authorities (Northern Ireland) Act 1989, section 7, for a determination that a person has acted in breach of the terms of a declaration against terrorism made by him under section 4 of the Act since the passing of the Act.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Genetically Modified Foods

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (1) which companies have made representations to his Department in favour of the commercial exploitation of genetically modified foods; [70437]

(2) how many representations his Department has received in favour of the commercial exploitation of genetically modified foods. [70438]

Mr. Byers [holding answer 11 February 1999]: Regulatory responsibility for genetically modified food rests with MAFF. The DTI has not received any specific representations in favour of the commercial exploitation of GM foods.

International Market Council

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will list the issues for discussion before the Internal Market Council on 25 February, indicating the position he proposes to take on each issue. [72744]

Mr. Wilson [holding answer 24 February 1999]: Every six months, at the beginning of an EU Presidency, the Minister of State, Foreign and Commonwealth Office, my right Friend the Member for Gateshead, East and Washington, West (Ms Quin), outlines to the House meetings expected during that Presidency. Every month, she gives the House details of the items expected at meetings of the Council of Minsters during that month. After each meeting of the Internal Market Council, my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry reports back to the European Scrutiny Committee on the business conducted at the Council. He will be reporting back on the 25 February Council in the coming days. The Government have recently extended arrangements for scrutinising Council business to include the Second and Third Pillars of the Treaty on European Union, as well as the First Pillar. The Government will continue to promote the interests of the United Kingdom at all meetings of the Council of Ministers. However, it has not been the practice of successive Administrations to indicate the position that Ministers propose to take in advance of Council.

Post Office Employees

Mr. Pound: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if an employee of the Post Office on a short-term contract must serve a specified amount of time before being granted a long-term contract. [73244]

Mr. Ian McCartney: I understand from the Post Office that there is no specified time period which short-term contract staff must serve before being granted permanent employment. Recruitment of permanent staff is undertaken in accordance with the needs of the business. Short-term contract staff may apply for such posts under the normal selection procedures applying to the recruitment of permanent staff.

Single Currency

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will list the subject areas within his Department's responsibilities which will be covered by the information campaign on Britain's membership of a single currency. [73675]

Mr. Wilson: The Treasury will continue its dialogue with key external bodies to determine what information the public and business would need at each stage of the changeover process. Any information campaign would cover key concerns that the public and business may have. Chapter eight of the Treasury's Outline National Changeover Plan provides further information. Copies of the plan are available in the Library of the House.

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what plans he has to issue information from his Department to help the public make an informed decision when they vote on the single currency. [73580]

Mr. Wilson: Any plans by the Government to issue information during a referendum campaign on whether or not the UK should join the single currency would be made in light of the Government's response to the recommendations from the Neill Committee on the conduct of referendums. The Government will announce their conclusion on those recommendations when my right hon. Friend the Home Secretary publishes a White Paper and draft Bill before the summer recess.

Nuclear Waste Reprocessing

Mr. Edwards: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if mixed oxide fuel and the materials which will be returned to BNFL's customers abroad after reprocessing are capable of being modified more easily than spent fuel for use in nuclear weapons. [73560]

Mr. Battle [holding answer 26 February 1999]: Plutonium can be recovered from either spent fuel or from fresh Mixed Oxide fuel (MOX) only through a difficult chemical separation process requiring complex and highly specialised plant, equipment and skills. It is technically difficult to produce nuclear weapons using weapons grade material. It would be even more difficult to use reactor grade plutonium to produce a reliable weapon giving a predictable yield.

The other materials recovered from reprocessing are Low Enriched Uranium and waste. Low Enriched Uranium cannot be used directly to construct nuclear weapons. While safeguards and physical protection measures continue to be applied to it, it is of limited sensitivity to proliferation. Waste contains only traces of plutonium and cannot be used to construct nuclear weapons.

Cosmetics

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (1) what labelling requirements apply in respect of the use of genetically modified ingredients in cosmetics; [73405]

(2) what controls exist over the use of genetically modified (a) maize and (b) soya in skin-care and cosmetics, with particular regard to the presence of antibiotics originating from marker genes. [73406]

Dr. Howells [holding answers 1 March 1999]: The safety of cosmetic products is controlled by the Cosmetic Products (Safety) Regulations 1996, and all cosmetic ingredients have to be given on the label. All cosmetics are required to be safe under normal use. No specific controls exist for ingredients which may be derived from a genetically modified plant source and there are no specific requirements for manufacturers to mention this on the product label. However, the Regulations specifically prohibit the use of antibiotics.

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment he has made of the health implications of the use of (a) genetically modified soya and (b) genetically modified maize in cosmetic products, with particular regard to the presence of antibiotics originating from marker genes. [73404]

Dr. Howells [holding answer 1 March 1999]: The safety of cosmetic products is controlled by the Cosmetic Products (Safety) Regulations 1996, as amended. The Regulations specifically prohibit the use of antibiotics, but no overall assessment has been made of the health implications of ingredients which may be derived from a genetically modified plant source.

Mobile Telephones

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what plans he has to encourage mobile telephone network operators to provide short messaging services across networks. [73808]

Mr. Wills [holding answer 1 March 1999]: The introduction, by licence modification, of mobile number portability has provided an additional spur to the introduction of Short Messaging Services (SMS) interworking between domestic operators. I understand that arrangements are expected to be concluded shortly between all four network operators and that it is now only a case of working on the implementation, specifically technical protocols. The Government are confident that additional benefits, in terms of new inter-network services, will be conferred on consumers through the introduction of mobile number portability.

With regard to international SMS interworking, it is dependent on the capability of the roamed network. UK subscribers already have access to short messaging services when in many overseas countries and discussions are ongoing within the GSM community to ensure that network interworking is secured more widely, particularly in Europe and Asia.

Biotechnology

Mr. Chope: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry when he expects to publish the conclusions of the review of the United Kingdom framework for overseeing developments in biotechnology. [74144]

Dr. Jack Cunningham [holding answer 2 March 1999]: I am replying because of my responsibility for Co-ordinating Government Policy on biotechnology and genetic modification.

On 17 December 1998, Official Report, columns 644–45, I announced a review of the framework for overseeing developments in biotechnology and genetic modification.

Ministers will consider this review, in parallel with the emerging conclusion of the Government's public consultation on developments in the biosciences, and expect to make a formal announcement on the outcome in Spring 1999.

Domestic Electrical Goods

Mr. Chope: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (1) if he will place in the Library a copy of the data collected by his Department on the prices of the goods subject to the Restriction on Agreements and Conducts (Specified Domestic Electrical Goods) Order 1998 (a) before and (b) after commencement of the Order; [74135]

(2) in what respects average unit prices for each of the categories of electrical goods subject to the Restriction on Agreements and Conduct (Specified Domestic Electrical Goods) Order 1998 have altered in each of the last five years in (a) cash terms and (b) real terms. [74137]

Dr. Howells: My Department does not collect this information.

However, information published in the Office for National Statistics Business Monitor MM23 shows that retail prices of audio-visual equipment have fallen on average by 7 per cent. per year over the five years to 1998, retail prices for electrical appliances have fallen by 2½ per cent. per year and retail prices for toys, photographic and sports goods have fallen by ½ per cent. per year, compared with an average rise of 3 per cent. per year for all items index.

It is the responsibility of the Director General of Fair Trading to keep under review commercial activities in the UK and monitor compliance with Orders made under UK competition legislation. The Restriction on Agreements and Conduct (Specified Domestic Electrical Goods) Order 1998 has so far been in force for only six months.

Plutonium Shipments

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what kind of container will be used for the planned shipment by sea of plutonium MOX fuel from Sellafield to Japan; which company has manufactured the container; and what safety and security tests have been carried out on the container. [72961]

Ms Glenda Jackson: I have been asked to reply.

Containers for the carriage of MOX fuel are expected to meet the standards for Type B packages as laid down in UK regulations, which are based on the recommendations of the International Atomic Energy Agency, a copy of which is in the Commons Library. No containers, as yet, have been approved by the UK for this transport.

General Affairs Council

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will list the issues for discussion before the General Affairs Council on 22 and 23 February indicating the position he proposes to take on each issue. [72742]

Ms Quin [holding answer 24 February 1999]: I have been asked to reply.

Every six months, at the beginning of an EU Presidency, I outline to the House meetings expected during the Presidency. Every month, I give the House details of the items expected at meetings of the Council of Ministers during the month. After each meeting of the General Affairs Council, I report back to the European Scrutiny Committee on the business conducted at the General Affairs Council meeting. The Government have recently extended arrangements for scrutinising Council business to include the Second and Third Pillars of the Treaty on European Union, as well as the First Pillar. The Government will continue to promote the interests of the United Kingdom at all meetings of the Council of Ministers. However, it has not been the practice of successive Administrations to indicate the position that Ministers propose to take in advance of Council.

PRIME MINISTER

Internal Market

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Prime Minister, pursuant to his answer of 15 February 1999, Official Report, column 522, what proportion of the reforms under the Simpler Legislation for the Internal Market programme were criticised by his Government. [72626]

The Prime Minister: Initiation of reviews under the Simpler Legislation for the Internal Market (SLIM) process is a matter for the European Commission, taking into account suggestions from the Member States.

The United Kingdom has fully participated in SLIM, being represented on at least one team in each phase, and submitting position papers with our views to all except one of the other teams. Specific recommendations for reform are put forward by each SLIM team as a whole.

Sierra Leone

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Prime Minister when he or his officials, his special advisers or Parliamentary Private Secretary first had access to a copy of the report on Sierra Leone as agreed by the Foreign Affairs Committee. [73632]

Mr. Wilshire: To ask the Prime Minister when (a) he, (b) his officials, (c) his advisers and (d) his PPS were first made aware of certain key conclusions of the Foreign Affairs Committee on Sierra Leone. [73703]

The Prime Minister [holding answer 26 February 1999]: I refer the hon. Members to the reply I gave to the hon. Member for Spelthorne (Mr. Wilshire) on 23 February 1999, Official Report, column 231.

Sir Brian Mawhinney: To ask the Prime Minister on what day and at what time (a) he and (b) officials working in No. 10 Downing street were informed that the Foreign and Commonwealth Office had received a leaked copy of the draft Foreign Affairs Committee report on Sierra Leone. [74155]

Mr. Wilshire: To ask the Prime Minister when he knew that a copy of the draft report of the Foreign Affairs Committee's Sierra Leone inquiry had been sent to the Foreign and Commonwealth Office in the second week of January. [73573]

The Prime Minister [holding answers 26 February and 2 March 1999]: Officials in No. 10 were informed on the evening of Monday 22 February. I was informed the following day.

National Changeover Plan

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the Prime Minister what compensation will be available to businesses which invest for euro membership as part of the National Changeover plan if the electorate votes against membership. [74166]

The Prime Minister: The outline National Changeover Plan is a first step in planning how the United Kingdom would make the changeover to the single currency. A further plan will be published in around a year's time. British businesses must now focus on the impact of the euro on their business strategies and decide for themselves how they should handle it and what preparations to make. Any investment will ultimately be a commercial decision for businesses themselves.

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the Prime Minister what is his estimate of the amount of public expenditure which will arise in connection with the National Changeover plan for euro membership which will be incurred before a referendum on joining. [74167]

The Prime Minister: The cost of euro preparations would depend on the detailed approach that the UK took to the changeover. As I set out in my statement to the House on 23 February 1999, Official Report, columns 179-96, further work on the changeover will be carried out over the next year. Prior to a referendum the key departments involved are Inland Revenue, Customs and Excise and the Department for Social Security, where preparations may cost some tens of millions of pounds.

Beef Ban

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Prime Minister, pursuant to his oral answer of 24 February 1999, Official Report, column 386, on the lifting of the beef ban, on what date European Commission inspectors were invited to visit the relevant abattoirs; and when he expects (a) the visits to take place and (b) the final stages of the lifting of the ban to begin. [74154]

The Prime Minister [holding answer 2 March 1999]: Officials from the Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food held discussions with Commission officials in January and February this year on the content, practical arrangements and possible dates for an inspection visit. The inspection will also cover the arrangements for Date Based Export Schemes in meat plants and we are in close contact with their industry in ensuring premises are ready for inspection. We expect to confirm a date very shortly. After the visit, the Commission will produce their report and set a date for exports to resume. We will be encouraging them to act as quickly as possible, but the timetable for those final stages is a matter for the Commission.

School Education Spending

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Prime Minister, pursuant to his oral answer of 24 February 1999, Official Report, column 382, on school education spending, if he will make a statement on spending on school education in Scotland (a) in the current financial year and (b) in 1997–98. [74152]

The Prime Minister [holding answer 2 March 1999]: Education authorities in Scotland are budgeting to spend £2.438 billion in the current financial year, whereas they budgeted to spend £2.349 billion in the previous financial year. The budgeted figure is normally exceeded in practice. The provisional outturn for 1997–98 is £2.375 billion.

From 1 July 1999 this will be a matter for the Scottish Parliament.

Art Markets

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Prime Minister, pursuant to his oral answer of 24 February 1999, Official Report, column 382, concerning the EU Directive on the art markets, if he will list the conditions necessary to permit the United Kingdom to agree the Directive. [74151]

The Prime Minister [holding answer 2 March 1999]: At the 25 February Internal Market Council the Presidency noted there was a broad consensus in favour of the proposal but, in view of the difficulties of some member states, it noted there were some remaining issues to be settled. It therefore asked the Committee of Permanent Representatives to take forward this work with the aim of reaching early agreement. We shall be working with our EU partners on ways in which the impact of the Directive on the United Kingdom can be reduced. I appreciate their willingness to continue intensive examination of these concerns. I cannot, of course, say in advance of that examination, what might be acceptable, though we will ensure we get the best possible deal.

EU Reports and Recommendations

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Prime Minister if he will deposit in the Library a list of reports and recommendations submitted since 1 May 1997 by working groups operating at European Community level, indicating the status of follow-through activities. [74445]

The Prime Minister: Council working groups make reports and recommendations on legislative proposals from the Commission, which are then passed to the Council of Ministers for final decision. The working group reports are not normally published, but the legislation, once enacted, is published in the Official Journal and is also available on the CELEX database. This has been the standard practice for many years.

Engagements

Sir Peter Tapsell: To ask the Prime Minister if he will list his official engagements for Wednesday 3 March. [73763]

The Prime Minister: Today I have had meetings with Ministerial colleagues and others. I was also briefed on the hideous murders of eight tourists in Uganda.

Our High Commission in Uganda is seeking to establish the facts and we are obviously in close consultation with the Ugandan authorities.

Four of the dead: Joanne Cotton, Martin Friend, Mark Lindgren and Steven Roberts, were British, and the thoughts of the whole House will be with their friends and families, to whom we pledge to do all in our power to bring their killers to justice.

DEFENCE

Uranium (Health Tests)

Lorna Fitzsimons: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what progress has been made to collate the information his Department has about mechanisms which could be used to test for the presence of uranium in the human body. [69803]

Mr. Doug Henderson: I expect to publish a detailed paper setting out the Ministry of Defence's position concerning the testing of UK Gulf veterans for the presence of depleted uranium later this month.

Armed Forces Personnel (Foreign Nationals)

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many foreign nationals are currently serving in the UK armed forces; and which countries they come from. [72954]

Mr. Spellar: The following table shows the recorded number of foreign nationals serving in the Army at January 1999:

| Nationality | Army |
|---|---|
| Total | 448 |
| Australian | 64 |
| Canadian | 64 |
| New Zealander | 55 |
| Zimbabwean | 41 |
| South African | 41 |
| Jamaican | 27 |
| Fijian | 19 |
| Indian | 13 |
| St. Helenian | 12 |
| Maltese | 10 |
| Trinidadian | 7 |
| Kenyan | 6 |
| Barbadian | 5 |
| Ghanaian | 5 |
| Pakistani | 5 |
| German | 5 |
| Others | 69 |

The 'Others' category amalgamates all nationalities in the Army which have fewer than five people in the individual categories.

There are also 244 Irish Nationals serving in the Army.

The table shows the recorded number of foreign nationals serving in the Royal Air Force at February 1999.

| Nationality | Royal Air Force |
|---|---|
| Total | 327 |
| Canadian | 41 |
| Australian | 37 |
| New Zealander | 32 |
| Indian | 26 |
| Pakistani | 26 |
| Jamaican | 23 |
| Kenyan | 20 |
| Zimbabwean | 16 |
| German | 12 |
| American | 11 |
| Maltese | 9 |
| Barbadian | 8 |
| Malaysian | 6 |
| Others | 60 |

The 'Others' category amalgamates all nationalities in the RAF which have fewer than five people in the individual categories.

There are also 155 Irish nationals serving in the RAF.

Information on the number of foreign nationals serving in the Naval Service is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Meteorological Office Report 1997–98

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on what date the Meteorological Office published its report for 1997–98; and what was the cost of production of the report. [72990]

Mr. Spellar: This is a matter for the Chief Executive of the Meteorological Office. I have asked the Chief Executive to write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Peter Ewins to Mr. Mike Hancock, dated 3 March 1999:

I am replying to your Question to the Secretary of State for Defence about the issue date and production costs of the Meteorological Office's Annual Report for 1997–98. This matter falls within my area of responsibility as Chief Executive of the Met. Office.

Our 1997–98 Annual Report and Accounts was published on 19 August 1998 and some 1400 copies were distributed externally to customers, suppliers and other interested organisations. The cost of production was just under £37K, broken down as follows:

Printing: £14.6K

Photographic: £0.5K

Staff costs: £21.8K.

You may be interested to know that the Report was actually laid before the House on 14 July 1998.

Medical Supply Agency

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he expects to set targets for the Medical Supply Agency for 1999–2000. [72989]

Mr. Doug Henderson: It is my intention to set key targets for this Agency in April this year.

Aircraft Accidents

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many aircraft the RAF has lost in accidents in each of the last five years; and what was the cost of the aircraft; [72935]

(2) how many aircraft the (a) Army and (b) Royal Navy have lost in accidents in each of the last five years; and what was the cost of the aircraft; [73786]

(3) how many (a) Army and (b) RAF personnel have been killed in aircraft accidents in each of the last five years; [73791]

(4) what was the attributed cause of each (a) RAF and (b) Royal Navy aircraft crash in the last five years. [73787]

Mr. Spellar: I will write to the hon. Member and a copy of my letter will be placed in the Library of the House.

WALES

Education Funding

9. Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will make a statement on the cash and percentage increase in funding for education in Wales in 1999–2000. [72461]

Mr. Michael: I have announced an extra £133 million for education and training in 1999–2000. This represents an increase of 7.1 per cent. on 1998–99. The main elements are £70.2 million in the local government revenue settlement, £23.5 million for further education and £15.5 million for higher education. This gives a sound basis for the Assembly when it takes over education responsibilities following the transfer of functions.

Roads (Signing)

10. Mr. Fabricant: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what steps he is taking to promote clear signing on roads. [72463]

Mr. Hain: Monolingual traffic signs for use on roads in the UK are prescribed in the Traffic Signs Regulations and General Directions 1994. In order to ensure that bilingual traffic signs are designed to the same national standards, the Department has produced a full set of drawings which have been issued to all local authorities in Wales.

Following the transfer of functions the issue of bilingual traffic signs will be a matter for the National Assembly.

Concessionary Bus Fares Scheme

11. Mr. Donald Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what representations he has received on his announcement of the half-price concessionary bus fares scheme. [72464]

Mr. Hain: The Government's commitment to introduce a statutory minimum standard travel concessions scheme for pensioners on buses has been very warmly welcomed throughout Wales. I am delighted to have been able to ensure that from April all unitary authorities in Wales will be in a position voluntarily to meet the proposed minimum, which is a maximum of £5 for a bus pass, and a discount of at least 50 per cent. on fares. I am keen to go further, and in consultation with the Welsh Local Government Association (WLGA) and bus operators will be drawing up plans to move to free concessionary travel for pensioners on buses over the next two to three years. I intend to make this concession available to visiting as well as resident pensioners.

Following the transfer of functions, the National Assembly for Wales will be responsible for overseeing the administration of concessionary fares schemes by local authorities in Wales.

Manufacturing Jobs

12. Mr. Barry Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what representations he has received on the number of manufacturing jobs lost in Wales in the last year; and if he will make a statement. [72465]

Mr. Hain: We have not received any, but support for the manufacturing sector in Wales remains a priority.

Secretary of State (Devolution)

13. Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what representations he has received on the role of the Secretary of State after devolution. [72466]

Mr. Michael: None.

I have replied to a parliamentary question from the hon. Member for Ribble Valley (Mr. Evans), 4 February 1999, Official Report, column 749, and Welsh Office officials have provided oral and written evidence to the Select Committee for Welsh Affairs.

Rural Bus Services

14. Mr. John Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will make a statement on the future of rural bus services in Wales. [72468]

Mr. Hain: The future for bus services in rural Wales is brighter now than for many years. In the current financial year £2.25 million has been made available to local authorities in Wales under the Bus Subsidy Grant Scheme to boost rural bus services, increasing to at least £3 million in 1999–2000. In addition, local authorities will be free to decide whether to spend a further £2 million on either rural or urban bus services.

This new money will secure 16 million bus kilometres next year, and allow authorities to increase by more than 60 per cent. the provision of socially necessary bus services compared with 1997–98. It will help to increase accessibility and mobility in the countryside, and to overcome problems of social exclusion.

Following the transfer of functions, the National Assembly for Wales will be responsible for determining the future of the Welsh Bus Subsidy Grant Scheme.

National Assembly

15. Mr. Flight: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what plans the Government have to devolve further powers from Westminster to the National Assembly. [72469]

Mr. Michael: The Government have no plans to devolve further substantive existing powers to the Assembly, beyond those set out in the draft Transfer of Functions Order which was approved by the House on 24 February. In future, new legislation which gives powers to Secretaries of State in respect of England will need to specify what powers are to be given to the Assembly in respect of Wales.

24. Mr. Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will make a statement on the criteria under which candidates for the National Assembly can be disqualified. [72478]

Mr. Michael: Section 12 of the Government of Wales Act 1998 specifies persons and classes of person who may not also be members of the National Assembly for Wales.

The draft Order-in-Council laid on 10 February proposes further disqualifying offices and employments taking account both of conflicts of interest which Assembly members might experience and the need to ensure that the impartiality of bodies exercising quasi-judicial functions is not being compromised.

Market Towns

16. Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what proposals he has to provide economic assistance to market towns in Wales; and if he will make a statement. [72470]

Mr. Hain: The Government are committed to developing rural communities throughout Wales. Enhancing the economies of market towns is integral to this process.

The WDA's Market Town Initiative assists local communities to influence the future of their towns in the face of economic change. Some £900,000 is being made available over a three year period to the ten participating towns in Mid-Wales and the Agency is currently assessing the possibility of extending the Initiative throughout Wales. Local authorities also have a key role to play through delegated resources such as Strategic Development Scheme and Local Authority Rural Scheme monies.

Following the transfer of functions, this issue will be a matter for the National Assembly.

Trade Mission

17. Mrs. Laing: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what plans he has for a trade mission to the United States of America. [72471]

Mr. Michael: The United States does not feature on the current Welsh Office trade mission programme. I shall be visiting the US on an inward investment mission later this month.

Following the transfer of functions, this issue will be a matter for the National Assembly.

Areas of Outstanding Natural Beauty

18. Mr. Caton: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will make a statement on the management of Areas of Outstanding Natural Beauty in Wales. [72472]

Mr. Jon Owen Jones: My right hon. Friend recently received advice from the Countryside Council for Wales and hopes to make decisions on the future management and funding of Welsh areas of outstanding natural beauty in the light of this advice.

Following the transfer of functions, this issue will be a matter for the National Assembly.

Nurses (Recruitment)

19. Mr. Ian Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what plans he has to advertise to recruit more nurses in Wales. [72473]

Mr. Jon Owen Jones: Advertisements were placed in Welsh national papers on 3 February. Advertisements in the Welsh language are due to be placed in Welsh language papers on 24 and 25 February. Wales does not have a recruitment problem for pre-registration nurse training and our campaign will concentrate on attracting returners to the NHS in Wales. Officials wrote to Trusts on 12 February to ascertain their individual needs.

Following the transfer of functions, this issue will be a matter for the National Assembly.

Bro Taf Health Authority

20. Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what additional resources are being made available to the Bro Taf health authority following the outbreak of meningitis. [72474]

Mr. Jon Owen Jones: No additional funding has been sought by, or provided to Bro Taf Health Authority. Each Health Authority receives an element of discretionary funding in its annual resource allocation which is for the Health Authority to spend according to their priorities in their area.

Following the transfer of functions, this issue will be a matter for the National Assembly.

Mineral Planning Guidance

21. Mr. Rowlands: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many representations he has received on the mineral planning guidance consultation document (MPG3); and if he will make a statement. [72475]

Mr. Jon Owen Jones: My right hon. Friend and I have received over 40 representations which are currently being considered. In future, responsibility for planning and mineral planning policy in Wales will be a function for the National Assembly.

Local Health Groups

22. Mr. Rogers: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what progress has been made in establishing local health groups in Wales. [72476]

Mr. Jon Owen Jones: Good progress has been made by all Health Authorities in establishing Local Health Groups (LHGs).

The majority of appointments to LHG Boards are complete and early meetings have been positive. Arrangements are in hand to appoint staff. Shadow LHG Boards and Executive Committees have begun to identify key work priorities, and are taking steps to address their specific training and development needs.

All 22 LHGs are on course to be operational as sub committees of Health Authorities by 1 April, as planned.

Following the transfer of functions, this issue will be a function for the National Assembly.

26. Mr. Win Griffiths: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will make a statement about the progress that has been made by each health authority in establishing local health groups. [72481]

Mr. Jon Owen Jones: Each of the five Health Authorities in Wales has reported making good progress in establishing Local Health Groups (LHGs).

The majority of appointments to LHG Boards are complete and early meetings have been positive. Arrangements are in hand to appoint staff. Shadow LHG Boards and Executive Committees have begun to identify key work priorities, and are taking steps to address their specific training and development needs.

All 22 LHGs are on course to be operational as sub committees of Health Authorities by 1 April, as planned.

Following the transfer of functions, this issue will be a matter for the National Assembly.

Road Haulage Industry

23. Mrs. Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what assessment his Department has made of the contribution of the road haulage industry to employment in rural Wales. [72477]

Mr. Hain: The road haulage industry plays a vital role in the Welsh economy, in terms of both the distribution of goods and the employment opportunities it provides in both urban and rural areas. The Autumn 1998 Labour Force Survey, conducted by the Office for National Statistics, showed that there were around 13,000 people in employment in the industry throughout Wales.

Following the transfer of functions, the National Assembly for Wales will take an extremely close interest in employment issues within Wales.

Cattle Subsidies (Application Forms)

25. Mr. Edwards: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what plans he has to review the application forms for sheep annual premium, suckler cow premium and over thirty months scheme to prevent farmers being penalised for inadvertently making mistakes. [72479]

Mr. Jon Owen Jones: My right hon. Friend announced in December that £16 million would be invested over the next three years in the Welsh Office's Agricultural Offices to revolutionise the service provided to farmers and speed up the payment process. As part of this we will be reviewing data collection processes. Welsh officials are working closely with producers and their representatives to find out precisely what improvements will deliver most benefit to farmers whilst retaining the necessary controls over expenditure.

Following the transfer of functions, this issue will be a matter for the National Assembly.

Police Authorities (Funding)

27. Mr. Forth: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what plans he has to increase the funding allocations to police authorities. [72482]

Mr. Jon Owen Jones: Details of standard spending assessments for Welsh police authorities for 1999–2000 are included in the Local Government Finance Report (Wales) 1999–2000 (HC 203). The report was debated and approved by the House of Commons on 11 February 1999. These represent an increase of £6.7 million or 3.9 per cent. over the current year.

Following the transfer of functions, this issue will be a matter for the National Assembly.

Police grant is the responsibility of my right hon. Friend the Home Secretary. The allocations for 1999–2000 are set out in the Police Grant Report (England and Wales) 1999–2000 which was approved by the House of Commons on 4 February.

Social and Economic Inequalities

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what studies of social and economic inequalities in Wales have been conducted or commissioned by his Department since May 1997. [69588]

Mr. Jon Owen Jones: The Department has drawn upon expertise and ongoing research through the Social Exclusion Advisory Panel and other sources.

Following the transfer of functions, this issue will be a matter for the National Assembly.

Psychiatric Nurses

Sir Alastair Goodlad: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many community psychiatric nurses there were in Wales in each of the last three years. [73228]

Mr. Jon Owen Jones: The information is given in the following table.

Nurses employed by the NHS in Wales in the area of community psychiatry as at 30 September

| | 1996 | | 1997 | | 1998 | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| | Number | Wte | Number | Wte | Number | Wte |
| Manager | 6 | 6 | 11 | 11 | 10 | 10 |
| 1st level nurse | 509 | 491 | 557 | 528 | 541 | 508 |
| 2nd level nurse | 23 | 21 | 19 | 18 | 14 | 13 |
| Nursing auxiliary/assistant | 201 | 175 | 275 | 180 | 218 | 176 |
| Total | 739 | 693 | 862 | 738 | 738 | 707 |

Note:

The figures above may underestimate the actual position as some non-medical staff (1.5 per cent. in 1996, 0.3 per cent. and 0.2 per cent. in 1998) did not have a valid occupation code and have not, therefore, been assigned centrally to a staff group or grade.

Following the transfer of functions, this issue will be a matter for the National Assembly.

Schizophrenia

Sir Alastair Goodlad: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many people discharged from hospital following a main diagnosis of schizophrenia psychoses and subsequently taken to hospital by the police under the Mental Health Acts in Wales were refused admission in the last year for which figures are available. [73235]

Mr. Jon Owen Jones: The information requested is not held centrally.

Following the transfer of functions, this issue will be a matter for the National Assembly.

Sir Alastair Goodlad: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many people with a main diagnosis of schizophrenia psychoses were admitted for a hospital stay more than once during the last year in Wales. [73234]

Mr. Jon Owen Jones: In 1998 there were 1,521 hospital spells in NHS hospitals in Wales where the person had a primary diagnosis of schizophrenia psychoses. Reliable estimates of the number of people who were re-admitted are not available.

Following the transfer of functions, this issue will be a matter for the National Assembly.

Sir Alastair Goodlad: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will list the admission by diagnosis and order of admissions indicating the percentage changes over the previous year in numbers and rates per 100,000 population of patients suffering from schizophrenia psychoses in Wales in the last year for which figures are available. [73370]

Mr. Jon Owen Jones: The number and rates of discharges from Welsh NHS trusts for the two latest years, 1997 and 1998, are shown in the following table. Information is given for discharges, rather than admissions, as discharge information is more complete. Reliable information on order of admission is not available. The figures represent only those patients admitted to hospital as inpatients or day-cases and will therefore not be an overall picture of all patients suffering from schizophrenia in Wales.

Patients discharged from Welsh Trusts with a primary diagnosis of Schizophrenia

| Diagnosis | 1997 | | 1998 | | Percentage change 1997–98 | |

Assembly Election

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what arrangements he has made to measure the effectiveness of his Department's media campaign to encourage people to vote in the Assembly election. [73006]

Mr. Michael: We have set in place evaluation research which involves two telephone surveys of the general public in Wales, wave 1 took place in January 1999 and wave 2 is planned for May 1999. It has been designed to measure shifts in attitudes along key variables identified by the campaign messages (as identified by the agency Howell Henry Chaldecott Lury). The sample is 1,500 members of the general public constructed to be representative of the five EC regions and in terms of sex, age, social class and the proportion of the population who are Welsh speaking.

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will list the companies which tendered for the contract to publicise the Assembly elections. [73007]

Mr. Michael: The following agencies tendered for the contract (a) Howell Henry Chaldecott Lury in partnership with Bell Pottinger Good Relations (b) Wight Collins Rutherford Scott in partnership with Golley Slater (c) Ogilvy and Mather in partnership with Mark Williams Associates (d) Euro RSCG Wnek Gosper in partnership with the Petersen Partnership.

All the above agencies were approved and endorsed by the government's Advisory Committee on Advertising. Bids (a) and (c) were shortlisted for presentations to the Secretary of State for Wales.

Single Currency

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what plans he has to issue information from his Department to help the public make an informed decision when they vote on the single currency. [73584]

Mr. Michael: Any plans by the Government to issue information during a referendum campaign on whether or not the UK should join the single currency would be made in the light of the Government's response to the recommendations from the Neill Committee on the conduct of referendums. The Government will announce their conclusions on those recommendations when my right hon. Friend the Home Secretary publishes a White Paper and draft Bill before summer recess.

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will list the subject areas within his Department's responsibilities which will be covered by the information campaign on Britain's membership of a single currency. [73672]

Mr. Michael: The Treasury will continue its dialogue with key external bodies to determine what information the public and business would need at each stage of the changeover process. Any information campaign would cover key concerns that the public and business may have. Chapter eight of the Treasury's Outline National Changeover Plan provides further information. Copies of the Plan are available in the House Library.

Special Educational Needs

Mr. Wigley: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what are his arrangements for monitoring the implementation of his Department's guidance on best practice in providing education for (a) those with learning difficulties and (b) children with autism spectrum disorders. [73647]

Mr. Hain: Local authorities and schools are responsible for ensuring that their respective duties for the provision of education to children with special educational needs (SEN), including children with learning difficulties associated with autistic spectrum disorders, are discharged in accordance with the legislation and the associated guidance issued by the Department, principally the 'Code of Practice on the Identification and Assessment of SEN' [ISBN 0 85522 444 4].

Schools are subject to inspection by The Office of Her Majesty's Chief Inspector of Schools in Wales (OHMCI) which is responsible for evaluating and reporting on standards in each school to the Secretary of State. Inspections include an assessment of the provision being made for pupils with SEN, having regard to guidance issued by the Department.

In 1996, OHMCI published a report entitled 'The Implementation of the SEN Code of Practice in Primary Schools in Wales' following a survey in primary schools during the two years following the introduction of the Code in 1994. A copy of its report was placed in the Library of the House. More recently, OHMCI has carried out a survey of the National Curriculum in special schools. Its report will be published later this year.

'Shaping the Future for Special Education—An Action Programme for Wales', published in January, explained that from September this year LEAs will be required to publish details of their SEN policies in their Education Strategic Plans. As part of the new arrangements for delegating funding to schools from 1 April, LEAs will publish notional funding figures for each school for the SEN provision they are expected to make within their delegated budgets; and publish details of the funding for SEN support services which the LEA will provide centrally. These arrangements will help to improve transparency and accountability. A copy of the 'Action Programme' can be obtained from the Library of the House.

Following the transfer of functions, this issue will be a matter for the National Assembly.

Autism

Mr. Wigley: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what are the arrangements within the National Health Service in Wales for (a) the identification of individuals with autism-spectrum disorders and (b) the primary health care post-diagnosis offered to individuals and their families. [73629]

Mr. Jon Owen Jones: Primary care professionals are trained to watch out for the warning signs of this condition and to refer suspected cases to specialists in the secondary care sector. Post-diagnosis, the primary care team has a managing and co-ordinating role with other agencies in supporting autistic children and their families.

Following the transfer of functions, this issue will be a matter for the National Assembly.

Sustainable Development

Mr. Wigley: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will undertake the necessary preliminary work for the establishment by the National Assembly of a cross-cutting committee on sustainable development. [73777]

Mr. Michael: The promotion of sustainable development is a key priority for this Government and I am paving the way for the Welsh Assembly to play a leading and innovative role in this area of activity. Last month I hosted a National Conference on Sustainable Development. Its main purpose was to put together recommendations as to how the National Assembly for Wales should meet its duty under section 121 of the Government of Wales Act 1998 to make a scheme setting out how it proposes, in the exercise of its functions, to promote sustainable development. A report of the Conference is being produced which I hope will be of value to the Assembly.

Section 121 provides that the Assembly may not delegate the function of making, remaking or revising the scheme. Thus this task cannot be delegated to a committee but must be agreed by the whole Assembly.

When I addressed the National Conference on Sustainable Development and elsewhere I have made clear my view that the Assembly's sustainable development duty can best be achieved by each of the subject committees having responsibility for integrating sustainable development into its area of responsibility. I would expect to task one Assembly Secretary with the role of "Champion" for sustainable development as a core part of his or her portfolio.

Inward Investment Projects

Mr. Barry Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will list the inward investment projects his Department has announced in the past 12 months, giving the location, the expected cash investment and expected number of jobs to be created; and if he will make a statement. [74183]

Mr. Hain: During the last twelve months, Welsh Office Ministers have announced or welcomed the following projects, the vast majority of which are inward investment projects. A total of 25 companies bringing over 6,000 jobs is involved.

| Company | Location | Costs (£ million) | Jobs |
|---|---|---|---|
| Air International | Blaina | 10 | 100 |

| Total | | 162.40 | 6,007 |

Following the transfer of functions, this issue will be a matter for the National Assembly.

Industry

Mr. Barry Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales when he last met the WDA to consider the prospects for industry; and if he will make a statement. [74181]

Mr. Hain: Since his appointment, my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State has met with the Chairman of the WDA and other representatives of the Agency on a number of occasions, and will continue to do so, to discuss a wide range of issues concerning the work of the Agency and the Welsh economy. The most recent meeting with the Chairman was on 24 February.

Following the transfer of functions, this issue will be a matter for the National Assembly.

Concordats

Mr. Syms: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what plans he has to publish concordats negotiated between the Government and the National Assembly for Wales. [72462]

Mr. Michael: Concordats will set out the working arrangements between the National Assembly for Wales and the Government and it will be for the Assembly and the lead Department in the UK Government formally to publish concordats when they have been adopted.

Matching Funding

Mr. Dafis: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what recent discussions he has had with the Chancellor of the Exchequer on matching funds for financial reserves allocated to the National Assembly for Wales from EU structural funds. [72467]

Mr. Hain: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend to the hon. Member for Ynys Môn (Mr. Jones), on 3 March 1999, Official Report, columns 1063-64.

Following the transfer of functions, this issue will be a matter for the National Assembly.

AGRICULTURE, FISHERIES AND FOOD

Meat Inspection

Mr. Gill: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what is the average cost of meat inspection per animal in (a) large, (b) medium sized and (c) small abattoirs. [68129]

Mr. Rooker: The Meat Hygiene Service (MHS) charges for meat inspection and hygiene supervision are calculated on a "per hour" basis. As a consequence the MHS does not routinely calculate throughput based charges for individual abattoirs. The Agency did, however, carry out a one-off exercise to calculate unit costs for 1996–97. This exercise illustrated the difficulties in the calculation of unit costs. The MHS had reservations about whether the data accurately reflected the actual unit costs of any particular plant. This was due to a number of factors including the difficulty of gathering all relevant data for the exercise and the assumption made during the calculations.

In addition, there are several reasons why unit costs may vary from plant to plant, notably differences in structure, differences in efficiency or operation and the application of the MHS charging policy at each premises, for example whether travel time is incurred. The data produced from the exercise are therefore open to wide interpretation and unsuitable for publication.

Fishing Industry Initiatives

Mr. Gill: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food, pursuant to his answer of 21 January 1999, Official Report, column 573, on fishing industry initiatives, which organisations within the British fishing industry put forward proposals for (a) the introduction of fixed quota allocation, (b) the limiting to registration and licensing of fishing vessels to the declaration of maximum continuous or permanently devoted engine power, (c) restrictive licensing for scallop dredging and (d) measures to assist the replacement or introduction of pelagic freezer trawlers. [68151]

Mr. Morley: As I explained in the answer which I gave the hon. Member on 21 January 1999, Official Report, column 574, changes in a number of areas were prompted by concerns put forward from within the fishing industry, in some instances from fishermen themselves and in others from their representatives, and arose in the wide range of contacts I have with the industry. The measures on fixed quota allocations, scallop dredging licensing and pelagic freezer trawlers were the subject of public consultations and details of the responses are available from the Ministry's Library. The measures to link the registration and licensing of fishing vessels to the declaration of maximum continuous or permanently derated engine power, which are necessary to comply with EU obligations, were foreshadowed in the statement I made to the House on 17 December 1997, Official Report, column 228, and were discussed with industry as part of the review of fishing vessel licensing.

Genetically Modified Foods

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what studies have been (a) commissioned by and (b) undertaken within his Department in respect of the specific safety of genetically modified food for consumption by (i) pregnant women and (ii) children in their first year. [72525]

Mr. Rooker: My Department has not commissioned the specific research referred to. However, in assessing GM foods approved for sale in the UK, the Advisory Committee on Novel Foods and Processes considers the safety of all consumers from the youngest to the oldest, including pregnant women. The Committee has concluded that GM foods already approved for sale in the UK are as safe as their conventional counterparts for all sectors of the population.

Joan Ruddock: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will give details of the United Kingdom testing regime which was applied to determine safety for human consumption of the genetically modified foods currently on sale in the United Kingdom; what changes have been made to the testing regime; and what plans he has to change the testing regime. [72946]

Mr. Rooker: All the genetically modified foods which are currently on sale were rigorously assessed for safety by the Advisory Committee on Novel Foods and Processes under a voluntary scheme which was in operation prior to the introduction of the Novel Food Regulations in May 1997. Details of the regime operating at that time are contained in the ACNFP Annual Report for 1994, which can be found in the Library of the House. These foods have also been assessed by equivalent bodies in all other Member States.

Since May 1997, all novel food assessments have been carried out by the ACNFP in accordance with guidance produced by the European Commission Scientific for Food, which applies to all member states. A copy of this guidance, which does not differ in any significant way from the regime operated under the voluntary scheme, may also be found in the Library of the House.

I have no plans to ask for any changes to be made to the EC testing regime at this time.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food when genetically modified (a) tomato purée, (b) rennet for vegetarian cheese, (c) soya and (d) maize were first licensed; and for how long each licence lasts. [73263]

Mr. Rooker: Ministers first cleared these products for food use on the following dates.

GM Tomato puree (paste) February 1995;

chymosin for vegetarian cheese (produced from a GM micro-organism) May 1991;

GM soya February 1995;

GM maize May 1996.

These safety clearances apply on an indefinite basis but can be withdrawn at any time if this is judged, in the light of new information, to be necessary in order to protect human health.

Biotechnology

Mr. Baker: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food how much money his Department has spent supporting the research and development of agricultural biotechnology since 1 May 1997. [72071]

Mr. Rooker [holding answer 23 February 1999]: The Ministry spent £24 million on research on agricultural biotechnology in the 1997–98 financial year. Commitments to date for the 1998–99 financial year amount to just over £22 million.

Forestry

Ms Walley: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what steps he plans to take, and on what timetable, to implement the results of the review of existing measures for protecting ancient semi-natural woodlands as set out in the Forestry Commission's England Forestry Strategy; and if he will make a statement. [72909]

Mr. Morley: We are currently considering the terms of reference and timetable for the review. In the meantime, we are planning to introduce arrangements requiring local planning authorities to consult the Forestry Commission over planning applications affecting ancient semi-natural woodlands and ancient replanted woodlands.

Thames Chase Community Forest

Mrs. Laing: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what progress has been made on soil testing to ascertain which trees would grow in the proposed Thames Chase Community Forest. [73616]

Mr. Morley: With a few exceptions, the soils in the Thames Chase Community Forest do not restrict the range of trees which will grow there and so soil testing is not necessary. The Forestry Commission has, however, carried out soil tests in the Thames Chase area as part of its national research programme to determine how different tree species grow on former industrial sites, landfills and similar areas.

Mrs. Laing: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what progress has been made in discovering which species of trees were growing in Essex in each of the last 10 centuries in connection with the establishment of the Thames Chase Community Forest. [73617]

Mr. Morley: We have not undertaken any specific work to discover which species of trees were growing in Essex in each of the last 10 centuries. Advice on species which are ecologically appropriate to individual areas is available from a wide variety of sources, including the UK Forestry Standard which we published last year.

Rabbits

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will list the research reports on rabbits he has received since May 1997 and the research studies currently in progress; and if he will make a statement on (a) the use which he intends to make of the research and (b) the main conclusions of the studies. [73322]

Mr. Rooker: A list of research reports received since May 1997, together with their main conclusions and the use that will be made of the results, is as follows:

1. Irreversible immunocontraception for the control of wild rabbits—University of Sheffield.

   The contractor was unsuccessful in developing a fully effective technique. Further development is being undertaken as part of the project "Antigen delivery systems for the control of wild rabbits".

2. Developing humane, environmentally acceptable and cost-effective methods of rabbit control—Central Science Laboratory (CSL).

   An effective multi-capture cage has been developed. A manufacturer will be undertaking small-scale trials this winter to assess the efficacy of the cage. If these are successful, negotiations on a licence for commercial exploitation may commence.

   An advisory leaflet for farmers on the cause of rabbit fending was produced.

   A safer and more cost-effective method of fumigating rabbit burrows, which is also safer for operators and the environment, has been developed. The method is currently being discussed with industry with regard to commercial exploitation.

3. Modelling rabbit populations and designing integrated control packages—CSL.

   An existing mathematical model addressing the optimisation of control techniques was refined. The model was field tested and was found to be accurate except where myxomatosis was prevalent; at these locations, populations surviving after control were generally less than predicted by the model. The results from this project are being combined with those from the project "Predicting damage to crops by rabbits" under the new project "Developing a rabbit management expert system".

4. Predicting damage to crops by rabbits—CSL.

   Results from crop preference trials involving winter wheat, winter barley, oats, rye, triticale, oilseed rape and spring barley showed that triticale and spring barley were least grazed. Comparing losses of winter wheat and spring barley suggests that at densities of rabbits greater than 10 per hectare (a fairly light infestation) it would be more profitable to grow spring barley. At levels below 10 per hectare, it is possible to grow winter wheat profitably.

   "No choice" feeding trials using constant numbers of rabbits gave estimates of financial losses of £2.40 per rabbit per hectare for both grass and spring barley.

   The results from this project should be regarded as interim. They are currently being refined in the project "Developing a rabbit management expert system".

The following research projects are in progress:

Developing a visual scaring device to deter rabbits.

Developing a method for assessing the size of rabbit populations.

Developing a rabbit management expert system.

Rabbit behaviour and population dynamics at fenced hot-spots.

The impact of viral haemorrhagic disease on wild rabbit populations.

Antigen delivery systems for the control of fertility in rabbits.

Reversion of arable land to grass and Calluna health-rabbit grazing aspects.

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what has been his Department's expenditure on research on rabbits since May 1997. [73323]

Mr. Rooker: The Ministry's expenditure on research on rabbits for the period 1 May 1997 to 28 February 1999 was about £523,000.

Zimbabwe

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what official visits he, his Ministers or officials have paid to Zimbabwe since May 1997; who they met; and what was discussed. [73466]

Mr. Rooker: The only official visit by Ministers or officials in the Department to Zimbabwe since May 1997 was made by a Principal Plant Health and Seeds Inspector who attended a COLEACP quality workshop in Harare on 20–22 October 1997 as a plant health expert. The aim of the workshop was to improve the quality of ACP horticultural products for export. The Inspector met a number of UK importers, Zimbabwe officials from their Ministry of Agriculture and Zimbabwe exporters.

COLEACP is a liaison committee based in Paris and promotes the export of fruit, vegetables and flowers from African, Caribbean and Pacific countries.

Calf Processing Aid Scheme

Mr. Fitzpatrick: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food how many calves were slaughtered under the Calf Processing Aid Scheme in (a) 1996, (b) 1997, (c) 1998 and (d) to date in 1999; and how much has been paid out under the scheme in each of the above years. [73489]

Mr. Rooker: The information requested is as follows:

| | Calves slaughtered | Payments to operators (£ million) |
|---|---|---|
| 1996 | 370,550 | 38.3 |
| 1997 | 600,558 | 54.3 |
| 1998 | 658,650 | 51.9 |
| 1999[1] | 71,179 | 4.4 |

[1] To 22 February 1999

Note:

The number of calves is the number on which premium was paid in the relevant year

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Gill: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food when he expects to reply to the hon. Member for Ludlow's questions (ref. 68151 and 68129) tabled on 25 January 1999. [73622]

Mr. Morley: My hon. Friend the Minister of State and I have today replied to the questions tabled by the hon. Member for Ludlow on 25 January (ref. 68129 and 68151).

Bombay Duck

Mr. Steen: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what representations he has had requesting Her Majesty's Government to ask the European Union to reconsider its decision to allow the import of Bombay Duck into the EU only if it has been processed in a recognised EU establishment; and if he will make a statement. [73655]

Mr. Rooker [holding answer 1 March 1999]: My Department has received a small number of inquiries concerning Bombay Duck. None of these have resulted in Her Majesty's Government approaching the European Union about the current import conditions for this product. The need for all fishery products, including Bombay Duck, to originate from approved establishments is a key aspect of the conditions applying to EU imports from third countries. These measures have been established to protect public health.

Genetically Modified Fish

Mr. Loughton: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what representations he has received regarding the genetic modification of Norwegian salmon imported into the UK. [74048]

Mr. Rooker [holding answer 2 March 1999]: None.

Fruit and Vegetable Exports

Sir Richard Body: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will make a statement on the role of his Department in assisting the Commission to prepare EU document 98/1457. [73790]

Mr. Rooker: Commission Regulation 1457/98 is a routine measure to control the quantities of fruit and vegetable exported with the benefit of export refunds, and the expenditure on such refunds, in order to ensure compliance with WTO commitments. The powers under which the Regulation was made were the subject of the opinion of all Member States. The operation of the system is a matter for Commission competence.

Beef Exports

Mr. Gill: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food how many abattoirs are dedicated to beef export. [R] [73797]

Mr. Rooker: One abattoir in Northern Ireland is dedicated to slaughtering cattle for export under the Export Certified Herds Scheme. The Date-based Export Scheme is not yet operational. The Commission must carry out an inspection of our procedures before setting a date on which exports may resume. We do not intend to approve plants for export until the Commission inspectors have reported on their findings.

Pigmeat

Mr. Gill: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what progress he is making in monitoring the compliance of British retailers with their undertaking to sell only pork and pigmeat products derived from pigs produced in the United Kingdom. [R] [73795]

Mr. Rooker: British retailers have given no such undertaking to the Government. I assume the hon. Member is referring to the undertakings given by the major supermarkets in respect of sourcing own label fresh pork, bacon, and other products from stall and tether and MBM free systems, and not labelling as British products produced or packed in this country using imported fresh pork. The British Retail Consortium is to survey its members to see how far they have got in meeting these undertakings, and I look forward to seeing the results of that survey.

Mr. Gill: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will invoke EU Treaty Article 36 to prevent the importation of pigmeat which does not meet the same standards of production as required in the United Kingdom. [R] [73793]

Mr. Rooker: No; it is not possible to use Article 36 of the Treaty to impose higher UK standards on imports where EU law has been harmonised as it has been in the case of welfare standards for pigs. Furthermore, the UK ban on the use of Meat and Bone Meal (MBM) is not in place because there is a known risk to the health or life of humans or animals (a stipulation of Article 36) in feeding MBM to pigs. The MBM ban is in place to address the specific risk that, if pig or poultry feed were to contain MBM, there would be a real risk of contamination (accidental or deliberate) of ruminant feed with pig or poultry feed.

Mr. Gill: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what assessment he has made of whether the volume of pigmeat imported into the United Kingdom is consistent with the number of pigs produced in other countries without sow stalls and tethers and without feed containing MMB. [R] [73796]

Mr. Rooker: I have made no such assessment.

BSE

Liz Blackman: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will make available the latest progress report prepared by his Department on bovine spongiform encephalopathy. [75017]

Mr. Nick Brown: A further Progress Report on BSE in Great Britain was placed in the Library of the House today.

The Report outlines the measures which have been taken to protect public health since June 1998, including legislation on the slaughter of sheep and goats suspected of having transmissible spongiform encephalopathies, notifications to the British Cattle Movement Service, cattle identification and the compulsory cull of offspring of BSE cases supporting the Date-based Export Scheme for UK beef. It summarises the results of action to enforce existing public health measures, and reports the launch of the Cattle Tracing System. An update on the number of cases of nvCJD is included.

There is also a section on the protection of animal health covering controls on animal feed.

The epidemiology section shows that the epidemic of BSE in the UK continues to decline. The number of clinically suspect cases of BSE reported in Great Britain has continued to fall and for 1998 was 23.5 per cent. less than for 1997 and 60 per cent. less than for 1996. A continued improvement is expected for the future. The section shows that 63 per cent. of UK herds with adult breeding cattle have never had a case of BSE. Furthermore 84 per cent. of beef suckler herds have never had a case of BSE. Reported incidence also shows that herds with more than four cases of BSE account for almost three quarters of all BSE cases, but represent less than one eighth of all herds.

The section on the European perspective reports the EU Commission's agreement to the Date-based Export Scheme for lifting the EU export ban for UK beef from cattle born after 1 August 1996. It also covers the resumption of beef exports from Northern Ireland, permitted for meat from export certified herds.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

Single Currency

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what plans he has to issue information from his Department to help the public make an informed decision when they vote on the single currency. [73591]

Ms Quin: Any plans by the Government to issue information during a referendum campaign on whether or not the UK should join the single currency would be made in light of the Government's response to the recommendations from the Neill Committee on the conduct of referendums. The Government will announce their conclusions on those recommendations when my right hon. Friend the Home Secretary publishes a White Paper and draft Bill before the summer recess.

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will list the subject areas within his Department's responsibilities which will be covered by the information campaign on Britain's membership of a single currency. [73663]

Ms Quin: The Treasury will continue its dialogue with key external bodies to determine what information the public and business would need at each stage of the changeover process. Any information campaign would cover key concerns that the public and business may have. Chapter eight of the Treasury's Outline National Changeover Plan provides further information. Copies of the Plan are available in the House Library.

Karura Forest, Kenya

Ms Abbott: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the Karura Forest of Kenya. [74032]

Mr. Tony Lloyd: I refer my hon. Friend to my answer on 24 February 1999, Official Report, column 322, and the answer the Minister of State, Foreign and Commonwealth Office, my right hon. Friend the Member for Leeds, Central (Mr. Fatchett), gave on 1 March 1999, column 603.

Turkey

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the present position in respect of the Loizidou v. Turkey case under consideration by the Committee of Ministers of the Council of Europe. [74318]

Ms Quin: The case of Loizidou v. Turkey was last considered in the Committee of Ministers on 9 February, and will next be considered there on 30 March.

Responsibility for implementing the judgment lies with Turkey. Turkey has confirmed its wish to uphold the authority of the European Court of Human Rights, but has informed the Committee of the difficulties which, in its view, flow from the judgment. We have made clear to Turkey the need to respect the Court's judgment. We have reminded Turkey in the Committee of Ministers of their responsibilities in this respect, most recently on 9 February, and will continue to do so.

Mr. Love: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations the Government have made to the Government of Turkey following the arrest of Mr. Öcalan; what assurances have been received regarding due process and legal representation; what representations he has made regarding the possible use of the death penalty; and if he will make a statement. [74191]

Ms Quin: We raised the subject of PKK leader Abdullah Öcalan's trial with the Turkish State Minister responsible for Human Rights on 17 February. We welcome the assurances of Prime Minister Ecevit that Mr. Öcalan will receive a fair trial and that his physical safety will be assured. With EU partners we have urged that Mr. Öcalan have access to legal counsel of his choice, and underlined our strict opposition to the use of the death penalty. We have also requested attendance at the trial by members of the British Embassy in Ankara.

Western Sahara

Mr. Love: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what contact his Department has with the Polisario Front; and if he will make a statement on progress towards a settlement in the Western Sahara. [74200]

Mr. Fatchett: Foreign Office officials in both London and New York hold regular meetings with representatives of the Polisario Front; they have also visited the Polisario camps in Tindouf.

In late 1998 the UN Secretary-General introduced a package of proposals intended to speed up the referendum process. These were accepted in full by the Polisario, Algeria and Mauritania, but Morocco sought clarification on several issues. Since then Morocco has signed the Status of Forces Agreement and has agreed to formalise the presence of UNHCR in the Western Sahara. The mandate for MINURSO has been extended until the end of March 1999 to allow for further discussions between the UN and the Moroccan authorities on the remaining outstanding issues.

Eritrea and Ethiopia

Mrs. Ray Michie: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on (a) the recent unrest in Eritrea and Ethiopia and (b) the violation of the air moratorium. [74278]

Mr. Tony Lloyd: Fighting between Ethiopia and Eritrea resumed on 6 February, with subsequent violation of the US brokered air moratorium of June 1998.

A full scale Ethiopian attack on the disputed town of Badume was reported in the week beginning 22 February. The Ethiopian Government spokesperson announced on 28 February that their forces had captured Badume. Recent reports suggest that Ethiopian forces have now established defensive positions around Badume: within Eritrean territory.

Eritrea accepted the Organisation of African Unity Framework Agreement on 27 February: Ethiopia accepted the proposals in November. The Security Council welcomed this in a Presidential statement the same day. We are urgently considering with our international partners how to support the OAU in obtaining a cessation of hostilities and full implementation of their proposals.

Mrs. Ray Michie: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to the Ethiopian Government on their policy of mass deportation of Eritreans, and Ethiopians of Eritrean descent. [74279]

Mr. Tony Lloyd: I, our Ambassador in Ethiopia, and officials in London have consistently told the Ethiopian government that we expect them to uphold their international human rights obligations, including in respect to the deportations of Eritrean citizens or Eritreans by descent, as a result of its border conflict with Eritrea.

I raised the matter of human rights in Ethiopia when I met the Ethiopian Foreign Minister in Addis Ababa on 26 February. He assured me that the Ethiopians want a constructive dialogue with us on human rights. I shall pursue this assurance vigorously.

Mrs. Ray Michie: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what plans he has to appoint a British ambassador to Eritrea. [74277]

Mr. Tony Lloyd: Our Ambassador to Ethiopia is accredited as non-resident Ambassador to Eritrea.

Mrs. Ray Michie: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the proposal that a neutral force should administer disputed territory on the border between Eritrea and Ethiopia. [74276]

Mr. Tony Lloyd: The Organisation of African Unity (OAU) in its Framework Proposals of 7 November included a recommendation that United Nations supported OAU military observers should supervise the redeployment of Ethiopian and Eritrean forces in Badume and assist the restored civil administration in that area.

The UN Security Council has not yet discussed the issue of international peacekeeping on the Ethiopia/Eritrea border. But we are ready to consider support for a greater UN/OAU role, and other measures to promote a lasting peace.

European Union Countries (GNP)

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will list the latest figures for GNP per capita for each EU member state. [74168]

Ms Quin: A number of different organisations calculate GNP. For EU purposes the European Commission's figures are generally used. The European Commission's report of 7 October 1998 called "Financing the European Union", a copy of which was deposited on 26 October (Batch list 121) provides information for every year since 1982. For 1997 the GNP per head of population at current market prices was:

| Countries | £ | Euro |
|---|---|---|
| Belgium | 14,860 | (21,315) |
| Denmark | 18,100 | (25,963) |
| Germany | 15,614 | (22,397) |
| Greece | 7,022 | (10,073) |
| Spain | 8,251 | (11,835) |
| France | 14,477 | (20,766) |
| Ireland | 10,526 | (15,098) |
| Italy | 12,144 | (17,420) |
| Luxembourg | 24,549 | (35,214) |
| The Netherlands | 14,233 | (20,416) |
| Austria | 15,652 | (22,451) |
| Portugal | 6,148 | (8,819) |
| Finland | 13,811 | (19,811) |
| Sweden | 15,044 | (21,579) |
| United Kingdom | 13,411 | (19,236) |

The report also shows at Annex 8, Table 9, GNP per head of population at Purchasing Power Standards, compared with the EU average.

Public Record Office Files

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs for what reasons the Public Record Office files FCO 8/710, FCO 8/711 and FCO 8/712 are closed; and if he will consider opening these files to the public. [74247]

Mr. Tony Lloyd: These files were retained beyond their due opening date of 1 January 1999 to allow time for completion of the review process. The files have now been cleared for release and will be opened at the Public Record Office by the end of March.

Civil Service Code (Complaints)

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will list all complaints made by officials in his Department under the Civil Service Code from 1 May 1997 to date, together with the reasons given for such complaints. [74332]

Mr. Robin Cook [holding answer 2 March 1999]: No member of staff has raised with the Department a complaint under the Civil Service or Diplomatic Service Codes of Ethics since 1 May 1997.

SOCIAL SECURITY

Pensioners

Mr. Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if he will estimate the proportion of pensioners who will be on (a) income support and (b) other means-tested benefits in (i) 2000, (ii) 2010, (iii) 2020, (iv) 2030, (v) 2040 and (vi) 2050 on the basis of (1) unchanged policies, (2) unchanged policies except for an income guarantee linked to earnings and (3) full implementation of his proposed pensions reforms. [71180]

Mr. Timms: The information is not available in the form requested. Such information as is available is in the table.

Proportion of pensioners receiving income support

| | 2000 | 2025 | 2050 |
|---|---|---|---|
| Income support linked to prices | 1 in 5 | 1 in 10 | 1 in 10[1] |
| Income guarantee linked to earnings | 1 in 5 | 1 in 5 | 1 in 3 |
| Full implementation of proposals | 1 in 5 | 1 in 5 | 1 in 4 |

1. [1] assumes no change between 2025 and 2050.
2. Projections to the year 2050 are subject to a high degree of uncertainty, given the number of assumptions that need to be made in making these estimates. Some of those who will be pensioners in 2050 have yet to begin work, and most are in their 20s and 30s.
3. Estimates have been made by extrapolating estimates from the PENSIM model but these can only give a very broad indication of the likely order of magnitude of figures so far into the future. The projections can be applied to estimates of the proportion of pensioners on Income Support, but not to other income-related benefits (such as Housing Benefit and Council Tax Benefit) as projections for these benefits would require many more assumptions to be made and would be surrounded by an unacceptable level of uncertainty.
4. It is our policy that the Minimum Income Guarantee will be increased in line with average earnings over time and as resources permit. For illustration, the first line shows the estimated effect of increasing Income Support only in line with prices over time.

Benefits Agency

Audrey Wise: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many people were employed by the Benefits Agency on the last day for which a figure is available. [73626]

Angela Eagle: Staffing of the Benefits Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive, Peter Mathison. He will write to my hon. Friend.

Letter from Peter Mathison to Audrey Wise, dated 2 March 1999:

The Secretary of Social Security has asked me to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking how many staff were employed by the Benefits Agency on the last day for which a figure is available.

As at 31 January 1999, the Benefits Agency had a total of 74307 staff in post. In addition, there were 3934 staff employed on casual contracts.

I hope that this is helpful.

All Work Test

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many people in the Norwich, North constituency failed the All Work Test in the period 1995 to 1998. [73378]

Mr. Bayley: The administration of Incapacity Benefit is a matter for Peter Mathison, the Chief Executive of the Benefits Agency. He will write to my hon. Friend.

Letter from Peter Mathison to Dr. Ian Gibson, dated 2 March 1999:

The Secretary of State for Social Security has asked me to reply to your Parliamentary Question asking how many people in the Norwich North constituency failed the All Work Test in the period 1995 to 1998.

The information is not available in the format you requested. The Benefits Agency (BA) does not hold information by Parliamentary constituency. The information provided below relates to the Agency's Norwich District.

Customers failing All Work Test 1995–98

| | Norwich District | Nationally |
|---|---|---|
| 1995–96 | 292 | 66,367 |
| 1996–97 | 683 | 112,046 |
| 1997–98 | n/a | 104,339 |

Information about those failing the All Work Test has not been available by BA Districts since 1997/98. The information supplied is taken from cases recorded on the Incapacity Benefit computer system.

I hope that this is helpful.

Minimum Income Guarantee

Mr. Ennis: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if he will estimate how many pensioners in the Barnsley, East and Mexborough constituency will be eligible for the Minimum Income Guarantee. [73376]

Mr. Timms: The information is not available in the form requested. Such information as is available is as follows.

As at August 1998 (the latest date for which information is available) there were approximately 17,000 pensioners in receipt of Income Support in the Barnsley and Doncaster local authority district. There were 1.65 million pensioners in receipt of Income Support across the country as a whole at the same date. Whilst we do not know the precise effect in each Local Authority area, across the country as a whole, in addition to existing Income Support recipients, we expect around 65,000 pensions will be newly eligible for the Minimum Income Guarantee as a result of the above-inflation increase in the income support rates in April.

Notes:

1. Figures are rounded to the nearest hundred and are based on a 5 per cent. sample size.

2. "Pensioners" for the purposes of this question are defined as single people aged 60 or over, or couples where one or both partners is aged 60 or over.

Zimbabwe

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what official visits he, his ministers or officials have paid to Zimbabwe since May 1997; whom they met; and what was discussed. [73453]

Mr. Timms: None.

Widows' Benefit

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many women qualify for widows' benefit payments. [73753]

Angela Eagle: The number of women receiving Widows' Benefits payments at 15 January 1999 was 266,100.

The number of claims to lump sum Widows' Payment in the year ending March 1998 was 45,000.

Notes:

1. Estimates for Widows' Payment relates to claims made; a small number of claims may not be awarded a payment. Estimates for the ongoing weekly benefits relate to actual awards.

2. A proportion of those who received Widows' Payment will also have qualified for ongoing benefit.

3. Ongoing weekly benefit information provided by a 5 per cent. sample taken from the Pensions Strategy Computer System.

4. Figures for ongoing weekly benefits include GB and overseas cases, and include women aged over 60.

5. Widows' Payment information provided by Benefit Agency's Central data Unit.

Supported Housing

Mr. Love: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many responses have been received to the consultation document on supported housing; what the timetable is for completion of the consideration of responses and publication of the new arrangements; and if he will make a statement. [74190]

Angela Eagle: We have received 522 responses to the consultation document "Supporting People: A new policy and funding framework for support services". We are currently considering comments made by stakeholders on the proposals, and these will help inform our decisions on the way forward. An announcement will be made shortly.

CSA Computer System

Mr. Rendel: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what percentage of data held on the current CSA computer system has been identified as being of poor quality as a result of the implementation of the data assurance strategy. [74226]

Angela Eagle: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive, Mrs. Faith Boardman. She will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Mrs. Faith Boardman to Mr. David Rendel, dated 2 March 1999:

I am replying to your Parliamentary Question to the Secretary of State for Social Security about the Child Support Agency Computer System.

We recognise that it is essential to have accurate data before it is transferred onto a new computer system. We have therefore endorsed and are implementing a Data Assurance strategy designed to identify poor quality data held on the current system and to recommend action to improve it.

We have identified 24 areas of the Child Support Computer System to investigate the quality of information held. Early indications show that only a fairly small percentage of the data used in the specific areas investigated could be classed as poor quality.

Until the investigation of all the 24 areas have been completed in November 1999 it is not possible to say what percentage of data held on the current computer system is of poor quality.

It has always been our intention to have discussions with AFFINITY on the best ways to migrate cases from the current Child Support Computer System to ensure the integrity of the new system.

I hope this is helpful.

Benefits (Personal Advisers)

Mr. Duncan Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security (1) what the estimated average salary for personal advisers will be under the Single Gateway to Benefit; [73992]

(2) what the average cost of employing a personal adviser is under (a) the Single Gateway to Benefit and (b) the New Deal for Lone Parents, including training, office space, employers' national insurance contributions and other overheads. [73986]

Angela Eagle [holding answer 2 March 1999]: For the Single Gateway, the personal adviser role has been graded at Executive Officer or equivalent in the Employment Service, the Benefits Agency and in Local Authorities. A personal adviser's salary will reflect the pay rate for the job within their employing agency. Their position on that scale will depend on how long they have been in the grade, their levels of performance in previous years and their location. Their average salary (excluding ERNIC; superannuation and other costs) is estimated to range between just over £16,000 and just under £18,000. We do not yet know the total average costs, including ERNIC, training etc—one of the reasons for piloting the proposals is to determine the total cost of employing personal advisers.

The average salary for personal advisers working on the New Deal for Lone Parents (including ERNIC and superannuation) is estimated at £20,783. The average cost of training, including travel and subsistence, is £4,337 per adviser. New Deal for Lone Parent advisers occupy existing space in Jobcentres and are considered part of the Employment Service's core business: no extra costs are incurred.

New Deal and Single Gateway

Mr. Duncan Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what is the average time allocated for an interview with a personal adviser under (a) the New Deal for Lone Parents and (b) the Single Gateway to benefit. [74349]

Angela Eagle: Under the New Deal for Lone Parents, the average time allowed for an interview with a personal adviser is one hour.

Due to the diverse nature of the caseload and the individual requirements of clients, the length of time required to conduct an interview under the Single Gateway will vary from case to case. One of the reasons for piloting the Single Gateway is to gain an understanding of the average time needed to conduct meaningful interviews.

Child Support Agency

Mr. Duncan Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security when he expects to publish details of the next phase of the reform of the Child Support Agency. [74344]

Angela Eagle: We are currently considering responses to the Green Paper "Children First: a new approach to child support" and will bring forward our final proposals for reform in due course.

Habitual Residence Test

Mr. Duncan Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what plans he has to change the habitual residence test following the European Court of Justice's judgment in the case C-90/97. [74350]

Angela Eagle: We are reviewing the operation of the habitual residence test and will bring forward our proposals for its future once we have considered the implications of the judgment of the European Court of Justice in Mr. Swaddling's case.

New Deal (Lone Parents)

Mr. Duncan Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what is the total number of personal advisers currently working in the New Deal for Lone Parents. [74348]

Angela Eagle: 814 personal advisers (full-time equivalent) are currently employed on the New Deal for Lone Parents. Twelve more advisers are undergoing training and nine further appointments are due to be made shortly.

Register of Members' Interests

Mr. Duncan Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what advice his Minister of State received from the department's permanent secretary regarding his shares declared in the Register of Members' Interests. [74391]

Mr. Darling: I am satisfied that there has been no conflict of interest between my hon. Friend the Minister of State's shareholding and his Ministerial responsibilities. To avoid any suggestion of a possible perceived conflict in future my hon. Friend the Minister of State will, however, be taking further steps in accordance with the Ministerial Code. Responsibility is firmly that of the Ministers concerned, and any advice to them is personal.

Decision-making and Appeals

Mr. Caplin: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security when he will lay regulations under the decision making and appeals provision of the Social Security Act 1998; and if he will make a statement. [74676]

Angela Eagle [pursuant to his reply, 2 March 1999, c. 708–09]: Last year in the Social Security Act we laid the foundations for a new system for handling decisions and appeals in benefits, child support and vaccine damage claims. My right hon. Friends the Lord Chancellor and the Secretary of State for Social Security will be laying the main Regulations, which will provide the detailed legal framework for this new system, tomorrow.

The new system for handling decisions and appeals is a major step to modernise the delivery of Social Security and child support as part of the Government's programme for welfare reform. The current system needs to change. It is confusing for claimants and staff. Putting mistakes right is complicated and claimants often have to appeal, even when a mistake is obvious to all concerned. Appeals take far too long to be cleared—on average seven months—even where they have no prospect of success. These delays are unacceptable.

The changes we are making will enable the Benefits Agency, Child Support Agency and Employment Service to provide a more helpful and accessible service to the public.

Under the new system, decisions will continue to be based on the facts and the law, with a right of appeal to an independent tribunal. There will be clearer, simpler decisions and a programme to develop simpler communications for the public. There will be new arrangements for handling disputes, so mistakes are put right more easily without having to go to appeal. There will be one type of appeal tribunal, rather than five, with one unified set of rules and three, two or one member tribunals according to the issues raised by the appeal. Appeals, which have no prospect of success, will be resolved more quickly.

The new arrangements will come into operation during the second half of this year. They will apply to child support from the beginning of June. For benefits they will be introduced in stages between July and November, to help maintain service to the public while the new arrangements start to operate.

The Independent Tribunal Service will be replaced by The Appeals Service, which will encompass both the administration of appeals and the appeal tribunals. The administration of appeals will be undertaken from April 2000 by a new executive agency of this Department. My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State will set targets for the Agency, which will be published and reported on annually. The President of appeal tribunals and the panel members who hear appeals will be appointed by my right hon. Friend the Lord Chancellor and remain independent of this Department.

Benefit claimants and child support clients will receive full information about what the new system means for them as the changes come into effect.

Benefit Fraud

Mr. Duncan Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many SPOTLIGHTS on benefit cheats have been carried out since May 1997. [73993]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 2 March 1999]: We have incorporated many of the approaches and techniques of "spotlight" into a programme of anti-fraud drives involving the Benefits Agency, local authorities, the Police and other agencies which target specific areas of fraud and abuse. Since May 1997 there have been no anti-fraud campaigns under the specific banner of "spotlight on benefit cheats". However, we have put more resources into the fight against fraud with the result that £1.9 billion has been detected in 1997–98 compared with £1.5 billion in 1996–97. As well as detecting fraud, we have tightened the checking of new Income Support claims so as to prevent fraud from entering the system from the outset. This will save an estimated £200 million in the current year.

TREASURY

Beer Duty

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what representations he has received regarding progressive beer duty; and if he will make a statement. [67946]

Mrs. Roche: I have received representations about progressive beer duty from the Independent Family Brewers of Britain and the Society of Independent Brewers. Customs and Excise keep the structure of beer under constant review.

Tax Credits

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if decisions of the Inland Revenue General and Special Commissioners with regard to working families tax credit and disabled person's tax credit will be published. [67985]

Dawn Primarolo [holding answer 1 March 1999]: Most appeals in relation to Working Families Tax Credit will be dealt with by the Unified Appeals Tribunals. Appeals relating to employers will be to the General and Special Commissioners and these will be subject to the same reporting considerations as other tax appeals coming before the Commissioners.

Working Families Tax Credit

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what representations he has received from (a) the right hon. Member for Berwick-upon-Tweed (Mr. Beith) and (b) other Liberal Democrat hon. Members concerning the working families tax credit. [68336]

Dawn Primarolo [holding answer 1 March 1999]: Treasury Ministers have received numerous representations on the subject of the Working Families Tax Credit from hon. Members and other interested parties.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what research his Department has commissioned on the national impact of the proposed working families tax credit on poorer income groups; [69851]

(2) what research his Department has commissioned on the impact of the proposed working families tax credit on poorer income groups. [70215]

Dawn Primarolo: The Government have carried out extensive work on all aspects of WFTC and its implementation.

Agenda 2000

Mr. David Heath: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the relationship between the calculation of the British rebate under the Fontainebleau Agreement and the proposed system of co-financing of the Common Agricultural Policy in the Agenda 2000 proposals. [71647]

Ms Hewitt: Co-financing is one of the ideas explored in the Commission's Own Resources Report, but no legislative proposal has been formally tabled. The value of the rebate depends on the difference between the UK's contributions to the EC Budget and EC spending in this country.

714 Certificates

Mr. Cotter: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many of each type of 714 certificate have been issued in each of the last three years. [74134]

Dawn Primarolo: The number of certificates issued in the last three years are as follows:

Year ended 31 January 1999: 141,234

Year ended 31 January 1997: 171,424.

These figures include certificates issued to replace documents which have been lost or damaged. Certificates generally have a life of up to three years, so many certificate holders will have applied for just one certificate in this three year period.

Construction Industry Scheme

Mr. Cotter: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what representations he has received concerning the construction industry scheme. [74133]

Dawn Primarolo: The Inland Revenue has consulted widely and at length with the construction industry and other representative bodies, including the construction industry unions and the Federation of Small Businesses. Broadly, the representatives welcome the new scheme, which is designed to reduce the level of tax evasion in the construction industry. Naturally, concerns have been raised by those subcontractors who may not qualify for gross payment certificates under the new rules. I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Cheltenham (Mr. Jones) on 26 January 1999, Official Report, column 223, explaining the steps we have taken to address these concerns.

Office of Fair Trading Report

Mr. Love: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what action he is planning as a result of the Office of Fair Trading report on vulnerable consumers and financial services; and if he will make a statement. [74174]

Ms Hewitt: The Director General's report is being studied by the policy action team on access to financial services, set up following the Social Exclusion Unit's report "Bringing Britain together".

South Korea

Mr. Davidson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps he is taking to ensure that IMF support for South Korea is not used to subsidise South Korean shipyards. [74011]

Ms Hewitt: The UK strongly supports Korea's IMF programme, the benefits of which are now being felt as that country begins to move out of recession. A revived Korean economy will provide increased opportunities for UK exporters.

There is no evidence that IMF support for South Korea has been used to subsidise the Korean shipbuilding industry. As a member of the World Trade Organisation, South Korea is bound by internationally agreed rules on the use of industrial subsidies. Furthermore, as part of its IMF programme, Korea has ceased the practice of trade-related subsidies. However, the UK remains watchful for unfair trade practices throughout the world.

Banking/Credit Union Taskforce

Mr. Love: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what consultation he has had with the Banking/Credit Union Taskforce following receipt of their interim report; what advice he has given regarding the focus for the final report; what is the timetable for publication; and if he will make a statement. [74177]

Ms Hewitt: I see the taskforce Chairman from time to time, to discuss progress. I expect the final report, due in the summer, to deal with the issues set out in the remit announced on 28 July 1998.

Euro

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the method of setting exchange rates on entry to the euro for those who joined in January and how the rate will be decided for the pound in the event of sterling being replaced by the euro. [74124]

Ms Hewitt: The rate at which sterling would enter the single currency would need to be consistent with economic fundamentals in the UK and compatible with sustainable convergence between the UK and the euro-area. This was the basis for the decision on the conversion rates of currencies which joined the single currency in January 1999.

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he proposes to maintain relative stability between sterling and the euro for a fixed period before the national changeover plan comes into operation. [74120]

Ms Hewitt: The Government's policy is for a stable and competitive exchange-rate over the medium term. The Government's fiscal and monetary policy framework will help to deliver the macroeconomic stability needed for a stable exchange rate.

European Union

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will list the gross and net (a) payments to and (b) receipts from the European Union per capita in respect of each member state in each of the last three years. [74119]

Ms Hewitt: The European Commission document "Financing the European Union—Commission Report on the Operation of the Own Resources System" contains information on the net contributions of Member States for the years 1992–97 inclusive, and gives this figure in Mecus (million ecus) and as a percentage of GNP. This report has been deposited in the Commons Library.

Public Trust Office

Mrs. May: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment his Department has made of the impact of the abolition of dividend tax credits on the investment income of the Public Trust Office with particular reference to funds held for disabled children arising from compensation awards. [73807]

Dawn Primarolo [holding answer 1 March 1999]: The Government withdrew payable credits to remove a bias in the tax system against the retention of profits for investment. It is for the Public Trust Office to review the investments under its management and to make investment decisions in the interests of the beneficiaries in question.

Minimum Wage

Mr. Trickett: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what is his estimate of the number of people living in (a) Wakefield District and (b) West Yorkshire who will benefit from the introduction of a minimum wage; and what proportion of the employed population in each area this number represents; [74042]

(2) what is his estimate of the number of people who will benefit from the introduction of a minimum wage, living in the Hemsworth constituency; and what proportion of the employed population this represents. [74038]

Ms Hewitt: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the Director of the Office for National Statistics. I have asked him to reply.

Letter from Tim Holt to Mr. Jon Trickett, dated 3 March 1999:

As Director of the Office for National Statistics (ONS), I have been asked to reply to your recent parliamentary questions on the number of people who will benefit from the introduction of the proposed national minimum wage (NMW).

The precise information you request is unavailable. The New Earnings Survey (NES) collects information for the employee's work address, and so can only provide estimates for those who work, not live, in a particular area. The NES also provides estimates of the percentage of those earning below specified earnings thresholds, rather than numbers, because appropriate grossing factors for NES sample are not available at very detailed levels of disaggregation. The release of NES data is restricted to figures which are derived from a sufficiently large sample and which have an acceptable level of accuracy. Accordingly, no estimates for the parliamentary constituency of Hemsworth can be given.

The available information, from the 1998 NES, is provided in the table below. It provides an historical position against the 1998 values of the proposed NMW, and makes no judgment on whether its introduction will have any effect on the number of jobs.

Employees, whose pay for the survey period was unaffected by absence. Hourly pay excluding overtime and shift pay (£), April 1998:

| | Percentage aged 18 to 21 on all rates earning less than £2.90 | Percentage aged 22 and over on adult rates earning less than £3.50 |
|---|---|---|
| Hemsworth | '— | '— |
| Wakefield Local Authority | '— | 5.5 |
| West Yorkshire | 4.4 | 4.5 |

Building Industry Sub-contractors (Tax Owed)

Mr. Viggers: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what plans he has to enable sub-contractors in the building industry earning less than £30,000 a year to spread the payments of tax owed in relation to different years after 1 April. [74395]

Dawn Primarolo: Building workers, as any other taxpayers, are expected to make proper arrangements to ensure their tax payments are made on time. Under existing arrangements, any person who has difficulty in making a tax payment can contact the Collector of Taxes to see whether it may be paid in instalments. Those arrangements will continue to apply to sub-contractors following the introduction of the new scheme.

Individual Savings Accounts

Mr. Loughton: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what estimate he has made of the amount of money to be invested in ISA schemes by 5 April 2000; [R] [74047]

(2) how many non-PEP investors he now expects to open an ISA in the financial year 1999–2000. [R] [74046]

Ms Hewitt [holding answer 2 March 1999]: The Government are introducing the ISA to develop and extend the saving habit and ensure that tax relief on savings is fairly distributed. Half the population currently has less than £200 in savings. We are confident that ISAs will be attractive to significant numbers of new savers over the coming years.

Home Insulation Materials

Mr. Loughton: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the effect on sales of home insulation materials covered by local authority grant schemes of changes to the VAT rate in the last Budget. [74067]

Ms Hewitt [holding answer 2 March 1999]: The extension of the reduced rate of VAT to certain grant funded installations of energy saving materials will have allowed more installations to be carried out within existing budgets.

Customs and Excise are currently assessing the effect of the change to the VAT rate, and have already written to a number of local authorities, trade bodies and grant providers seeking their views.

Personal Equity Plans

Mr. Loughton: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will estimate how much money is currently invested in PEP schemes. [R] [74045]

Ms Hewitt [holding answer 2 March 1999]: The latest estimate of the value of PEP funds is published in table 9.2 of "Inland Revenue Statistics 1998", a copy of which is in the Library.

Cancer Treatments

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the rate of success in curing (a) lung, (b) breast, (c) testicular, (d) prostate, (e) ovarian, (f) bowel and (g) other cancers has been in the most recent period for which figures are available in (i) England, (ii) Wales, (iii) Scotland, (iv) Northern Ireland and (v) each other EU country. [74054]

Ms Hewitt [holding answer 2 March 1999]: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the Director of the Office for National Statistics. I have asked him to reply.

Letter from Tim Holt to Mrs. Claire Curtis-Thomas, dated 3 March 1999:

As Director of the Office for National Statistics, I have been asked to reply to your recent question on rates of success in curing cancers.

It is not possible to say whether or not patients are cured—although when the relative survival curve "flattens off" the patients are dying at the same rate as the general population (same age and sex); and for most cancers five-year relative survival rates are often taken to be 'cure' rates.

The rates of survival from cancers diagnosed in England and Wales were most recently published in ONS Monitor MB1 98/1, a copy of which is in the library of the House. The survival rates for Scotland were most recently published in Trends in cancer survival in Scotland 1968–1990, ISD Scotland, 1993, while the rates for European countries (including England and Scotland) were published in the volume, Survival of cancer patients in Europe—the EUROCARE study, IARC Scientific Publications no.132. These publications are also held in the House of Commons library. Survival rates are not available for Northern Ireland.

Population Projections

Mr. Drew: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will list the changes in assumptions made in the latest sub-national population projections. [73915]

Ms Hewitt: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the Director of the Office for National Statistics. I have asked him to reply.

Letter from Tim Holt to Mr. David Drew, dated 3 March 1999:

As Director of the Office for National Statistics (ONS), I have been asked to reply to your recent question asking about the changes to the assumptions used in the latest subnational population projections.

The latest subnational population projections for English local and health authorities are based on the mid-1996 population estimates. These projections replace the previous set that were based on mid-1993 population estimates. The assumptions underlying the calculation of the projections are based on recent demographic trends and do not reflect the impact of future policies.

The assumptions underlying these latest projections are slightly different to the 1993 set. The main differences are that the new subnational projections use more recent data on fertility, mortality and migration to produce the baseline assumptions for each local authority; and that they sum to the latest national population projections for England that are produced by the Government Actuary's Department. The main difference to these assumptions is that the level of net international migration is now significantly higher in the medium term.

These data were subject to consultation with the local and health authorities and the assumptions were refined following comments received during this consultation exercise. Changes were made to the migration assumptions for local authorities if information was provided that indicated that the long term trends were unlikely to continue into the future. Other changes were made to address concerns raised about the quality and use of the internal migration data. Changes made as a result of the consultation for any one authority will affect the assumptions for all other authorities as the projections must sum to the national population projections. The ONS publication, 1996-based Subnational Population Projections, England (PP3 no 10), due out later this year, will explain this in more detail.

Credit Unions

Mr. Drew: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what plans he has to review the VAT status of credit unions, with particular reference to their ability to claim back VAT paid on purchases of goods and services. [73942]

Ms Hewitt: The Chancellor of the Exchequer has no plans to review the VAT status of credit unions, including their ability to claim back VAT paid on goods and services.

Construction Industry (Tax Evasion)

Mr. Cotter: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of tax revenue due to the Exchequer which has been fraudulently evaded by subcontractors in the construction industry in each of the last three years. [74158]

Dawn Primarolo: It is estimated that unpaid tax written off in respect of construction industry subcontractors is at least £50 million per annum. This represents only a part of the total, unquantifiable loss to the Exchequer of tax and class 4 national insurance contributions evaded by subcontractors in this industry.

EDUCATION AND EMPLOYMENT

New Deal Entrants

Mr. Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment how many 18 to 24-year-olds who had joined the New Deal had left for unknown destinations by 31 December 1998. [67480]

Mr. Andrew Smith [holding answer 25 January 1999]: Responsibility for the subject of the question has been delegated to the Employment Service agency under its Chief Executive. I have asked him to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from Leigh Lewis to Mr. Damian Green, dated 3 March 1999:

As the Employment Service is an Executive Agency, the Secretary of State for Education and Employment has asked me to reply direct to your question regarding the number of 18–24 year olds who have joined New Deal and have left for unknown destinations. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of the Agency.

The latest available figures are for the end of December and were published on 25 February in the DfEE Statistical First Release. These show that of the 214,000 young people who had started New Deal, 25,680 had left the Gateway to unknown destinations.

We have taken steps to make more effective links between different sources of information about people's destinations and we have been conducting monthly follow-up surveys of these clients. These have established that many of those who sign off benefit without stating their destination have actually found work. In December, for example, around half of leavers into unknown destinations, who have, on being contacted, divulged their destination, had actually found work.

In addition to the monthly survey, we are also investigating changes to the Employment Service's IT systems in order to establish whether it is possible to capture better destination information initially.

The latest figures to the end of December show that 19% of leavers from the Gateway leave for unknown destinations. This is lower than for other leavers from Jobseeker's Allowance.

Civil Servants (Misconduct)

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment if he will list the offences or acts of misconduct under which a civil servant in his Department could have his pension removed or reduced; and how often this has happened during the last five years. [70774]

Mr. Mudie: I refer the right hon. Member to the answer given by my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Secretary, Cabinet Office on 15 February 1999, Official Report, column 569.

New Deal Publications

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment if he will list the publications issued since 1 May 1997 relating to the New Deal, giving the total cost per publication and the numbers of each publication which have been produced. [71493]

Mr. Andrew Smith [holding answer 25 February 1999]: The following table of New Deal publications shows the total cost of each publication and the number produced. The amounts shown include the cost for any updating and reprinting as necessary, and the production of ethnic minority language and Welsh bilingual versions.

Ofsted Inspectors (Hotel Accommodation)

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment (1) for how many nights Ofsted inspectors stayed in the Lumley Castle hotel during their recent inspection of Park View Community School; [73288]

(2) what was the average cost per night for Ofsted inspectors who had to stay away from home in the last year for which figures are available; [73308]

(3) if he will publish a breakdown of the costs incurred by Ofsted inspectors of inspecting Park View Community School in Chester le Street. [73309]

Ms Estelle Morris: These are matters for HM Chief Inspector of Schools and I have therefore asked Chris Woodhead to write to the right hon. Member and to place a copy of his letter in the Library.

Internet Domain Names

Dr. Palmer: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what progress is being made on assigning internet domain names to schools; and if he will make a statement. [73646]

Mr. Charles Clarke: Some 6,000 schools have Internet domain names. It is currently a matter for schools to agree Internet domain names with their Internet Service or Access Provider. The Department is considering the current arrangements with Nominet, the UK Internet Names organisation with a view to deciding whether any changes are needed.

Teachers' Pay

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what representations he has received concerning performance-related pay for teachers and if he will make a statement. [73973]

Ms Estelle Morris: The consultation period on the Green Paper "Teachers: meeting the challenge of change" and the companion "Technical Consultation Document on Pay and Performance Management" runs until 31 March 1999. Views have been invited on the performance management model proposed in those documents, including links between appraisal and pay. To date the Government have received over 16,000 responses on these and the other proposals set out in the Green Paper.

Non-teaching Support Staff

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what representations he has received concerning the pay levels of non-teaching support staff following the implementation of the Single Status Agreement in North Yorkshire. [73975]

Ms Estelle Morris: The Department has received one written inquiry from the right hon. Member for Skipton and Ripon (Mr. Curry) in addition to some 50 letters from members of the public.

Education Standards

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what assessment he has made of education standards since May 1997 for the boroughs of (a) Middlesbrough, (b) Redcar and Cleveland, (c) Hartlepool and (d) Stockton. [74012]

Ms Estelle Morris: Statistics showing the standards of attainment by pupils in each local authority area are published in annual performance tables. A summary of recent results in the named areas are set out in the following tables. A sample of schools in each authority is inspected annually by OFSTED and reports published which include judgments about standards of attainment and the quality of education. A programme of inspections of all local education authorities is now being carried out by OFSTED, but none of the named authorities has yet been inspected. All authorities have just submitted for approval an Education Development Plan which includes a three-year programme for securing school improvement, and targets including those for pupil performance at ages 11 and 16 which will be monitored in future years.

Lifelong Learning

Mr. Chaytor: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment how many responses have been received to his Department's invitation to establish lifelong learning strategic partnerships, indicating how many responses identified a lead partner which was (a) a local authority, (b) a college of further education, (c) a training and enterprise council/chamber of commerce, training and enterprise and (d) none of the above. [74035]

Mr. Mudie: There has been a great deal of interest from local organisations who wish to become members of strategic Lifelong Learning Partnerships. These include local authorities, colleges of further education and training and enterprise councils. Government Offices are currently working with all the organisations who have expressed an interest, to establish boundaries and bring together organisations in strategic partnerships which meet the needs of the localities. Therefore, numbers of partnerships and information about lead organisations are not available at this stage.

Education Business Partnerships

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment if he will list the various education business partnerships by local education authority indicating the recent annual spending levels of each. [74026]

Ms Estelle Morris: The Department does not collect this information. Education Business Partnerships operate on an independent basis.

New Deal (Trainees)

Mr. Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment how many New Deal for Young People trainees were employed by the Employment Service on 31 January. [74218]

Mr. Andrew Smith [holding answer 2 March 1999]: Responsibility for the subject of the question has been delegated to the Employment Service agency under its Chief Executive. I have asked him to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from Leigh Lewis to Mr. Damian Green, dated 3 March 1999:

As the Employment Service is an Executive Agency, the Secretary of State for Education and Employment has asked me to reply to your question about the number of 18–24 year olds who have been employed by the Employment Service under the New Deal initiative. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of the Agency.

As of 31 January 1999, the Employment Service had 240 New Deal for 18–24 year old employees in post.

I hope this is helpful.

School Organisation Plans

Mr. Chope: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment when he expects the regulations on the preparation and implementation of school organisation plans will be published. [74147]

Ms Estelle Morris [holding answer 2 March 1999]: The Education (School Organisation Plans) (England) Regulations 1999 will be laid in the second week of March to come into force on 1 April.

Age Diversity

Mr. Gordon Marsden: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what plans he has to evaluate the effectiveness of the code of practice on age diversity when it is published. [74975]

Mr. Andrew Smith: The evaluation will look in detail at employer policies and practices in recruitment and employment and the impact this has on age diversity in their workforce. After a competitive tendering exercise, we have commissioned an independent organisation, NOP, to carry out a large scale research project to help evaluate the effectiveness of the Code.

An employer survey will involve telephone interviews with a random sample of companies employing 10 or more people. The sample will provide a good coverage of different industrial sectors, regions and size of employers. There will also be in-depth case studies in order to explore practices and attitudes towards age discrimination in employment in more detail and to discuss the issues with managers and workers at the establishment.

In addition, a random sample of older people will be interviewed on their current situation and their employment experiences and on whether they have experienced any employment discrimination on grounds of age.

In order to provide a baseline against which to measure change, an initial survey of employers and individuals is being carried out prior to the publication of the Code. Two further surveys will be carried out, towards the end of this year and in late Autumn 2000 to measure the impact of the Code. The evaluation will be completed and findings published early in 2001.

We will also be using the range of key labour market indicators that we set out in Annex E of Action on Age to monitor changes and trends in the labour market activity of older workers. These will be published annually in June.

HEALTH

Centre for Applied Microbiology and Research

Mr. Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement about the future arrangements for the Centre for Applied Microbiology and Research at Porton Down. [72627]

Mr. Dobson: I have decided that the Centre for Applied Microbiology and Research (CAMR) will remain intact under continued Department of Health sponsorship at least until the next Quinquennial Review. CAMR is remaining in the public sector because of its strategic importance.

Medicines (Testing)

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the average cost of undertaking testing of a medical product preparatory to its assessment by the Medicines Control Agency. [73311]

Ms Jowell: None. The information needed to calculate this estimate is not available centrally.

Cystic Fibrosis (Prescriptions)

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will estimate the current number of cystic fibrosis sufferers in the United Kingdom and the annual costs of their prescriptions. [73316]

Mr. Hutton: Statistical Information on the numbers of people with cystic fibrosis is not collected centrally. However, according to the clinical guidelines for cystic fibrosis care published jointly by the Cystic Fibrosis Trust, the British Paediatric Association and the British Thoracic Society in 1996, there were an estimated 6,250 people with cystic fibrosis in the United Kingdom in 1994.

Information for all prescriptions dispensed to people with cystic fibrosis is not available. Most drugs dispensed to people with cystic fibrosis are not specific to that condition. However, both pancreatin preparations and dornase alfa are specifically indicated for the management of cystic fibrosis. In 1997, the net ingredient cost of these drugs dispensed in the community in England was £5.0 million and £9.0 million respectively. The net ingredient cost is the basic cost of a drug and does not take account of discounts, dispensing costs, fees or prescription charges income.

Waiting Lists

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what financial incentives are being offered to clinicians and paramedical staff to reduce present waiting lists. [73883]

Mr. Hutton: We have provided significant additional resources to the National Health Service, linked to specific targets for reductions in waiting lists. It is a matter for local NHS bodies how best to deploy these resources, including the levels of remuneration payable to staff for the additional work carried out in meeting these targets.

Spinal Treatment

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if it is his policy that invasive procedures carried out in the course of spinal treatment should be replaced by safer practices. [73968]

Mr. Hutton: Magnetic resonance imaging (MRI) is the methodology of choice in the investigation of spinal conditions. However, we have no plans to replace invasive procedures entirely. For some patients unsuitable for MRI, invasive procedures may remain necessary. It is for clinicians to use their skills, knowledge and experience to weigh carefully the likely benefits of any treatment or procedure against the anticipated risk for the patient and, following discussion with the patient, to exercise their clinical judgment accordingly.

Control and Restraint Technique (Nurses)

Mrs. Brinton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many deaths have occurred in the United Kingdom as (a) a direct and (b) an indirect result of the use of control and restraint techniques by nurses; and if he will give a breakdown by ethnicity of the deceased. [74339]

Mr. Hutton: The information requested is not collected centrally.

Norvic Clinic, Norwich

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many deaths or injuries have occurred in the Norvic Clinic in Norwich as (a) a direct and (b) indirect result of the use of restriction techniques by nursing staff; and if he will provide a breakdown by ethnicity of the deceased. [74070]

Mr. Hutton: No deaths have occurred as a direct result of the use of control and restraint techniques by nursing staff at the Norvic Clinic in Norwich. A black Afro-Caribbean patient was pronounced dead on 31 October 1998 after an incident in which control and restraint techniques were being applied, but the Coroner's Inquest into that case has yet to be held.

Between 2 November 1997 and 4 December 1998 there were 45 occasions when control and restraint techniques were applied by nursing staff. No injuries were sustained by patients as a result of those procedures. Four members of staff were injured during the incidents.

Allergies (Children)

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research his Department has commissioned into allergic reactions in children. [74292]

Ms Jowell: The Department's policy research programme and the National Health Service research and development programmes are supporting a range of research on allergies in children and adults and will continue to do so. The Medical Research Council, the main agency through which the Government supports biomedical and clinical research, by means of a grant-in-aid from the Office of Science and Technology in the Department of Trade and Industry, is also funding relevant research, including the study of infections, immunity and inflammations, which will underpin work on allergies.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Road Fuel Gases

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many (a) HGV vehicles and (b) public transport vehicles have been converted to road fuel gases since January 1997. [72918]

Mr. Paul Murphy: The Department of the Environment for Northern Ireland does not hold figures for HGV vehicles converted to road fuel gases. The public transport company "Translink" has indicated that none of their public transport vehicles has been converted to road fuel gases since January 1997.

Exiles

Mr. Barnes: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what estimate she has made of the number of people who have been exiled from Northern Ireland by paramilitary groups since the Good Friday agreement. [73354]

Mr. Ingram: Information is not collected by the Government in the form requested.

Schizophrenia Psychoses

Sir Alastair Goodlad: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people with a main diagnosis of schizophrenia psychoses were discharged from mental illness hospitals in Northern Ireland in each of the last three years; and how many of them were taken into local authority residential care in the same year. [73359]

Mr. McFall: The information available is as follows:

| Year | Deaths and discharges | Discharges to statutory sector residential accommodation |
|---|---|---|
| 1993–94 | 1,394 | 57 |
| 1994–95 | 1,448 | 50 |
| 1995–96 | 1,396 | 37 |

Statutory sector refers to facilities managed by Health and Social Services Boards and Trusts.

Sir Alastair Goodlad: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what research projects her Department is funding in the current year to test the effectiveness of community care for people suffering from schizophrenia psychoses; and if she will make a statement. [73364]

Mr. McFall: The Department of Health and Social Services is funding no such projects in the current year either directly or through the Research and Development Office (RDO). In general, in order to ensure that funded research projects are of high quality, the RDO does not attempt to cover all possible areas of concern, but does seek to facilitate the dissemination of research findings.

Sir Alastair Goodlad: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if she will list the admissions by diagnosis and order of admission indicating the percentage changes over the previous year in numbers and rates per 100,000 population of patients suffering from schizophrenia psychoses in Northern Ireland in the last year for which figures are available. [73367]

Mr. McFall: The table shows admissions for schizophrenia at Northern Ireland Mental illness hospitals by first admission and total admissions in 1994–95:

| | First admissions | Total admissions |
|---|---|---|
| Number | 254 | 1,152 |
| Percentage change since 1993–94 | –8.3 | +9.2 |
| Rate per 100,000 population | 9.4 | 4.3 |

Sir Alastair Goodlad: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people with a main diagnosis of schizophrenia psychoses were admitted for a hospital stay more than once during the last year in Northern Ireland. [73363]

Mr. McFall: In year ending 31 March 1996, 224 people with a primary diagnosis of schizophrenia were admitted to hospital more than once during the year with the same diagnosis.

Sir Alastair Goodlad: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many current occupants of National Health Service hospital and unit beds in Northern Ireland have a main diagnosis of schizophrenia psychoses; and what these occupied beds represent as a percentage of (a) mental and (b) all beds in Northern Ireland. [74269]

Mr. McFall: This information is not held centrally. Information on diagnosis for current bed occupants is not available as diagnosis is only given on discharge.

Sir Alastair Goodlad: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people discharged from mental illness hospitals in Northern Ireland in the last year after a main diagnosis of schizophrenia psychoses, having been proved vulnerable homeless, subsequently became voluntary homeless. [74272]

Mr. McFall: This information is not held centrally.

Zimbabwe

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what official visits she, her Ministers or officials have made to Zimbabwe since May 1997; whom they met; and what was discussed. [73685]

Marjorie Mowlam: None.

Single Currency

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what plans she has to issue information from her Department to help the public make an informed decision when they vote on the single currency. [73585]

Mr. Paul Murphy: Any plans by the Government to issue information during a referendum campaign on whether or not the UK should join the single currency would be made in the light of the Government's response to the recommendations from the Neill Committee on the conduct of referendums. The Government will announce their conclusions on those recommendations when my right hon. Friend the Home Secretary publishes a White paper and draft Bill before the summer recess.

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if she will list the subject areas within her Department's responsibilities which will be covered by the information campaign on Britain's membership of a single currency. [73671]

Mr. Paul Murphy: The Treasury will continue its dialogue with key external bodies to determine what information the public and business would need at each stage of the changeover process. Any information campaign would cover key concerns that the public and business may have. Chapter 8 of the Treasury's Outline National Changeover Plan provides further information. Copies of the Plan are available in the House Library.

Brit Awards

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if she will list those ministers in her Department who were present at the recent Brit awards in an official capacity; and who or what organisation was acting as their sponsor or host. [73496]

Marjorie Mowlam: No Minister in my Department attended the Brit Awards in an official capacity. I attended the awards on the acceptance of a personal invitation from the British Phonographic Industry Limited.

Wheelchair Service

Mr. John D. Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what is the total estimated cost, including (a) printing, (b) times and (c) staff, in the preparation of the booklet, "The Wheelchair Service", by the Southern Health and Social Services Council; which other area health boards and area health councils have already published documents on the Wheelchair Service; to what extent there is duplication amongst the documents; and if she will make a statement. [73572]

Mr. McFall: The total external cost of publishing the booklet "The Wheelchair Service—The Experiences and Perceptions of Users", is estimated at £4,800 shared equally between joint publishers, Southern Health and Social Services Board and Southern Health and Social Services Council. The project began in December 1997 and was completed in January 1999. Two members of staff from the Council and three board officers were involved in developing the booklet as part of their on-going responsibilities to commission and assess the service needs of their users. As an integral part of the Board's and Council's activities, the total staff time attributed to this project is estimated at 25 man-days over the 13 month period. A detailed breakdown of staff costs is not readily available.

The Western and Northern Health and Social Services Boards have carried out reviews of their commissioning arrangements for wheelchair services within the past three years. Reports of these reviews, which were conducted as an integral part of the Board's activities, were not formally published. Whilst these reviews may have covered some of the same ground, they were specific to their respective areas and therefore cannot be considered to constitute any duplication.

The provision of wheelchairs appropriate to the needs of users and supplied by an efficient service is a key element in promoting the independence and mobility of people with disabilities. Their views are important in informing and shaping the services they use and this most recent survey has provided users, and their carers, with a vehicle for contributing to the improvement of a service upon which they greatly depend.

Rates

Mr. John D. Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if district councils are obliged to set a rate in public; and if she will make a statement. [73570]

Mr. Paul Murphy: Section 23 of the Local Government Act (Northern Ireland) 1972 requires that every meeting of a district council shall be open to the public. A council may, by resolution, exclude the public from a council meeting whenever publicity would be prejudicial to the public interest, for example, in the case of meeting at which confidential business is to be transacted or for other special reasons defined by the council. There is, however, no specific legislation which obliges a district council to set a rate in public.

Pensioners (Concessionary Travel)

Mr. Beggs: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many persons in Northern Ireland are registered as pensioners; and how many (a) males over 65 years and (b) females over 60 years use concessionary fare schemes. [73985]

Mr. McFall: The latest available information shows that at 15 January 1999 there were 237,546 persons in receipt of State Retirement Pension. This total is comprised of 82,963 males and 154,583 females.

The Department of the Environment for Northern Ireland does not hold figures for males over 65 years and females over 60 years who use concessionary fare schemes.

Sewage Disposal

Mr. Beggs: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (1) when the permitted level of expenditure per household for providing new sewage disposal provision was last determined; and what sum is used as the basis for determining the viability of a new project; [73982]

(2) if she will increase the permitted level of expenditure per household for connection to mains sewage disposal; and if she will make a statement. [73983]

Mr. Paul Murphy: Responsibility for the subject in question has been delegated to the Water Service under its Chief Executive, Mr. H. R. F. Plester. I have asked him to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from D. Carson to Mr. Roy Beggs, dated 2 March 1999:

You recently asked the Secretary of State to answer two Parliamentary Questions about the permitted level of expenditure per household for connection to mains sewerage, when it was last determined and whether the level of expenditure will be increased. You also asked what sum is used as the basis for determining the viability of a new project.

These questions have been forwarded to the Chief Executive of Water Service, Mr. HRF Plester, for reply. Mr. Plester is currently on leave and I am replying as the Service's Director of Finance.

The Department of the Environment's statutory duty, under the Water and Sewerage Services (Northern Ireland) Order 1973, to provide sewerage facilities operates within the limitations that such provision must be both practicable, in engineering terms, and can be made at reasonable cost. Since 1973, therefore, reasonable cost allowances have been available for first time connections to the sewerage infrastructure. The maximum allowance is currently £2,300 per domestic property (or equivalent). This maximum was set in 1986. It is currently under review by the Department.

The Water Service test of viability for any new sewerage extension project is the £2,300 maximum reasonable cost allowance multiplied by the number of properties to be served by the scheme.

Perhaps I can clarify by giving a model example. If, for instance, the number of domestic properties to be served by a sewer extension scheme is ten then the total Departmental expenditure available for the work is the reasonable cost maximum multiplied by ten—$10 \times £2,300 = £23,000$. If the actual cost of provision is at or below this level, and the work involved is practicable, then the Water Service can programme the project in its capital works planning, subject to overall priorities.

If the cost of any scheme is estimated to be in excess of the maximum allowance calculated for the work then the applicant (or applicants) for the sewer extension may agree to pay the additional monies necessary to take the work ahead. The Water Service can then also programme the project in its capital works planning, subject to practicability and overall priorities.

I hope this explains the position clearly for you. Mr. Plester is happy to arrange a meeting to go into the matter in greater depth if you should wish this on his return. His secretary Mrs. Lynda Boyd can make necessary diary arrangements if contacted at the telephone number given above.

Beef Exports

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what has been the value of beef exports from Northern Ireland following the lifting of the ban; and if she will make a statement. [73751]

Mr. Paul Murphy: There is only one company involved in the export of beef from Northern Ireland since the lifting of the ban. In the circumstances the requested information cannot be provided as it is commercial in confidence.

CS Sprays

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if the Royal Ulster Constabulary has issued its police officers with CS sprays; how many police officers in Northern Ireland currently carry CS sprays; and for what reasons they were issued. [74266]

Mr. Ingram: The Royal Ulster Constabulary has not issued CS sprays to its officers.

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if CS gas has been issued to the Royal Ulster Constabulary at any time since 1969. [74267]

Mr. Ingram: CS Gas has not been on issue to officers of the Royal Ulster Constabulary since circa. 1970.

Good Practice

Mr. McNamara: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if the Equality Commission is modelling future good practice for the new Government departments in Northern Ireland by including those directly affected by its decisions in its consultations. [73737]

Mr. Paul Murphy [holding answer 2 March 1999]: The Equality Commission has not yet been established, however paragraph 4(3)(a) of Schedule 9 of the Northern Ireland Act 1998 gives the Commission the authority to issue guidelines on the form and content of equality schemes.

It will be for the Commission, when it is formed, to decide on the extent of any consultation on those guidelines. Equality schemes will include details of each public authority's arrangements for consulting on matters to which a duty under section 75 of the Act is likely to be relevant.

Equality Commission Working Group

Mr. McNamara: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if she will list those who were invited to the 19 February consultative meeting of the Equality Commission Working Group, indicating those who attended. [73739]

Mr. Paul Murphy [holding answer 2 March 1999]: I have placed in the Library a list of those who were invited to the 19 February consultative meeting of the Equality Commission Working Group and have indicated those who attended.

Mr. McNamara: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if she will publish the list of those who were circulated with the consultative paper prepared by the Equality Commission Working Group. [73738]

Mr. Paul Murphy [holding answer 2 March 1999]: I have placed in the Library a list of those organisations and individuals to whom the Consultative Paper, prepared by the Equality Commission Working Group, was circulated.

Mr. McNamara: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many and which organisations, excluding the existing equality agencies, are represented on the Equality Commission Working Group. [73736]

Mr. Paul Murphy [holding answer 2 March 1999]: In addition to representatives of the existing equality bodies, the Working Group includes a representative of the trade unions to which the majority of staff in the existing bodies, belong and an independent Chairman, Dr. Joan Stringer. The views of other organisations are being taken into account through a consultation process.

Mr. McNamara: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if she will place in the Library copies of the working papers being considered by the Equality Commission Working Group. [73740]

Mr. Paul Murphy [holding answer 2 March 1999]: Copies of working papers on the Equality Commission Working Group are a matter for the Group and not my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State.

I have arranged for a copy of the Consultative Paper to be placed in the Library. The final report of the Working Group, which I expect to receive during the first half of March, will also be placed in the Library.

Equality Commission

Mr. McNamara: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what proposals she has to ensure persons dealing with disability and racial discrimination in employment in the new Equality Commission will have similar expertise to that of their colleagues for the Fair Employment Commission and the Equal Opportunities Commission. [73741]

Mr. Paul Murphy [holding answer 3 March 1999]: This is a matter being considered by the Working Group and I await their proposals. The current resources in respect of disability and race will be made available to the Equality Commission and I expect there to be continuity of personnel dealing with both issues. Staff development will be a key consideration for the new Commission.

Mr. McNamara: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps she is taking to ensure that advice is given to employers and assistance to disabled complainants between the establishment of the Equality Commission and the introduction of the new disability enforcement powers. [73742]

Mr. McFall [holding answer 3 March 1999]: During the period between the establishment of the Equality Commission and the introduction of the new disability enforcement powers the Labour Relations Agency will continue to help employers and individuals with information on the employment provisions of the legislation and assistance related to its effects on industrial relations practices and procedures. In addition the DDA Helpline will continue to provide good practice advice and signpost callers to appropriate organisations.

Mr. McNamara: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what proposals she has to ensure that a complainant raising more than one type of discrimination receives appropriate advice and assistance. [73743]

Mr. Paul Murphy [holding answer 3 March 1999]: The single Equality Commission will help facilitate those complaints raising more than one type of discrimination. The Equality Commission Working Group is considering such matters as a staffing structure for the Commission to enable it to deliver services most effectively. I expect to receive the final report of the Group's recommendations in mid-March.

Mr. McNamara: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps she is taking to ensure the networking proposals of the draft legislation for a disability rights commission in Northern Ireland are implemented by the new Equality Commission. [73744]

Mr. McFall [holding answer 3 March 1999]: The intention is that with regard to disability the Equality Commission will have a similar role and functions to the Disability Rights Commission in Great Britain. The timing of the necessary legislation will be a matter for the Northern Ireland Assembly.

Mr. McNamara: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if the sums granted to the Equality Commission to deal with disability discrimination in Northern Ireland will reflect the amount given for similar purposes in Great Britain with suitable adjustments for the higher rate of disability in Northern Ireland than Great Britain. [73745]

Mr. McFall [holding answer 3 March 1999]: The Equality Commission will continue to have the resources available to the Northern Ireland Disability Council. The funding required by the Equality Commission to cover new responsibilities will be a matter for the Assembly. However, I expect that account will be taken of the amount given for similar purposes in Great Britain and of local circumstances.

Mr. McNamara: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if, following the dissolution of the Northern Ireland Disability Council, the new Equality Commission will take its place on the National Disability Council. [73746]

Mr. McFall [holding answer 3 March 1999]: Following the dissolution of the Northern Ireland Disability Council arrangements will be put in place to facilitate a close working relationship between the National Disability Council and the Equality Commission.

Lobbyists

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if she will make a statement on the role of professional lobbyists in formulating policy in her Department. [74362]

Mr. Paul Murphy: Any contacts with lobbyists by Ministers and civil servants in this Department are conducted in accordance with the "Ministerial Code" and "Guidance for Civil Servants: Contact with Lobbyists".

Provisional Sinn Fein

Mr. Peter Bottomley: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much public money will be given (a) this year and (b) next year to (i) Provisional Sinn Fein and (ii) FACT and FAIR. [70055]

Mr. Paul Murphy: The information for the Northern Ireland Office and the Northern Ireland Departments is as follows:

(a) In 1998–99, Sinn Fein is expected to receive £42,000 as Party Allowance in carrying out Assembly duties; FAIR (Families Acting for Innocent Relatives) will receive £4,000 in financial support; FACT (Families Against Crime and Terrorism) will receive no public money.

(b) No decisions have been taken on allocations for 1999–2000.

Disabled People

Mr. Berry: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what amounts in her Department's budget for 1998–99 can be attributed to spending on disabled people; and what proportion this represents of total departmental spending. [71280]

Mr. Paul Murphy: Information in the form requested is not readily available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost. However, an estimated £42.2 million has been identified as spending on specific measures to assist the disabled in 1998–99.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Arms Export Licences

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many applications for arms export licences were outstanding on 4 January. [71843]

Dr. Howells: The Export Control Organisation's computer databases have been interrogated and the following results were obtained. At the end of 4 January 1999, 778 applications for Standard Individual Export Licences (SIELs) and 114 applications for Open Individual Export Licences (OIELs) covering the export of goods subject to export control by being listed in Part III of Schedule 1 to the Export of Goods (Control) Order 1994, the so-called Military List, received since 2 May 1997, were awaiting a decision. Some applications may have been received on which no determination had been made as to whether or not the goods were controlled under the Military List. Such applications are not included.

This information should be considered in light of the answer given by my hon. Friend the Member for Hornsey and Wood Green (Mrs. Roche) to my hon. Friend the Member for Don Valley (Caroline Flint) on 30 October 1997, Official Report, columns 870–71.

This information does not cover any applications for Media OIELs that may have been pending at this time. Media OIELs authorise the export to all destinations of protective clothing, mainly for the protection of aid agency workers and journalists, when working in areas of conflict.

Departmental Responsibilities

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will list the issues covered by his Department's responsibilities with which (a) Lord Simon and (b) Lord Sainsbury do not deal. [72802]

Mr. Byers [holding answer 24 February 1999]: Lord Simon and Lord Sainsbury conform fully with the Ministerial Code in relation to all the DTI's responsibilities.

Brit Awards

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will list those Ministers in his Department who were present at the recent Brit awards in an official capacity; and who or what organisation was acting as their sponsor or host. [73349]

Mr. Byers: The Minister for Competition and Consumer Affairs attended the Brit Awards in his official capacity as Minister responsible for copyright issues. He was the guest of British Music Rights.

India (Trade Mission)

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will list the business men and women who took part in the recent trade mission to India. [73307]

Mr. Byers: Several British trade missions and exhibitor groups were associated with the recent Indian Engineering Trade Fair. UK Groups from Birmingham Chamber of Commerce and Industry, the Machine Tools Technologies Association, Leicestershire Chamber of Commerce and Industry, business Link Sandwell and business Link Sussex attended. A full list of companies participating is in the Libraries of both Houses.

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what plans his Department has made for him to lead a trade delegation to India since he took up his present office. [73692]

Mr. Byers: I hope to visit India later this year and will be accompanied by a business delegation.

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what representations were received by his officials during the recent Indian trade mission about ministerial attendance on that mission. [73287]

Mr. Byers: No such representation was received by my officials during the recent India trade mission.

Nuclear Tests

Mr. Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will make a statement on the actions taken by his Department further to the testing of nuclear devices by (a) India and (b) Pakistan. [73977]

Mr. Byers: I refer the hon. Member to the statement made by the Minister of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, my hon. Friend the Member for Manchester, Central (Mr. Lloyd), on 10 July 1998, Official Report, columns 687–88.

Measurement Units (Harmonisation)

Sir Richard Body: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will make a statement on the state of negotiations concerning the end of the derogation established by Directive 89/617/EEC relating to the harmonisation of units of measurement. [73769]

Dr. Howells: I refer to the reply which I gave to the right hon. Member for Penrith and The Border (Mr. Maclean) on 25 February 1999, Official Report, column 438.

Road Haulage Firms

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many road haulage firms have gone into liquidation in each year from 1995 to 1998. [74305]

Dr. Howells: The following table shows company compulsory liquidations and individual bankruptcies for the road transport industry in England and Wales, 1995–98. The road transport industry includes road haulage, car hire, taxis, bus services and other road passenger transport. Detailed figures solely for road haulage are not available.

Insolvencies: road transport industry
England and Wales

| Year | Company compulsory liquidations | Individual bankruptcy orders |
|---|---|---|
| 1995 | 204 | 924 |
| 1996 | 197 | 1,008 |
| 1997 | 174 | 971 |
| 1998[1] | 130 | 597 |

Source:
DTI

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many road haulage firms have transferred their head offices from the United Kingdom to mainland Europe in the last five years. [74306]

Ms Glenda Jackson: I have been asked to reply.

The information is not available in this form. Companies are required to register an address for correspondence for various legal purposes including goods operator licensing. This need not be the head office address so transfers of head offices would not be recorded as such.

BNFL

Mr. Chaytor: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment he has made of the interim report by KPMG on the proposed privatisation of BNFL; when the final report will be made public; and if he will make a statement. [73538]

Mr. Battle [holding answer 2 March 1999]: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave to my hon. Friend the Member for Blaenau Gwent (Mr. Smith) on 15 December 1998, Official Report, column 455.

Fireworks

Mr. Sawford: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what controls he proposes to introduce on the sale of fireworks. [74634]

Dr. Howells: The Fireworks (Safety) Regulations 1997 introduced comprehensive controls on the types and sizes of fireworks which can be supplied to the general public. I have no plans to introduce further controls on fireworks. However, I have asked DTI officials to explore ways in which the voluntary agreement on the selling period for fireworks in the run-up to Bonfire night can be strengthened and to consider the issue of sales in advance of the Millennium celebrations.

FE Lecturers (Employment Right)

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment he has made of the effects on the employment rights of further education lecturers of the judgment in Credit Suisse First Boston (Europe) Ltd. v. Lister by the Court of Appeal on 16 October 1998; and if he will make a statement. [74699]

Mr. Ian McCartney: The Court of Appeal's judgment in this case is consistent with established case law of the UK courts and of the European Court of Justice. Following a transfer of an undertaking within the meaning of the Transfer of Undertakings (Protection of Employment) Regulations 1981 and the EC Acquired Rights Directive of 1977 (which the Regulations implement in the UK), changes to the terms and conditions of affected employees are unlawful if they are for a reason connected to the transfer. There are no special considerations relating to further education lecturers.

EU Patent Directorate

Joan Ruddock: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment he has made of whether the EU Patent Directorate COM (95) 661 infringes the Convention on Biological Diversity. [74492]

Mr. Battle [holding answer 3 March 1999]: The adopted text of Directive 98/44/EC on the legal protection of biotechnological inventions (EU Patent Directive) explicitly states that it is without prejudice to the obligations of the Member States with regard to international agreements, including the convention on Biological Diversity. Moreover, the Directive notes that as the Community is party to the Convention, Member States must have regard to those aspects of the convention which concern patent rights when implementing the terms of the Directive. More generally, the relationship between patent rights and the Convention will be one of the agenda items for discussion at international level Convention meetings later this year. The United Kingdom Government have, and will continue to play, an active role in these discussions.

Mirror Group Newspapers

Mr. Chope: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if Lord Donoughue will be interviewed about his role in Mirror Group newspapers as part of the departmental investigation into its flotation. [74762]

Dr. Howells: The inspectors appointed under Companies Act powers to investigate and report on the flotation of Mirror Group Newspapers are independent of my Department. Their inquiries are conducted in private and it is not our policy to comment on who the inspectors decide to interview or not to interview during the course of their investigation.

Rogue Directors Hotline

Mr. Chope: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will publish complaints made to the Rogue Directors Hotline. [74763]

Dr. Howells: Complaints made to the Rogue Directors Hotline are treated as confidential and accordingly details of individual cases cannot be given. The Insolvency Service will publish statistics relating to the Hotline in its next Annual Report for the year to 31 March 1999.

Credit Unions

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what proposals he has to review the Post Office's policy of imposing a charge on membership cards for members of credit unions. [73913]

Mr. Ian McCartney [holding answer 3 March 1999]: Charging arrangements relating to credit union transactions at post offices are an operational and commercial matter for the Post Office, which incurs costs in providing such a service.

Mobile Phones

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what representations his Department has received from scientists concerning the use of mobile phones; and what discussions he has had with ministerial colleagues on this subject. [74529]

Mr. Wills: The Department has received no formal representations from scientists on this subject. Officials of the Department are in regular contact with scientists both in the UK and overseas, and in particular with the National Radiological Protection Board. I have not discussed this subject with ministerial colleagues.

Power Station Emissions

Mrs. Brinton: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment he has made of the effect on the likely fuel mix for electricity generators in the United Kingdom of the European Commission proposals due to be considered in March to introduce ceilings for emissions of acid rain gases; and if he will make a statement. [74373]

Mr. Battle: Proposals expected from the European Commission for a National Emissions Ceilings Directive under the EU Acidification Strategy will cover UK-wide emissions in the year 2010, not just those from power stations. Emissions of sulphur dioxide and oxides of nitrogen from new and existing large combustion plant, including power stations, are already limited under the Large Combustion Plants Directive (88/609/EEC).

Although the levels of any proposed new emissions ceilings have not yet been finalised by the Commission, during the preparation of the 1998 White Paper on the Review of Energy Sources for Power Generation (Cmnd 4071) we were mindful of these and other, related proposals already endorsed in principle. Therefore, subject to the outcome of future negotiations, I expect that any agreed national emissions ceilings for the United Kingdom will be fully compatible with the Government's stated aim of ensuring secure, diverse and sustainable supplies of energy at competitive prices, as set out in the White Paper.

Lobbyists

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will make a statement on the role of professional lobbyists in formulating policy in his Department. [74365]

Mr. Byers: Any contact with lobbyists by Ministers and civil servants in this Department are conducted in accordance with the "Ministerial Code" and "Guidance for Civil Servants: Contacts with Lobbyists".

EDUCATION AND EMPLOYMENT

New Deal

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment how many individuals in the target group of the New Deal for 18 to 24-year-olds have left unemployment (i) between May 1997 and the nationwide commencement of the New Deal and (ii) between the nationwide commencement of the New Deal and the latest available date. [71131]

Mr. Andrew Smith: The information is provided in the following table, based on the monthly count of people claiming Jobseeker's Allowance or National Insurance Credits:

| 18–24 year old 6 month plus claimants of unemployed-related benefits | (i) May 1997-April 1998 | (ii) April 1998-January 1999 |
|---|---|---|
| Total offlows from the claimant count | 222,011 | 177,902 |
| Average monthly offlow from the claimant count | 20,183 | 19,767 |
| Total change in stock of claimants | 50,129 | 42,950 |
| Average monthly change in stock of claimants | –4,557 | –4,772 |
| Total change in stock of claimants (per cent.) | –30 | –36 |
| Monthly percentage point change in stock of claimants | –2.7 | –4 |

Departmental Expenditure

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what (a) reviews, (b) task forces and (c) advisory groups have been established by his Department since 1 May 1997; what costs they have incurred to date; and what reports they have published. [71522]

Mr. Mudie: Unfortunately the information asked for on "costs" is available only at disproportionate cost. Therefore, the reply is limited to the name of the body and refers to published reports only.

Early Education (Three-year-olds)

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what plans he has to provide nursery provision for three-year-olds through the education SSA allocation; and if he will make a statement. [72058]

Ms Hodge: £390 million will be allocated to double the participation of three-year-olds in free early education places over the next three years. Local Education Authorities also continue to receive funding for under fives through SSA.

In 1999–2000, some £40 million will be allocated as a specific grant to the 50 local authority areas with the greatest social need; in the following two years specific grant will be distributed across all authorities. The Early Years Development and Childcare Plans will show how new places will be secured in the maintained, private and voluntary sectors.

Pre-School Learning Alliance

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment (1) what representations he has received from the Pre-School Learning Alliance; [73289]

(2) if he will make a statement on future funding for the Pre-School Learning Alliance. [73688]

Ms Hodge: The Pre-School Learning Alliance (PLA) regularly contacts Ministers and officials in the Department about a wide range of issues, including grant funding for the Alliance, which—for 1999–2000—is under active consideration.

PLA members play an active part in the delivery of child care and early years education through early years development and child care partnerships and I believe they will play an important role in the expansion of child care and nursery education in the future.

Further and Higher Education

Mr. Barnes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what assessment he has made of the level of the direct financial contribution to further and higher education made by industry for the last year for which figures are available; and if he will break down this amount by (a) in-company training, (b) other forms of vocational training and (c) non-vocational studies. [73976]

Mr. Mudie: The information requested is not identifiable separately in data collected currently.

Physical Education Students

Mr. Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what estimate he has made of the level of discretionary awards for physical education students in (a) 1999–2000 and (b) 2000–01. [74232]

Mr. Mudie [holding answer 2 March 1999]: From September 1999, LEA's existing powers to make discretionary awards will be replaced by the new student support arrangements introduced under the Teaching and Higher Education Act 1998. For most HE and FE students who would otherwise have been eligible for discretionary awards, support will centre on access funds which we have increased significantly. LEAs will be able to support existing discretionary award holders during the remainder of their courses and will also be able to make discretionary payments to new students under the provisions of the Schools Standards and Framework Act 1998, if they choose to do so. Separate estimates are not made for individual subjects.

Pupil Referral Units

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment how many pupil referral units have been established. [74787]

Mr. Charles Clarke: There are currently 319 Pupil Referral Units in England.

National Homework Guidelines

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what plans he has to evaluate the effect of introducing national homework guidelines. [74789]

Mr. Charles Clarke: Inspections of schools by the Office for Standards in Education (OFSTED) look at the effect of homework polices on the quality of education provided and the standards achieved by pupils. Inspection reports will therefore provide important evidence about the effect over time of introducing national guidelines. We are also considering other ways in which the guidelines might usefully be evaluated, once schools have had time to develop and implement their own homework polices in the light of them.

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what representations he has received about the introduction of national homework guidelines. [74788]

Mr. Charles Clarke: There were 379 written responses to the consultation on these guidelines, which ran from 21 April 1998 to 30 June 1998. Most of the responses were from primary schools. They raised a range of issues, many of which we addressed in the final version of the guidelines, published in November 1998. Since the guidelines were published we have received 81 letters from schools and members of the public.

Lobbyists

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment if he will make a statement on the role of professional lobbyists in formulating policy in his Department. [74351]

Mr. Mudie: Any contacts with lobbyists by Ministers and civil servants in this Department are conducted in accordance with the "Ministerial Code" and "Guidance for Civil Servants: Contact with Lobbyists".

ENVIRONMENT, TRANSPORT AND THE REGIONS

Genetically Modified Crops

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions when he expects the first trials of genetically modified crops to be completed; and what period of evaluation would be required thereafter before an application for commercial planting of a genetically modified crop could be considered. [69822]

Mr. Meacher [holding answer 8 February 1999]: The first trials of genetically modified (GM) crops in the United Kingdom were completed in the late 1980s. Since then several hundred further trials of GM crops have been completed. Each series of trials is subject to a consent which requires a report of the trial itself and a post trial monitoring report to be completed and submitted to the regulatory authorities. This information is used as part of the assessment of subsequent applications for trials. Those carrying out the trials also evaluate their work and often publish the results in the open literature where the information is accessible to all.

The recently announced farm-scale evaluations of three types of herbicide tolerant GM crops to evaluate their impact on farmland wildlife will begin in April 1999 (for spring-sown rape and maize) and autumn 1999 (for autumn-sown rape). These trials will each continue for four years. It is intended that progress reports will be prepared at the end of each growing season so early results can be considered as they become available. The progress of the trials will be overseen by a steering committee. The evaluation of the results from each growing season will enable the committee to influence how subsequent stages of the trials should be undertaken.

Under the current legislation applications for commercial planting must be considered as soon as they are received by one of the European Competent Authorities. Applications must contain the information laid down in the relevant directive (90/220/EEC) and an assessment of possible impacts on the environment. Once the Competent authority is satisfied that the required information has been provided, it must forward the dossier to the commission within 90 days of the application being made, with an opinion on whether or not approval should be granted. The dossier is then circulated to the other member states which must give an opinion to the EC within 60 days. If there is a qualified majority in favour of the product an EU wide marketing consent is granted.

Once an EU wide consent has been granted under directive 90–220, commercial planting may commence, subject to any limitations and conditions set out in the consent and subject to the other necessary approvals having been granted, such as, the placing of the GM variety on the National List of Seeds or the EU Common Catalogue, approval under the Novel Foods Regulations and/or approval for the use of the relevant herbicide to be used on the new GM crop.

Grant-maintained Schools

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what transitional arrangements he plans to make in respect of staff employed by grant-maintained schools who serve as councillors on the local authority to which the school becomes accountable. [72568]

Ms Armstrong [holding answer Monday 22 February 1999]: I do not intend to make any transitional arrangements. Teachers employed by grant-maintained schools who serve as councillors on the local authority to which the school becomes accountable will, therefore, be disqualified from holding office as a councillor on that authority from 1 September 1999.

Biosafety Protocol

Joan Ruddock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will report progress in the Colombia negotiations on the Biosafety Protocol; and when he plans to make a statement on the final outcome. [72947]

Mr. Meacher: The Extraordinary Meeting of the Conference of the Parties (COP) to the Convention on Biological Diversity, meeting in Cartagena, Colombia failed to reach agreement on a biosafety protocol which is intended to govern the transboundary movement of living modified organisms (LMOs). The UK worked tirelessly alongside our European partners to seek to achieve a text acceptable to all sides that would secure adequate protection for the environment while avoiding the creation of unnecessary barriers to trade. However, while the EU's proposal for a compromise package received widespread support, there was not consensus.

Among the key issues on which agreement could not be reached were how to deal with commodities intended for use as food or feed or for processing, the requirements for documentation or labelling of LMOs subject to transboundary movement and the relationship of the protocol to other international instruments.

It was agreed to suspend the session of the Extraordinary COP and to reconvene, no later than the fifth ordinary meeting of the Conference of the Parties which will be in May 2000, with a view to concluding the negotiations.

The UK, together with its European partners, will continue to participate actively in the process, with a view to concluding the Biosafety Protocol as a cornerstone of the international framework for biosafety.

Mr. Chope: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will make a statement on implications for the United Kingdom of the breakdown in negotiations on the Biosafety protocol. [74148]

Mr. Meacher [holding answer 2 March 1999]: The Government were disappointed that the Extraordinary Conference of the Parties that met in Cartagena last week was suspended and therefore not able to adopt the Biosafety Protocol. Among the key issues on which agreement could not be reached were how to deal with commodities intended for use as food or feed or for processing, the requirements for documentation or labelling of LMOs subject to transboundary movement and the relationship of the protocol to other international instruments.

The Government consider it important to maintain the momentum gained in Cartagena towards the development of international rules and procedures covering the transboundary movement of living modified organisms (LMOs). The UK, together with its European partners, will continue to participate actively in the process, with a view to concluding the Biosafety Protocol as a cornerstone of the international framework for biosafety.

There are no immediate implications for the UK of the breakdown since the European Community legislation already controls all releases and marketing of LMOs within the Community including imports into the Community. At the international level, the Government will continue to promote the use of the UNEP International Technical Guidelines for Safety in Biotechnology wherever possible since these are currently the mainstay of the international framework for biosafety.

Private Toll Roads

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions how many private toll roads there are; and if he will list them. [73752]

Ms Glenda Jackson: There are in the United Kingdom 3 public road crossings that are the subject of private finance concessions—at Dartford, Severn and Skye. There are also 8 privately owned tolled crossings linking public highways that were promoted by statute in the 18th and 19th centuries (and which must have their tolls approved by the Secretary of State). They are:

The Aldwark Bridge, Yorkshire
The Clifton Suspension Bridge, Bristol
The Dunham Bridge, Lincolnshire
The Rixton & Warburton Bridge, on the Manchester Ship Canal
The Shrewsbury (Kingsland) Bridge
The Swinford Bridge (Oxfordshire)
The Whitchurch Bridge (Oxfordshire)
The Whitney on Wye Bridge (Hereford & Worcester).

Also there are 2 toll roads that were established by Royal Charters of 1443 and 1619—respectively Roydon Road, Stanstead Abbots and College Road, Dulwich. They do not need to apply to the Secretary of State for approval of their tolls—and that is the case also where a toll is charged for the use of a private road. I do not have a complete list of private toll roads, but some examples are the roads of Kewstoke Woods, Weston-super-Mare, Kynance Cove, Cornwall, and Porlock, Devon.

Domestic Air Conditioning

Mr. Chaytor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will assess the Building Services Research and Information Association's work on the fitting of domestic air-conditioning systems; what assessment his Department has made of future trends in domestic air-conditioning; how such trends affect the Government's climate change policies; and if he will make a statement. [74036]

Mr. Raynsford: The project on small scale air conditioning completed by the Building Services Research and Information Association last year is a valuable study into the future market potential for small scale air conditioning in the UK.

A preliminary assessment suggests that domestic emissions of carbon dioxide might increase by a number in the range 0.1 to 0.2 million tonnes of carbon in 2010 because of increased use of domestic air conditioning. This range is equivalent to between about 0.05 and 0.1% of UK $CO_2$ emissions in 1990. We are considering this with a variety of other policy options in our analysis of responses to the recent climate change consultation paper.

Housing (Wandsworth)

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what discussions he has had with the London Borough of Wandsworth on the number of council owned properties that are boarded up in various parts of the Borough of Wandsworth, waiting to be sold. [74294]

Mr. Raynsford: I have had no such discussions. Specific figures for the numbers of boarded up properties awaiting sale are not recorded as part of the Housing Investment Programme process.

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what discussions he has had with the Leader of Wandsworth Council on the Council's policy to develop low cost housing within the borough; and if he will make a statement. [74295]

Mr. Raynsford: Ministers have had no discussions with the Leader of Wandsworth Council about its policy of providing low cost housing. I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave to his question on 5 June 1998, Official Report, column 373.

I have no plans to make a statement.

Departmental Websites

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions for what reason the cost of the Department's website is projected to rise to £550,000 in the year 2000–01. [74008]

Mr. Meacher: DETR's Web site has grown rapidly in the past year: the number of hits per month is 16 times higher and the volume of information on the site has trebled. This is in line with the Government's policy of making as much information as possible available via electronic media.

The projected rise in expenditure reflects continued anticipated growth in the provision of on-line information over the next two years. It also reflects the development of e-commerce platforms and more on-line searchable databases.

Household Projections

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will publish the research commissioned by his Department on the disparity between the rate of household formation and the number of dwellings completed. [73919]

Mr. Raynsford [holding answer 3 March 1999]: Research which has been commissioned by my Department to investigate the accuracy of certain housing data that are provided by local authorities has not yet been completed. The Department's policy is to publish research unless there are good reasons not to do so.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will publish revised household projections as a range of figures, and explain the assumptions made in so doing. [73916]

Mr. Raynsford [holding answer 3 March 1999]: The Government agreed in their response to the report of the Environment, Transport and Regional Affairs Committee on Housing that suitable sensitivity analyses would be published alongside the next set of household projections (Cm 4080, para 125).

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what guidance he is offering to local authorities on the use of the predicted rates of household formations in drawing up local development plans. [73917]

Mr. Raynsford [holding answer 3 March 1999]: Planning Policy Guidance note 11 "Regional Planning", a draft of which was published for consultation on 15 February, makes clear that regional planning bodies should work with Government Offices and other regional stakeholders to establish the level of housing required to meet the region's housing needs. In making this assessment, the Government's latest published household projections should be taken into account. Urban capacity studies should also be undertaken. Against this background of need and capacity, regional planning bodies are expected to take a realistic and responsible approach to future housing provision and should justify their views at the public examination of draft regional planning guidance. In preparing development plans (structure plans and UDPs) local authorities will be expected to reflect the housing figures set out in Regional Planning Guidance issued by the Secretary of State. Outside UDP areas, local plans are expected to be in conformity with the relevant structure plan.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions when he intends to publish new household projections. [73918]

Mr. Raynsford [holding answer Wednesday 3 March 1999]: The task of preparing the revised household projections has yet to be completed and a timetable for their publication has therefore still to be determined.

Vehicle Registration Details

Mr. Sayeed: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will require a person selling a motor vehicle to provide the odometer mileage at the time of sale and for the information to be printed on the registration document for the vehicle. [74781]

Ms Glenda Jackson: The Government are currently reviewing their policy on collection of mileage information. The Vehicle Crime Reduction Action Team, set up by the Home Office, is considering the options and will be making recommendations shortly.

Brown-field Sites

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions how many hectares of brown-field sites have been developed for private residential accommodation since January 1998. [74686]

Mr. Raynsford: The information requested is not yet available. Latest figures, which relate to 1993, show the number of hectares of 'land previously developed for urban uses' (as defined by the Department's Land Use Change Statistics) that changed to residential use. These can be found in Annex A of the publication "Land Use Change in England No.13", a copy of which is in the House of Commons Library.

The Land Use Change Statistics can provide more recent estimates for (a) the percentage of land changing to residential use that was previously developed, and (b) the percentage of new dwellings built on previously developed land. In 1996, the latest year for which a reliable estimate is available, 47 per cent. of land changing to residential use was previously developed, and 53 per cent. of new dwellings were built on previously developed land (56 per cent. including conversion of existing dwellings).

We will be investigating the robustness of figures relating to hectares of land changing use to see if this will enable more timely provision of results.

Acid Rain

Mrs. Brinton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will make it his policy to support the proposals due to be considered by the European Commission in March to impose national emission ceilings on acid rain gases; and if he will make a statement. [74372]

Mr. Meacher: The Government have supported the EC Acidification Strategy as a means of reducing ecosystem damage from acid emissions, and will continue to do so. It also supports the principle of a national emission ceilings directive. The Government will give careful consideration to the detail of the proposed directive once it has been published by the European Commission. Both the Strategy and the proposed directive will take forward the large reductions the UK has already achieved and further reductions planned for sulphur dioxide and nitrogen dioxide emissions. Between 1990 and 1996 the UK reduced total sulphur dioxide emissions by 46% and nitrogen oxide emissions by 25%. Current policies are expected to deliver reductions of 74% and 58% respectively by 2010.

English Partnerships

Mrs. Ellman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what is the expected spend of English Partnerships for the current year for the (a) North West, (b) North East, (c) West Midlands, (d) East Midlands and (e) Yorkshire and Humberside Regions. [74672]

Mr. Caborn: Based on the latest estimates, the total expected spend for 1998–99 for these regions of English Partnerships is as follows:

| | £ million |
|---|---|
| (a) North West | 92.0 |
| (b) North East | 47.0 |
| (c) West Midlands | 48.0 |
| (d) East Midlands | 26.5 |
| (e) Yorkshire and the Humber | 53.0 |

Mrs. Ellman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions how much of the funding available to English Partnerships for the year 1999–2000 is planned to be retained centrally; and what projects are currently being considered for this funding. [74670]

Mr. Caborn: The total land and property programme, excluding the coalfields portfolio, for 1999–2000 is projected to be £371.6m (based on DETR's receipts targets). It is currently proposed that EP will be allocated £46.6m to take forward the responsibilities identified on 23 June 1998, Official Report, column 438. These include the reclamation and development of the Greenwich site, the setting up and running of databases on brownfield sites, and managing the programme of Millennium Villages. EP will also be responsible for the land and property programme for London (£56.3m) for next year; and will manage the ring-fenced Coalfields Portfolio (£49.6m) on behalf of and in liaison with the RDAs.

Mrs. Ellman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what is English Partnerships' current draft budget for the regional development agencies for the financial year 1999–2000 for the (a) North West, (b) North East, (c) Yorkshire and Humberside, (d) West Midlands and (e) East Midlands Regions. [74669]

Mr. Caborn: The land and property budgets for Regional Development Agencies will be set by the Department, not by English Partnerships, in consultation with the RDAs. The budgets have yet to be finalised.

The latest provisional budgets for these Regions, for the main land and property programme, excluding administration and the coalfields portfolio, for 1999–2000 are as follows:

| Region | £ million |
|---|---|
| North West | 73 |
| North East | 30 |
| Yorkshire and Humberside | 41 |
| West Midlands | 34.3 |
| East Midlands | 16 |

Mrs. Ellman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions how much additional funding to that made available by Government to English Partnerships is expected to be generated from the public, private and voluntary sectors for the current year 1998–99 for the (a) North West, (b) North East, (c) Yorkshire and Humberside, (d) West Midlands and (e) East Midlands Regions. [74671]

Mr. Caborn: The following amounts of additional funding are expected to be generated for projects in 1998–99:

£ million

| Region | Other public | Private |
|---|---|---|
| North West | 18.71 | 90.71 |
| North East | 25.89 | 213.83 |
| Yorkshire and Humberside | 13.59 | 65.14 |
| West Midlands | 23.75 | 22.41 |
| East Midlands | 18.06 | 27.89 |

Note:
1. The category "other public" includes funding from voluntary sector organisations.

Mrs. Ellman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions how much additional funding has been generated for every £1 spent by Government through English Partnerships in the (a) North West, (b) North East, (c) West Midlands, (d) East Midlands and (e) Yorkshire and Humberside regions in each of the past five years. [74674]

Mr. Caborn: Until April 1998, English Partnerships did not collect data of this sort on a regional basis. It is therefore not possible to provide a full answer.

English Partnerships publishes estimates of the value of private sector funding in its Annual Reports. The national totals have been as follows:

| Year | £ million |
|---|---|
| 1994–95 | 300 |
| 1995–96 | 580 |
| 1996–97 | 630 |
| 1997–98 | 767 |

For 1998–99, the estimated additional private sector funding for these regions is expected to be as follows:

| Region | £ million |
|---|---|
| North West | 90.71 |
| North East | 213.83 |
| West Midlands | 22.41 |
| East Midlands | 27.89 |
| Yorkshire and Humberside | 65.14 |

Mrs. Ellman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what is the total budget allocation for English Partnerships for (a) 1998–99 and (b) 1999–2000, broken down by funding held centrally, funding allocated by regional offices and funding transferred to the regional development agencies. [74673]

Mr. Caborn: The budget allocations for the English Partnerships land and property programme spend for 1998–99 and 1999–2000 is as follows:

| | 1998–99 | 1999–2000 |
|---|---|---|
| Central | 72.0 | 46.6 |
| Regional | 339.3 | 56.3 |
| Transferred to RDAs | — | 267.7 |
| Total | 411.3 | 370.6 |

Notes:
1. Central spend excludes the ring-fenced funding for the Greenwich Millennium Project.
2. Regional spend in 1999–00 by EP is for London
3. The above figures do not include the funding for the coalfields portfolio (49.6 million) which is to be managed centrally by EP on behalf of and in liaison with the RDAs.

Lobbyists

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions (1) if he will make a statement on the role of professional lobbyists in formulating policy in his Department; [74366]

(2) if he will make a statement on the role of professional lobbyists in formulating policy in his Department. [74355]

Mr. Meale: Any contacts with lobbyists by Ministers and civil servants in this Department are conducted in accordance with the "Ministerial Code" and "Guidance for Civil Servants: Contacts with Lobbyists".

Ministerial Visits

Miss Kirkbride: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions when the visit of the Minister for London and Construction to Bromsgrove was first planned; and when the hon. Member for Bromsgrove was informed of the visit. [74561]

Mr. Raynsford: In January I agreed in principle to make a Labour Party campaign visit to the West Midlands on Friday 19 February. It was confirmed on Tuesday 16 February that I would visit Bromsgrove along with other West Midlands locations, and I wrote to the hon. Member at the House of Commons on Wednesday 17 February.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Theatre and Museum Funding

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment he has made of the funding of theatres and museums by local authorities. [74235]

Mr. Alan Howarth [holding answer 2 March 1999]: In 1997–98 local authority funding for the arts is estimated to have been £194 million, and for museums £139 million.

Children's Theatre

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) what representations he has received concerning the future of children's theatre in London; [74233]

(2) what discussions he has had with the Polka Theatre in Wimbledon about its funding; and if he will make a statement. [74238]

Mr. Alan Howarth [holding answer 2 March 1999]: My Department has recently received a substantial number of letters from members of the public expressing concern for the future of the Polka Theatre in Wimbledon. We have held no discussions with representatives of the Polka Theatre, as this is a matter for the London Arts Board, London Borough Grants and the London Borough of Merton. I understand also that the Unicorn Theatre is in the process of addressing the serious financial situation it faced earlier in this financial year.

Museum Visits

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what plans he has to collect information about the number of (a) primary and (b) secondary school visits to museums. [74237]

Mr. Alan Howarth [holding answer 2 March 1999]: Museums and galleries sponsored by the Department for Culture, Media and Sport all regularly collect data on school visits, and in most cases those by primary and secondary schools can be distinguished.

The Museums and Galleries Commission hope to include a request for information on primary and secondary school visits in their DOMUS (Digest of Museum Statistics) general survey of Registered museums, questionnaires for which will be issued in the summer. This will furnish information for the wider sector.

Funds have been allocated to allow free entry for children to currently charging national museums in England from April this year. Data on visits made by children will be collected on a regular basis so that the impact of this policy is carefully monitored. Most visits by organised school parties are already free.

Millennium Dome

Helen Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what plans the Government have for the Millennium Dome after 2000; and if he will make a statement. [75157]

Janet Anderson: The Government have today launched a competition to invite bids for alternative uses of the Dome on its present site after the Millennium Experience finishes at the end of December 2000. I have placed copies of the brochure for stage one of the process in the Libraries of the House. Decisions will be taken by the Government following appraisal of detailed bids, submitted at later stages, by the New Millennium Experience Company (NMEC) and English Partnerships and consultation with the Millennium Commission.

The Government's objective is to ensure a sustainable alternative use of the Dome which reflects its cultural significance and contributes fully to regeneration both of the Greenwich Peninsula as a whole and more widely. The Government will wish to achieve good value for money from the disposal of the Dome and related land, and will have regard to whether the proposal would generate receipts which at least match those which could have been achieved if the site were clear and disposed of for ordinary commercial development. The Government will also pay close attention to the regeneration and cultural outputs likely to be delivered by any proposed use, and its compatibility with proposals for developing the rest of the peninsula and the wider Thames Gateway area.

HOUSE OF COMMONS

Lobbyists

Mr. Flynn: To ask the President of the Council if she will make a statement on the role of professional lobbyists in formulating policy in her Department. [74361]

Mrs. Beckett: Any contacts with lobbyists by Ministers and civil servants in this Department are conducted in accordance with the "Ministerial Code" and "Guidance for Civil Servants: Contact with Lobbyists".

Web Sites (Parliamentary Privilege)

Mr. Maclean: To ask the President of the Council if she will set up a Select Committee to consider what parliamentary privilege will apply to hon. Members' web sites; and if she will make a statement. [73678]

Mrs. Beckett: The Committee on Standards and Privileges is already able to examine any questions of privilege.

SCOTLAND

Departmental Hospitality

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will estimate his Department's expenditure on hospitality and entertainment in (a) 1997–98, (b) 1998–99, (c) 1999–2000, (d) 2000–01 and (e) 2001–02; and if he will make a statement. [69254]

Mr. Dewar [holding answer 4 February 1999]: Expenditure on official hospitality to the Scottish Office in the financial year 1997–98 was £62,596. Provision of £75,000 has been made for 1998–99. Budgets for the financial years 1999–2000 and 2000–01 have not yet been set.

Nurses (Pay)

Mrs. Ewing: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland which establishments in Scotland have paid a regular lead to nursing staff in each year since 1970; what was the annual value of the lead; what was its purpose; and if he will make a statement. [69055]

Mr. Galbraith [holding answer 8 February 1999]: The exact information required is not available centrally.

National terms and conditions for nursing staff include a range of leads and allowances paid under certain circumstances. Details of all such allowances were set out in Annex 1 of the Health Departments' 1998 evidence to the Review Body for Nursing Staff, Midwives, Health Visitors and Professions Allied to Medicine, copies of which are held in the Library. This included information on the current national rate of payment and a brief description of conditions for payment. Information on the value of leads and allowances is only available from 1986 onwards and copies of the relevant circulars issued to the NHS in Scotland have been placed in the Library. All NHS bodies which employ nurses on national contracts pay these leads and allowances, if qualifying conditions are met. Since 1994 employers have had the flexibility to increase leads and allowances locally, which some NHS Trusts have done. In their sixteenth report for 1999, laid before Parliament by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Health, the Review Body recommended that on-call and stand-by allowances should be increased by 19% from 1 April 1999 and urged Trusts to increase relevant leads and allowances.

From 1 July 1999 this will be a matter for the Scottish Parliament.

Single Currency

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will list the subject areas within his Department's responsibilities which will be covered by the information campaign on Britain's membership of a single currency. [73667]

Mr. Dewar: The Treasury will continue its dialogue with key external bodies to determine what information the public and business would need at each stage of the changeover process. Any information campaign would cover key concerns that the public and business may have. Chapter eight of the Treasury's Outline National Changeover Plan provides further information. Copies of the Plan are available in the House Library.

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what plans he has to issue information from his Department to help the public make an informed decision when they vote on the single currency. [73656]

Mr. Dewar: Any plans by the Government to issue information during a referendum campaign on whether or not the UK should join the single currency would be made in light of the Government's response to the recommendations from the Neill Committee on the conduct of referendums. The Government will announce their conclusions on those recommendations when my right hon. Friend the Home Secretary publishes a White Paper and draft Bill before the summer recess.

Brit Awards

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will list those Ministers in his Department who were present at the recent Brit awards in an official capacity; and who or what organisation was acting as their sponsor or host. [73490]

Mr. Galbraith: The Minister for Education, Scottish Office, attended the Brit awards ceremony as a guest of the British Phonographic Industry.

Zimbabwe

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what official visits he, his Ministers or officials have paid to Zimbabwe since May 1997; whom they met; and what was discussed. [73458]

Mr. Dewar: No Scottish Office Minister has visited Zimbabwe in an official capacity since May 1997. The Chief Social Work Inspector attended the All Africa Conference on Community Service at Kadoma from 24 November to 2 December 1997 at the invitation of Prison Reform International to advise on the development of alternatives to prison. The Kadoma Declaration and Action Plan were subsequently endorsed by the UN Commission on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice.

Air Miles

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many Air Miles have been earned by him and each of his Ministers; and how he proposes to use them. [73331]

Mr. Dewar: The Government's policy on the use and disposal of air miles was set out by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister on 12 January 1999, Official Report, column 141.

Detailed information on any air miles earned by Ministers as a result of official travel is not recorded centrally.

Agriculture Business Improvement

Mr. Maclennan: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what is the approved six year budget for the agriculture business improvement scheme of 1994; what sums have been made available to the Highland agriculture industry; and what plans he has to vire part of the approved budget to other sectors. [73191]

Mr. Dewar [holding answer 25 February 1999]: The Agriculture Business Improvement Scheme (ABIS) forms part of the Objective 1 Highlands and Islands Agricultural Programme (HIAP), along with the Marketing Scheme and the Crofting Township Development Scheme. There is no separate budget provision for the ABIS.

The original budget provision for the HIAP was around £23 million, but due to the strength of sterling against the ecu, this figure is now nearer £20 million. To date, almost £14.6 million has been committed under HIAP, and all three Schemes remain open to applications from farmers and crofters in the Highlands and Islands.

As a consequence of consistent underspending against the HIAP budget provision, it is possible that all of the resources allocated to the Programme will not now be required. The Government are reviewing the budgetary provision for HIAP, but no decision has been taken on the possible virement of resources. The Government are planning to announce improvements to the ABIS next month to help stimulate uptake of the available funds.

Woodland Grant Scheme

Mr. David Stewart: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what plans he has to change the rules of the Woodland Grant Scheme. [75416]

Mr. Macdonald: We are making two changes to the rules of the Woodland Grant Scheme today.

We are keen to improve value for money from the Woodland Grant Scheme and have concluded that the payments currently offered for creating new woodland do not reflect the economies of scale available when creating very large forests. Payments for these large forests significantly reduce the funds available for delivering our other forestry objectives.

We have therefore decided that from today, fixed rate grants will no longer be available for applications to create new woodlands of 300 hectares or more. They will be replaced by a grant linked to the overall costs likely to be incurred by the applicant over the first ten years. Normally the grant will be 60 per cent. of the costs, which will be agreed in negotiation with the owners. However, where there are particularly important public benefits in relation to achieving Biodiversity Action Plan targets, or helping crofter or community-based forestry schemes, it may be possible to pay 80 per cent. of the agreed costs. These payments will not exceed the grant that would have been paid using the current fixed rate grants.

The rules of the Woodland Grant Scheme have also been amended from today so that grants are no longer available for land where the landowner has terminated an agricultural tenancy by means of a contested notice to quit. This change, which follows a recommendation in the Scottish Land Reform Policy Group's Report, is intended to discourage landowners from terminating tenancies, against the wishes of their tenants, in order to convert the land to woodland.

Both these changes will apply throughout Great Britain.

More detailed information on these changes is available from the Forestry Commission.

Student Hardship Funds

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what estimate he has made of the expenditure by Scottish universities on hardship funds in the latest year for which information is available; and if he will make a statement. [74559]

Mrs. Liddell: The Government distribute resources to further and higher education institutions in the form of Access Funds to enable them to assist students whose access to, or continuance, in education may be inhibited by financial difficulties. Many institutions also have funds of their own which are used for a similar purpose.

The Access Fund resources distributed to Universities and other higher education institutions in Scotland in respect of academic year 1998–99 amounted to £3.473 million.

Lobbyists

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will make a statement on the role of professional lobbyists in formulating policy in his Department. [74363]

Mr. Dewar: Any contacts with lobbyists by Ministers and civil servants in this Department are conducted in accordance with the "Ministerial Code" and "Guidance for Civil Servants: Contact with Lobbyists".

HOME DEPARTMENT

Immigration and Nationality Department

Mr. Norman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department for how long the Immigration and Nationality Department paper room, where files are stored, is planned to remain closed for access to casework files. [72860]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Immigration and Nationality Directorate Croydon paper store, which holds casework files on which there is no current action, is no longer closed.

Ethnic Minorities (Crime)

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, pursuant to his answer of 2 February 1999, Official Report, columns 554–45, if he will list the submissions and briefing papers prepared by his officials on crime among ethnic minorities. [73625]

Mr. Boateng: I regard details of the frequency and substance of the advice I receive from officials as confidential. The incidence of crime amongst the general population is regarded as of importance, whatever the ethnic origins of the victims or alleged perpetrators, and I receive regular advice thereon.

Police Contingent (Bosnia)

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he last visited the British police contingent in Bosnia. [73499]

Mr. Boateng: I have not visited Bosnia. The then Minister of State at the Home Office, my right hon. Friend the Member for Cardiff, South and Penarth (Mr. Michael), visited the British contingent in December 1997. I will be visiting Bosnia later this year. The Under-Secretary of State for the Home Department, my hon. Friend the Member for Vauxhall (Kate Hoey) hopes to visit at some point. A number of Chief Constables have visited as has a Home Office official.

Women's Royal Voluntary Service

Mr. Chope: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much his Department has paid in each of the last three years to support the Women's Royal Voluntary Service; and how much of the money was in respect of that organisation's core activities. [74197]

Mr. Boateng: The Home Office has provided grant in aid to the Women's Royal Voluntary Service (WRVS) since its inception in 1938. The levels of grant for the years in question were as follows:

| | £ |
|---|---|
| 1996–97 | 5,840,000 |
| 1997–98 | 5,548,000 |
| 1998–99 | 5,298,000 |

All of the grant provided was in support of the organisation's core activities.

Race Relations Act 1976

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will seek to strengthen the provisions of the Race Relations Act in relation to the restaurant and hotel trade. [74016]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The restaurant and hotel trade is subject to the provisions of the Race Relations Act 1976 in terms of both employment and the provision of goods and services. There are some exceptions which may apply for genuine occupational qualifications designed to protect racial authenticity—for example, in certain restaurants.

The Commission for Racial Equality (CRE) has reviewed the Race Relations Act 1976 and put forward 57 recommendations for change including one to replace the genuine occupation qualifications for authenticity, which relate to working where food and drink are served in a particular setting. The Department has carried out a public consultation on the proposals which concluded on 18 December 1998.

My right hon. Friend the Home Secretary announced when he published the report of the Inquiry into the death of Stephen Lawrence that the Race Relations Act 1976 will be extended to cover the public services.

The Government will bring forward proposals in due course, including a response to the CRE recommendations.

CS Sprays

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many complaints about CS sprays have been submitted to the Police Complaints Authority since 31 March 1998. [74250]

Mr. Boateng: The Police Complaints Authority have provided the following information regarding complaints which they have received between 1 April 1998 and 1 March 1999.

| Force | Cases about CS | Complaints about CS |
|---|---|---|
| Avon and Somerset | 10 | 11 |
| Bedfordshire | 1 | 1 |

| West Midlands | 36 | 37 |
| West Yorkshire | 15 | 18 |
| Wiltshire | 1 | 1 |
| Grand totals | 396 | 425 |

Note:
A case may include more than one complaint. The first column indicates the number of cases and the second indicates the number of actual complaints.

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police officers in England and Wales currently carry CS sprays. [74248]

Mr. Boateng: Decisions about equipping police officers with CS spray are the responsibility of chief officers of police. In this, they are governed and monitored by the Association of Chief Police Officers' (ACPO) self-defence, arrest and restraint sub-committee.

ACPO have advised that details on the number of police officers trained in the use of CS spray are not held centrally. However, all but 3 police forces in England and Wales now issue CS spray to their officers. These are Northamptonshire, Sussex and Nottinghamshire.

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if special constables are being trained to carry and use CS sprays. [74249]

Mr. Boateng: Special constables do carry and use CS spray. They use the same equipment and receive the same training as regular Police Constables in accordance with guidelines issued by the Association of Chief Police Officers.

Firearms Act 1968

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what register of organisations authorised to hold devices under section 5 of the Firearms Act 1968 is compiled; if this register is available for inspection by members of the public; and where this register is held. [74251]

Mr. Boateng: Records of companies and individuals with the authority of the Secretary of State under section 5 of the Firearms Act 1968 (as amended) to purchase, acquire, possess, manufacture, sell or dispose of prohibited weapons are maintained by the Home Office for those in England and Wales and by the Scottish Office for those in Scotland. These records are not available for public inspection for reasons of security and commercial confidentiality.

Kosovo Liberation Army

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on KLA fundraising activity in the United Kingdom, indicating what representations he has received on the issue. [74434]

Mr. Straw: I am not aware of any representations about fund raising by the Kosovo Liberation Army (KLA or UCK).

The Government attach great importance to countering terrorist fund raising. Under our Presidency of the G8, we hosted a conference on terrorist fund raising in London last December. In the same month, my Department published a consultation paper, "Legislation Against Terrorism" (CM 4178), which invited views on proposals for strengthening the law in this area.

The police and Security Service attach a high priority to countering all forms of terrorist activity in the United Kingdom. Any credible information or intelligence is fully investigated.

Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act 1989

Mr. Coaker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he intends to publish the report from Mr. J. J. Rowe, QC on the operation in 1998 of the Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act 1989. [75334]

Mr. Straw: I have today arranged for copies of Mr. Rowe's report to be placed in the Library. Mr. Rowe recommends that the legislation should be renewed for a further twelve months. A draft Order is being laid before the House today which continues in force most provisions of the Act for a further twelve months. This order is subject to affirmative Resolution in both Houses.

Horseracing

Mr. Cunliffe: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on the future of the Tote. [74662]

Mr. George Howarth: I refer my hon. Friend to the reply I gave the hon. Member for Mid-Sussex (Mr. Soames) on 25 February 1999, Official Report, column 395.

Lobbyists

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on the role of professional lobbyists in formulating policy in his Department. [74357]

Mr. Straw: Any contacts with lobbyists by Ministers and civil servants in his Department are conducted in accordance with the "Ministerial Code" and "Guidance for Civil Servants: Contact with Lobbyists".

The Sunday Telegraph (Injunction)

Sir Norman Fowler: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions he held with (a) the Prime Minister, (b) officials at No. 10 Downing Street and (c) other Ministers prior to seeking an injunction against The Sunday Telegraph; and if he will make a statement. [74663]

Mr. Straw: As has already been made clear by the Prime Minister's Official Spokesman, the Prime Minister's office was informed about the action I was taking. The Minister of State, Home Office, my hon. Friend the Member for Brent, South (Mr. Boateng), was also informed. As I said to the House in my statement on 22 February 1999, Official Report, column 27,

"This was a decision that I made, and for which I am personally responsible".

Macpherson Report

Sir Norman Fowler: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if the independent investigator appointed to inquire into the unauthorised publication of extracts from the Macpherson report will have the power to interview persons who have had access to the report outside direct Government employment; and if he will make a statement. [74664]

Mr. Straw: The conduct of the inquiry, including the question of who should be interviewed, is a matter for the investigator to determine.

Sir Norman Fowler: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) if Ministers who had access to the Macpherson report prior to 21 February will be interviewed in the leak investigation, instituted by his Permanent Secretary; and if he will make a statement; [74666]

(2) if (a) officials and (b) ministerial advisers who had access to the Macpherson report prior to 21 February will be interviewed by the leak investigation instituted by his Permanent Secretary; and if he will make a statement. [74668]

Mr. Straw: It would not be in the interests of the leak investigation now under way to give these details.

Sir Norman Fowler: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list the terms of reference of the leaks investigation instituted by his Permanent Secretary into the unauthorised publication of extracts from the Macpherson report; and if he will make a statement. [74667]

Mr. Straw: The independent investigator has been asked by my Permanent Secretary to establish who was responsible for the leak and what lessons might be learned for the future.

LORD CHANCELLOR'S DEPARTMENT

Legal Aid Funding Council

Mr. Burnett: To ask the Minister of State, Lord Chancellor's Department what estimate he has made of the loss to the Legal Aid Funding Council from fraud in (a) 1994–95, (b) 1995–96, (c) 1996–97, (d) 1997–98 and (e) 1998–99. [74121]

Mr. Hoon: The Legal Aid Board is responsible for the administration of legal aid.

An estimate of the amounts lost through fraud over the past five years cannot be provided as it is not possible to quantify accurately the amounts that have been fraudulently claimed. The claims will usually contain some element of bone fide work and the percentage relating to false claiming cannot be accurately determined. However, the Legal Aid Board will seek to recover from solicitors any costs which were considered to be either wrongly or fraudulently claimed.

The total amounts recovered from either negotiating repayment, recouping from further claims submitted or rejecting the claims as a result of the Legal Aid Board's investigations were:

| | £ |
|---|---|
| 1994–95 | 524,276 |
| 1995–96 | 1,180,770 |
| 1996–97 | 807,706 |
| 1997–98 | 1,081,000 |
| 1 April 1998 to 31 December 1998 | 317,308 |

The Legal Aid Board has an active approach to the prevention and detection of fraud or abuse of the legal aid scheme. Designated officers have been appointed in area offices to detect and investigate suspicious claims and take appropriate action at an early stage. It also has a Central Investigation section whose role is to undertake detailed investigations of suspected abuse or fraud referred to it. The Board's policy is to seek prosecution of individuals in all cases where there is substantial prima facie evidence of dishonesty.

Jerome Charles

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Minister of State, Lord Chancellor's Department if he will name the judge who took the decision at Aylesbury Crown Court in June 1998 to give bail to defendant, Jerome Charles. [74132]

Mr. Hoon: His Honour Judge Catlin granted bail on 26 June 1998.

Censuses

Mr. John M. Taylor: To ask the Minister of State, Lord Chancellor's Department what are the current annual storage and maintenance costs for the original enumerators' books for the 1841/51–1911 decennial population censuses for England and Wales; and how many visitors to the Public Record Office in the last five years were granted access to (a) the original 1841–1891 census enumerators' books and (b) micro-film or other copies of those books. [74018]

Mr. Hoon: The current storage and maintenance costs for the original enumerators' books for the 1841/51 to 1911 decennial censuses for England and Wales are estimated at £225,000 per annum.

In the last five years, 150 visitors to the Public Record Office have been granted access to original returns from the 1841 to 1891 censuses. No precise record has been kept of the number of visitors who have been granted access to micro-film or other copies of those books; our best estimate based on the number of visitors to the Census Room at Chancery Lane and, from 1997, to the Family Records Centre in Islington is 77,000 in 1993–94; 79,000 in 1994–95; 74,000 in 1995–96; 82,000 in 1996–97; 138,000 in 1997–98.

Mr. John M. Taylor: To ask the Minister of State, Lord Chancellor's Department if he will list all instruments which have prescribed periods of extended retention of decennial census returns, under the provisions of the Public Records Act 1958. [74020]

Mr. Hoon: The following Lord Chancellor's Instruments under the provisions of the Public Records Act 1958 have prescribed periods of extended retention of decennial census returns by the Office of Population Censuses and Surveys and its successor the Office for National Statistics:

Lord Chancellor's Instrument (Retention of Public Records) No. 5, 1985: allowed retention of the 1921 and 1951 returns for 10 years; now expired

Lord Chancellor's Instrument (Retention of Public Records) No. 23, 1992: allowed retention of the 1961 returns for 10 years

Lord Chancellor's Instrument (Retention of Public Records) No. 38, 1996: allowed retention of the 1921 and 1951 returns for an additional 10 years.

Mr. John M. Taylor: To ask the Minister of State, Lord Chancellor's Department if the 1921, 1951 and 1961 census returns are closed to public inspection for 100 years. [74019]

Mr. Hoon: The census returns for 1921, 1951 and 1961 are closed to public inspection for 100 years.

The closure period is intended to safeguard the confidentiality of the personal information collected in the census. Successive Governments have given an undertaking that the information would remain confidential. Protection of the credibility of the undertaking is crucial to maintaining the quality of the information collected.

Departmental Records

Mr. John M. Taylor: To ask the Minister of State, Lord Chancellor's Department how many applications were approved during the period 1993 to 1998, under the provisions of section 5(1) of the Public Records Act 1958, to reduce previously determined periods of closure on departmental records. [74017]

Mr. Hoon: During the period 1993–98 inclusive, 142,000 applications were approved, under the provisions of section 5(1) of the Public Records Act 1958, to reduce previously determined periods of closure on departmental records.

Lobbyists

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Minister of State, Lord Chancellor's Department if he will make a statement on the role of professional lobbyists in formulating policy in his Department. [74358]

Mr. Hoon: Any contacts with lobbyists by Ministers and civil servants in this Department are conducted in accordance with the "Ministerial Code" and "Guidance for Civil Servants: Contact with Lobbyists".

Aldershot Magistrates Court

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Minister of State, Lord Chancellor's Department what reports he has received on cases where there has been a failure to attend at Aldershot Magistrates Court in each of the last three years. [74665]

Mr. Hoon: The Lord Chancellor's Department collects some data on the number of witnesses expected to attend but who do not turn up. The data are obtained from a small sample of cases included in the witness waiting times survey that is undertaken for two weeks every June and November. The first such survey was undertaken in November 1997. The survey is carried out at all petty sessional division level and the results for North East Hampshire include the Alton courthouse as well as Aldershot.

The November 1998 survey showed that 26% of witnesses, from a sample of 61 expected witnesses, did not attend. The equivalent figure for June 1998 was 12% from a sample of 33 and for November 1997, 22% from a sample of 55. No similar data are collected for defendants and other parties to proceedings and such data could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

TREASURY

10 Pence Starting Rate

14. Mr. John Smith: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he plans to introduce the 10 pence starting rate of income tax. [72426]

Dawn Primarolo: The Government will introduce a 10 pence starting rate of income tax when it is economically right to do so. The Chancellor made this clear in his statement on the pre-Budget report. The new rate will be incorporated in the income tax system in the way that best meets the Government's objectives of improving work incentives and promoting a fair and efficient tax system.

Economic Policy

15. Mr. Cousins: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the ways in which tax, spending and monetary policy are co-ordinated. [72427]

Mr. Milburn: Effective monetary and fiscal policy co-ordination is assured by setting out policy objectives in an open and transparent way and through the Treasury observer at MPC meetings. The success of the arrangements is demonstrated by the fact that inflation is close to target, the public finances are in sound order and long-term interest rates are around their lowest level for 40 years.

Euro

16. Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is the Government's policy with respect to the exchange rate between sterling and the euro. [72428]

Ms Hewitt: The Government's policy is for a stable and competitive sterling-euro exchange rate over the medium term, consistent with the objective of price stability.

26. Mr. Gapes: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on preparations for eventual British membership of the eurozone. [72441]

Ms Hewitt: I refer my hon. Friend to the oral statement given by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister on 23 February 1999, Official Report, columns 179–84.

27. Mrs. Ellman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps he has taken to help business adjust to the introduction of the euro. [72442]

Ms Hewitt: The Treasury has run a major information and direct mail campaign for the 1.6 million small and medium sized enterprises (SMEs) with a business telephone line. We have established twelve regional euro forums to take forward preparations at a local level. Firms can now also pay taxes, file accounts, issue and redenominate shares and receive certain grants in euro.

The Government's business information campaign was highly successful and resulted in over 350,000 copies of the Treasury's business factsheets being requested by UK firms and intermediaries. In addition, three quarters of a million factsheet leaflets have been requested and there have been three and a half million "hits" on our euro website.

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what discussions he has had with (a) the EU Commission and (b) the Council of Ministers about how the rate of entry for sterling joining the euro will be fixed. [74130]

Ms Hewitt: The procedure for adopting the exchange rate at which sterling would be fixed irrevocably against the euro, should the UK decide to join the single currency, is set out in Article 109L(5) of the Treaty.

Fuel Tax

17. Mr. Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent representations he has received from the transport and road haulage industry about tax on fuel. [72429]

Ms Hewitt: The Government have received a number of representations from the Road Haulage industry about the tax on fuel. Representations have been received directly from the Freight Transport Association, the Road Haulage Association and the Automobile Association. In addition many haulage operators have written to their Members of Parliament who have passed the letters on to Government Ministers.

All of the representations received will be carefully considered in the run up to the Budget on 9 March and it would be inappropriate for me to comment further at this stage.

20. Mr. Ian Bruce: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the effect of the fuel tax escalator on the viability of the UK transport industry. [72433]

Ms Hewitt: The viability and competitiveness of the UK transport industry is taken into account when setting road fuel duty rates.

22. Sir Sydney Chapman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is his latest estimate of the revenue which the Exchequer will receive in 1998–99 from the taxation of motor fuels; and what were the figures for the previous three years. [72435]

Ms Hewitt: The latest forecast for the receipts from all hydrocarbon oil duties for 1998–99 is £21.8 billion.

As set out in Table K2 of the Customs and Excise Annual Report, receipts from duty on motor fuels for the previous three years were £15,436 million in 1995–96, £16,928 million in 1996–97 and £19,246 million in 1997–98.

35. Mr. Syms: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what representations he has received from motoring organisations on his policy of increasing petrol and diesel prices each year. [72451]

Ms Hewitt: The Government have received representations from the Automobile Association about the policy of increasing petrol and diesel prices each year.

The representations will be carefully considered in the run up to the Budget on 9 March and it would be inappropriate for me to comment further at this stage.

Working Families Tax Credit

18. Mr. Nigel Griffiths: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will estimate the number of low-income families in (a) the United Kingdom and (b) Scotland who will benefit from the working families tax credit. [72430]

Dawn Primarolo: We estimate that in the first full year, 1.3 million families in the UK will benefit from the help given by the Working Families Tax Credit and of these 130,000 of them will be families in Scotland.

Beer Duty

19. Mr. Gill: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what representations he has received regarding duties on beer. [72431]

Mrs. Roche: Treasury Ministers receive many representations about beer duty including letters from members of the public. In the run up to the Budget formal submissions have been received from the Brewers and Licensed Retailers Association, the Society of Independent Brewers and the Campaign for Real Ale.

Exchequer Share of GDP

21. Mr. Townend: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what proportion of GDP was represented by all taxes and national insurance in (a) 1996–97 and (b) 1997–98; and what is his forecast for 1998–99. [72434]

Mr. Milburn: The ratio of net taxes and social security contributions to GDP was 35.4 per cent. in 1996–97 and 36.4 per cent. in 1997–98. The new forecast for 1998–99 will be published on 9 March with the Budget.

Inflation Target

23. Mrs. Humble: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on progress made towards meeting his inflation target. [72436]

Ms Hewitt: The success of the new monetary framework is demonstrated by the fact that inflation is close to its target, long-term interest rates are around their lowest level for 40 years and inflation expectations have fallen.

Public Investment

24. Ms Lawrence: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what plans he has to increase public investment over the next three years. [72437]

Mr. Milburn: The Government intend to double net public investment by 2002.

30. Mr. Laxton: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what representations he has received on his plans for increasing public investment over the next three years. [72446]

Mr. Milburn: My right hon. Friend receives representations from many organisations and individuals about public investment, which is set to rise over the next three years from £4.3 billion net in 1998–99 to £10.8 billion in 2001–02. This extra investment will help reverse the decline in net wealth and deliver improved public services in health and education.

Money Purchase Pension Schemes

25. Mr. Sawford: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will review the operation of money purchase pension schemes. [72438]

Ms Hewitt: The Treasury and DSS published a consultation document—"Helping to Deliver Stakeholder Pensions: Flexibility in Pension Investment"—on 3 February. It proposes a new financial instrument which will be suitable for all money purchase pension schemes including stakeholder pensions.

Domestic Tourism (VAT)

28. Mr. Quinn: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the VAT regime as it is applied to the tourism and hospitality industry in the United Kingdom. [72444]

Dawn Primarolo: Most tourist services, including hotel and holiday accommodation, are subject to VAT at 17.5 per cent. However, no VAT is levied on public transport, printed matter and many items of food, and tourists also benefit from this. Additionally, many small businesses in the tourist industry are not VAT registered and thus charge no VAT at all to their customers.

Business (Tax Burden)

29. Mr. Peter Bottomley: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what representations he has received regarding the tax burden on business. [R] [72445]

Mrs. Roche: The Chancellor has received a number of representations on a variety of subjects, including tax.

Building Societies

31. Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what analysis the Government have made of the long-term advantages of a substantial mutual building society sector. [72447]

Ms Hewitt: The Government are aware of a number of studies in this field.

Credit Unions

32. Mr. Fabian Hamilton: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what support the Treasury is giving to local credit unions; and if he will make a statement. [72448]

Ms Hewitt: The Treasury does not provide direct support to credit unions, but is responsible for their legislative framework. The Treasury is currently consulting on proposals to remove some of the restrictions on their powers, and established a task force to consider how banks and building societies could assist credit unions. I also await the report of a policy action team which is looking at other ways to help their development.

Savings Ratio

33. Mr. Swayne: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what account he takes of the savings ratio in policy decisions. [72449]

Ms Hewitt: The Government are aiming to promote economic stability and part of this strategy is to avoid large cyclical swings in the saving ratio such as those seen in the late 1980s and early 1990s.

Road Haulage Taxes

34. Mrs. Ann Winterton: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what representations he has received from the road haulage industry on the levels of vehicle excise duty and fuel tax. [72450]

Ms Hewitt: The Government have received a number of representations from the road haulage industry about vehicle excise duty and fuel tax. Representations have been received directly from the Freight Transport Association, the Road Haulage Association and the Automobile Association. In addition Government Ministers have received letters from other Members of Parliament and from individual haulage operators.

All of the representations received will be carefully considered in the run up to the Budget on 9 March and it would be inappropriate for me to comment further at this stage.

Exports

36. Mr. Day: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the value of the United Kingdom's exports in the last 12 months to countries that are currently in recession. [72452]

Ms Hewitt: A quarter of the world is in recession and no country is immune from the effects of the current instability in the world economy. For example, in the three months to January, the value of UK exports to Japan and South Korea were down 25 per cent. on a year earlier, and even larger falls have been seen in exports to various other crisis-bound economies in Asia and elsewhere. But as a result of the tough and decisive action the Government has taken, Britain is now better placed to steer a course of stability in an uncertain and unstable world.

Census (2001)

Ms Lawrence: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when the Government's proposals for the 2001 Census of Population will be published; and if he will make a statement. [75406]

Ms Hewitt: The Government have decided that, subject to appropriate legislative approval, a Census of Population should be taken throughout the United Kingdom in 2001; the proposed date is Sunday 29 April. Further details are published today in "The 2001 Census of Population" (Cm 4253), which I have presented to Parliament jointly with my right hon. Friends the Secretaries of State for Scotland and for Northern Ireland.

In April this year the Census Offices will conduct a Census Rehearsal with the aim of making sure that the procedures for delivery and collection of the census forms, and the systems for processing the data and producing outputs, will be effective. The Census Rehearsal will also be used as the final opportunity to assess public reaction to the proposed census questions.

After evaluation of the 1999 Census Rehearsal results, the Government in Westminster will prepare a draft Order in Council with respect to the Census in England and Wales and will lay it before Parliament for approval in accordance with the Census Act 1920. As a result of devolution, it will be for the Scottish Parliament to make the necessary specific arrangements for the conduct of the Census in Scotland. In Northern Ireland, the arrangements for the Census there will be made by the local administration.

Employee Transport

Mr. Peter Bradley: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will remove the tax burden on employers providing public transport for their work force; and if he will make a statement. [72439]

Dawn Primarolo: I have noted my hon. Friend's suggestions.

Illegal Drugs (Devon and Cornwall)

Mr. Steen: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what amounts of illegal drugs have been seized by Customs and Excise in Devon and Cornwall over the last five years. [73651]

Dawn Primarolo [holding answer 1 March 1999]: Over the last five financial years (up to and including 24 February 1999), Customs and Excise has seized some 31,625 kgs of illegal drugs in Devon and Cornwall.

Mr. Steen: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps he plans to take to increase the level of Class B drug seizures by Customs and Excise in Devon and Cornwall over the next two years. [73654]

Dawn Primarolo [holding answer 1 March 1999]: Customs measure their effectiveness in the fight against drugs smuggling by concentrating on the drugs prevented from entering the UK and on the number of trafficking organisations disrupted and dismantled rather than on the level of seizures and the Department does not, therefore, plan on the basis of seizures made either nationally or locally.

Drug Sniffer Dog Unit, Plymouth

Mr. Steen: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many dogs there were in the Drug Sniffer Dog Unit at Plymouth prior to its closure. [73652]

Dawn Primarolo [holding answer 1 March 1999]: The Customs drugs dog unit at Plymouth comprises of three dogs. The unit is still operational. Customs managers in the south-west are currently reviewing the local deployment of anti-smuggling resources; closure is only one of a number of options currently being considered.

Zimbabwe

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what official visits he, his Ministers or officials have paid to Zimbabwe since May 1997; whom they met; and what was discussed. [73465]

Ms Hewitt: No Treasury ministers have visited Zimbabwe on official business since May 1997. There are no central records of official travel by Treasury officials and the information requested could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Debt Relief

Miss Geraldine Smith: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of CAFOD's proposals for the relief of debt. [74265]

Ms Hewitt: The Chancellor took into account the views of CAFOD, among others, in his recent proposals to deliver faster, deeper and wider debt relief to heavily indebted poor countries.

DEFENCE

Defence Secondary Care Agency

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many people are currently employed by the Defence Secondary Care Agency; and what was the figure at the time of its establishment. [72795]

Mr. Spellar: This is a matter for the Chief Executive of the Defence Secondary Care Agency. I have asked the Chief Executive to write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Major General C. G. Callow to Mr. Mike Hancock, dated 4 March 1999:

I am replying to your Question to the Secretary of State for Defence about how many people are currently employed by the Defence Secondary Care Agency and what was the figure at the time of its establishment. This matter falls within my area of responsibility as Chief Executive of the DSCA.

The Agency was launched on 30 April 1996, bringing together all the single Service elements of the Defence Medical Services. We do not have available a staffing total of sufficient accuracy for that day. However, our Annual Report for the year 1996/97 records the average total number of military and civilian personnel within the DSCA as 2,519.

We now have a total of 2,504 personnel currently employed in the Agency.

Army Aircraft Crashes

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what were the attributed causes of each Army aircraft crash in the last five years. [72934]

Mr. Spellar: There have been a total of 13 Army aircraft accidents during the period 1 January 1994 to 31 December 1998. A list of these accidents and attributable cause is shown in the table.

| Date | Aircraft | Location | Cause |

Defence Agencies

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he will set targets for the (a) Army Base Storage and Distribution Agency and (b) Army Personnel Centre for the year 1999–2000. [72804]

Mr. Spellar [holding answer 24 February 1999]: I will publish targets for the Army Personnel Centre, APC, for the year 1999–2000 by the end of April 1999.

The Army Base Storage and Distribution Agency will cease to exist after 31 March 1999. Following the Strategic Defence Review, a new, tri-Service Defence Storage and Distribution Agency will be established from 1 April 1999. The new Agency's Key Targets will also be published in April this year.

Defence Analytical Services Agency

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which targets the Defence Analytical Services Agency did not meet in 1997–98; and what monitoring he has undertaken for those targets in 1998–99. [71903]

Mr. Spellar [holding answer 25 February 1999]: The Defence Analytical Services Agency (DASA) met all its Key Targets in 1997–98. The performance of DASA is monitored by the Owner's Advisory Board which is chaired by the Owner—the department's Principal Finance Officer—and consists of customer representatives and external advisers. The Chief Executive of DASA has frequent formal and informal meetings with the Owner to report on progress during the year and submits periodic written reports on progress against targets. The Owner acts for the Secretary of State in overseeing the performance of the agency.

Gun and Rocket Propellant

Mr. Maples: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will publish the Defence Scientific Advisory Committee's 1997 report on the manufacture of gun and rocket propellant in the UK. [73393]

Mr. Spellar [holding answer 26 February 1999]: No. I am withholding publication under Exemptions 2 and 13 of the Code of Practice on Access to Government Information.

Nuclear Tests (India and Pakistan)

Mr. Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the actions taken by his Department further to the testing of nuclear devices by (a) India and (b) Pakistan. [73978]

Mr. Spellar: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given by my hon. Friend the Minister of State, Foreign and Commonwealth Office on 2 March 1999, Official Report, column 685. In support of the policy set out there my Department has reviewed and strengthened its procedures to ensure that no defence-sponsored training is provided to Indian or Pakistani nationals that might contribute to the development of nuclear weapons or their means of delivery.

Military Exercises

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what assessment he has made of the benefits of the combined maritime and air exercise in Malaysia carried out between 1 April 1997 and 31 March 1998; [72846]

(2) what assessment he has made of the combined maritime and air exercise in Malaysia carried out between 1 April 1997 and 31 March 1998; [72837]

(3) how many personnel were deployed on the combined maritime and air exercise in Malaysia carried out between 1 April 1997 and 31 March 1998; [72970]

(4) if he will list those countries which had armed forces involved in the combined maritime and air exercises in Malaysia carried out between 1 April 1997 and 31 March 1998. [72974]

Mr. Spellar [holding answer 1 March 1999]: The Royal Air Force (RAF) and the Royal Navy (RN) participated in Exercise FLYING FISH 97, which took place in Malaysia as part of the Five Power Defence Arrangements (FPDA), between 12–30 April 1997. The RAF deployed 450 personnel specifically to participate in this exercise. In addition, the RN had a number of ships in the area, taking part in Exercise OCEAN WAVE, from which approximately 1,900 personnel participated in Exercise FLYING FISH. The other armed forces participating were from New Zealand, Australia, Malaysia and Singapore. Exercise FLYING FISH was the first of a new series of multinational tri-service exercises conducted under the auspices of the FPDA. The UK made the largest contribution to the exercise and also provided the command platform from which the exercise was controlled. The exercise improved the operational capability of UK forces which might need in future to deploy to the Asia-Pacific region in support of the FPDA. It also demonstrated the UK's capability to operate and sustain a RAF and RN deployment over large distances from the UK, and our ability to co-operate effectively with our other FPDA partners.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many personnel were deployed on the two desert exercises in Jordan carried out between 1 April 1997 and 31 March 1998; [72826]

(2) what was the cost of the two desert exercises in Jordan carried out between 1 April 1997 and 31 March 1998. [72827]

Mr. Spellar [holding answer 1 March 1999]: Nine hundred and ninety seven UK servicemen were deployed on the two desert exercises conducted in Jordan in September and October 1997. The in-theatre cost of the exercises was £1.7 million, excluding the cost of ammunition and of spares consumed during the exercise which are not readily identifiable.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what assessment he has made of the benefits of the brigade exercise in Poland carried out between 1 April 1997 and 31 March 1998; [72832]

(2) what assessment he has made of the brigade exercise in Poland carried out between 1 April 1997 and 31 March 1998. [72834]

(3) what was the cost of the brigade exercise in Poland carried out between 1 April 1997 and 31 March 1998. [72973]

Mr. Spellar [holding answer 1 March 1999]: Participation in Exercise ULAN EAGLE, which took place at the Drawko-Pomorskie training area in North East Poland in October 1997, was intended to give 20 Armoured Brigade training experience in warfighting at formation level, and to increase the readiness state of Brigade. The exercise is assessed to have achieved its aims. The cost of the exercise was £3.4 million, including movement costs to and from Poland but excluding the cost of ammunition and of spares consumed during the exercise.

Press and Broadcasting Advisory Committee

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence to whom the Secretary of the Defence, Press and Broadcasting Advisory Committee is responsible. [74311]

Mr. George Robertson: The Secretary of the Defence, Press and Broadcasting Advisory Committee is responsible to the Committee as a whole; that is the Government Members and Press and Broadcasting Members alike. His accountability was included in Open Government Document No. 93/06, which was published when the old D Notices were replaced by the current Defence Advisory Notices on 1 August 1993. A copy of the OGD was placed in the House of Commons Library on 23 July 1993.

Executive Agencies

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence to what extent the Ministry of Defence Police Agency is answerable to him. [74310]

Mr. George Robertson: The MOD Police is an Agency of the Ministry of Defence and the Secretary of State for Defence has ultimate responsibility for determining the size, policy and resources framework within which the Agency operates, acting through the MOD Police Committee. The Chief Constable has, however, exclusive statutory authority for the professional direction and control of MOD Police officers and the Force is independent from political or Departmental influence in the maintenance and operation of the law.

Gurkhas

Mr. Burnett: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has to discuss with the Indian Government a review of pensions paid to retired Gurkhas who have served with the British and Indian armies. [74128]

Mr. Spellar: Gurkha pensions are paid in accordance with the 1947 Tri-Partite Agreement between the UK, India and Nepal and are linked to the Indian Army pension code. Last year a review took place, incorporating the 1996 Indian Government 5th Pay Commission, which resulted in substantial rises for all our 26,000 British Gurkha pensioners and their families. The pension increases resulting from this review have been backdated to 1 January 1996. We have no current plans to hold discussions with the Indian Government on the issue of Gurkha pensions.

Jungle Training Exercise (Thailand)

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which countries had armed forces involved in the jungle training exercise in Thailand carried out between 1 April 1997 and 31 March 1998. [72848]

Mr. Spellar [holding answer 2 March 1999]: Thailand and the United Kingdom.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the jungle training exercise in Thailand carried out between 1 April 1997 and 31 March 1998. [72851]

Mr. Spellar [holding answer 2 March 1999]: This exercise, involving a company of Royal Marines, was intended to maintain and develop their capability to conduct operations in a jungle environment. It was assessed to have succeeded in its aim.

Duke of York's Military School

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he expects to set targets for the Duke of York's Military School for 1999-2000. [72986]

Mr. Spellar [holding answer 2 March 1999]: I expect to set targets for the Duke of York's Military School by the end of April 1999.

Alpine Avalanches

Mr. Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assistance he has offered to the Austrian and French authorities following avalanche emergencies in the Alps in the last 12 months. [74136]

Mr. George Robertson [holding answer 2 March 1999]: During the recent avalanche emergency in Austria, the Austrian authorities requested help from nations in the form of medium lift helicopters. This was the first request of its type in the last 12 months that we have received from either Austrian or French authorities. Our offer of a Puma helicopter was not required as lift from nations with nearer military bases was more readily available.

Landmine Clearance

Mr. Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many serving members of Her Majesty's armed forces qualified in landmine clearance are currently involved in mine clearance operations; where they are serving; and to whom they are on secondment. [74207]

Mr. George Robertson [holding answer 2 March 1999]: In total 59 personnel are involved in, or training for, mine clearance operations, as follows:

Geneva Centre for International Humanitarian Demining—One Officer as technical adviser;

Bosnia Mine Action Centre (Mostar)—One Officer as technical adviser;

UN Development Programme (New York)—One Officer on Training Study Team;

UK Mine Information and Training Centre, Minley—Three personnel;

Falklands Islands Explosive Ordnance Destruction detachment—Six personnel;

Bosnia Stabilisation Force—46 personnel involved in co-ordination of mine clearance, emergency disposal of mines and unexploded ordnance, and mine awareness training;

Kosovo—One officer in Organisation for Security and Co-operation in Europe Mine Action Cell.

Mr. Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has to extend the use of serving members of Her Majesty's armed forces in landmine clearance work overseas. [74208]

Mr. George Robertson [holding answer 2 March 1999]: As part of the programme to increase the Ministry of Defence's contribution to humanitarian de-mining, which I announced on 27 October 1997, Official Report, columns 609-20, we have offered up to five additional military personnel to the United Nations in support of de-mining projects overseas.

Deployment

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what is the current proportion of (a) the Army and (b) Land Command, (i) committed and (ii) warned to deploy for operations. [74058]

Mr. Spellar [holding answer 2 March 1999]: The information requested is as follows:

percentage

| | Committed to operations | Warned to deploy on operations |
|---|---|---|
| Army personnel | 35.6 | 20.4 |
| Land Command personnel | 54.6 | 31.3 |

Ministry of Defence Police

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many people are currently employed by the Ministry of Defence Police; and what was the figure ten years ago. [72991]

Mr. Spellar [holding answer 3 March 1999]: This is a matter for the Chief Executive of the Ministry of Defence Police. I have asked the Chief Executive to write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Walter Boreham to Mr. Mike Hancock, dated 4 March 1999:

I am replying to your Question to the Secretary of State for Defence about the complement of the Ministry of Defence Police, both the current manning levels and those of ten years ago, as this falls into my area of responsibility as Chief Constable/Chief Executive of the Ministry of Defence Police Agency.

The strength for the Ministry of Defence Police on 23rd February 1999 was 3,609 with 245 civilian support staff. The strength figure of 1st May 1989 was 4,613 and 92 civilian staff.

Army District Organisations

Mr. Grogan: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the restructuring of the Army district organisation in the United Kingdom. [75407]

Mr. Doug Henderson: I announced on 28 October 1998, Official Report, columns 360-67, that, subject to consultation with the Trades Unions, we planned to restructure the Army district organisation to produce a more effective and efficient framework for the administration of Army units in the United Kingdom. Following this consultation, I am now able to confirm that the restructuring will proceed as follows: the number of regional districts will reduce from six to three, covering Scotland and the North of England, Wales and the West of England and South-East England. Divisional headquarters for the higher administration of Army units in these regions will be at Craigiehall near Edinburgh, Shrewsbury and Aldershot. These reforms will also mean that the headquarters of the 3rd Division, based at Bulford in Wiltshire, will be freed of its regional administrative responsibilities and able to concentrate on its operational role including the command of its deployable units throughout the country. In addition, the London District headquarters will reduce to the status of a brigade headquarters and the headquarters of 43 (Wessex) Brigade will be transferred from Exeter to Bulford.

As I announced on 2 March 1999, Official Report, column 657, units of the Defence Vetting Agency which are currently widespread around the country will be collocated at Imphal Barracks, York, making use of space vacated by the headquarters 2nd Division.

Lobbyists

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the role of professional lobbyists in formulating policy in his Department. [74352]

Mr. George Robertson: Professional lobbyists have no role in formulating policy within the Ministry of Defence.

Defence Diplomacy

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will publish the budget for defence diplomacy for 1999–2000. [74655]

Mr. George Robertson: The budget for centrally funded Defence Diplomacy activities for 1999–2000 will be found from within the Defence Military Assistance Fund (DMAF). The planned DMAF budget for the next financial year will be around £16 million. This represents an increase of some £5 million over 1998–99. The enhancement is specifically intended to fund additional Defence Diplomacy initiatives.

No decision has yet been taken on the final allocation of the DMAF for 1999–2000, but the majority will be utilised to fund Defence Diplomacy-related activities. The remainder will subsidise military assistance under the Support to Wider British Interests Mission.

Top Level Budget Holders also fund activities undertaken as part of the Defence Diplomacy Mission. Figures for these activities are not identified separately.

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence by what means his Department assesses the impact of defence diplomacy. [74654]

Mr. George Robertson: We are developing a range of Defence Diplomacy objectives that will be embedded in the Department's planning process. Performance against those objectives will be assessed for each of the management areas concerned. In addition, a Committee chaired by the Deputy Policy Director has been created to oversee the implementation of Defence Diplomacy activities.

Chief of Defence Logistics

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list the planned budget and total staff of the Chief of Defence Logistics after 1 April 2000. [74652]

Mr. George Robertson: The Defence Logistics Organisation (DLO), under the leadership of the Chief of Defence Logistics (CDL), will form on 1 April 1999. It will combine the three existing single-service logistics organisations, and headquarters logistic staff currently based in London, into a fully integrated logistics organisation. CDL will operate as a Top Level Budget Holder.

Detailed budgetary allocations to individual budget holders in the Ministry of Defence are made only one year in advance. Details for 1999–2000 will appear in the forthcoming Supply Estimates for that year and in the supporting information published alongside the Government Expenditure Plans. But, in broad terms, our plans for the financial year 2000–2001 envisage cash expenditure of the order of £4.5 billion in CDL's area of responsibility. The detailed budget will be published next year in Supply Estimates for 2000–2001.

Work continues to determine the structure of the unified DLO post 1 April 2000, however, initial staff numbers will be broadly comparable to the sum of the three Principal Administrative Officers' organisations which, as published in the UK Defence Statistics 1998, number some 41,400.

Unified Defence Logistics Organisation

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what logistical responsibilities and budgets will be left to the individual services following the implementation of a unified defence logistics organisation after 1 April 2000. [74648]

Mr. George Robertson: Following the implementation of the unified defence logistics organisation, the individual services will retain responsibility (including the budgets) for logistics at the Front-line.

Defence Strategic Plan

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he intends publishing his Department's annual Defence Strategic Plan. [74657]

Mr. George Robertson: The Defence Strategic Plan is a classified document and is therefore not published.

Strategic Defence Review

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what arrangements are in place to enable the Defence Council to exercise collective ownership of the implementation of the Strategic Defence Review. [74656]

Mr. George Robertson: Implementation of the Strategic Defence Review is discussed regularly at meetings of the Defence Council.

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what are the key milestones and timetables for deliverance of the Strategic Defence Review implementation. [74646]

Mr. George Robertson: Key targets for the Department and a timetable for achieving them, reflecting the outcome of the Strategic Defence Review, were set out in the Ministry of Defence's Public Service Agreement, published in December.

A number of key milestones in the implementation of the Strategic Defence Review have already been achieved, including: decisions on the command structure, location and timetable for the establishment of a Joint Helicopter Command involving battlefield helicopters of all three Services, and a Joint RN/RAF Harrier force (Joint Force 2000); detailed decisions on the restructuring of the TA; the establishment of a Veterans Advice Unit and an inter-Departmental Services Families Task Force; plans for the reorganisation and enhancement of the Defence Medical Services; and the trialling of the principles of Smart Procurement through pilot Integrated Project Teams in the Procurement Executive and the logistics area.

Over the coming weeks, I anticipate being able to announce further significant achievements in the implementation of SDR measures.

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what practical measures he plans to take to ensure that the implementation of the Strategic Defence Review is an open and transparent process. [74658]

Mr. George Robertson: We have sought to ensure that the openness which characterised the conduct of the Strategic Defence Review continues in its implementation. We have consulted widely within the Department, with the Trades Unions and with affected local authorities on implementation of individual aspects, and will continue to do so. Where appropriate (for example, in taking forward the Smart Procurement initiative) we have involved defence industry. We consulted widely on the detailed implementation of TA restructuring and on the restructuring and enhancement of the Defence Medical Service before taking decisions. I held a seminar at RUSI on 22 October 1998 to discuss the Review with journalists, academics and other interested parties. We have kept Parliament informed as implementation of individual aspects progresses and will report further in the Defence White Paper later in the year.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

(14) how many pages long the faxed document was containing the draft Foreign Affairs Committee report on the Sierra Leone inquiry which was received during the second week in January; [73938]

Mr. Woodward: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) if the Minister of State, the hon. Member for Manchester, Central (Mr. Lloyd), his PPS, his advisers, or civil servants, had sight of or discussions about the Foreign Affairs Committee's Sierra Leone (i) report, (ii) draft report and (iii) amendments or selected details of the draft or final version before 8 am on Tuesday 9 February; [73699]

(2) who was responsible for the leaks to him subsequent to the leak of the full draft of the Foreign Affairs Committee report on Sierra Leone; [73696]

(3) what action he took to report to the House the leak of the key conclusions of the Foreign Affairs Committee on Sierra Leone referred to in his answer to the hon. Member for Chesham and Amersham (Mrs. Gillan), 23 February 1999, Official Report, columns 259–60; [73701]

(4) who in his office saw the leaked draft of the Foreign Affairs Committee's report on Sierra Leone; if it was discussed with him; and if it was discussed with or shown to other Ministers, PPSs, civil servants or special advisers; [73698]

(5) what actions he took when he received the leaked draft report of the Foreign Affairs Committee on Sierra Leone in the second week of January; and what actions he took when he received subsequent leaks of the report's key conclusions; [73697]

(6) what actions he took to report the leak of the draft report of the Foreign Affairs Committee on Sierra Leone to (a) the House and (b) the Committee. [73700]

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) if he will specify the dates and times of all the discussions he held with his Permanent Secretary about the draft report between its receipt in the Foreign and Commonwealth Office and the publication of the Committee's report; [74287]

(2) if he will identify the Minister, official or special adviser whose office fax machine received the draft copy of the Foreign Affairs Committee's report on Sierra Leone from the hon. Member for Dundee, West (Mr. Ross); [74286]

(3) when the Minister of State, the hon. Member for Manchester, Central (Mr. Lloyd), informed the Chairman of the Foreign Affairs Committee that (i) he and (ii) members of his official and political staff had received a copy of the draft report on Sierra Leone; [74290]

(4) when he first informed the Chairman of the Foreign Affairs Committee that (i) he and (ii) members of his official and political staff had received a copy of the draft report on Sierra Leone. [74289]

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) what action he took when he discovered that the Foreign Affairs Committee's draft report on Sierra Leone had been passed to his office in January; [73631]

(2) when (a) he, (b) Ministers, (c) his Department's officials and (d) special advisers first saw a copy of the draft report from the Foreign Affairs Committee on Sierra Leone; [73635]

(3) how long after receiving (a) the leaked draft and (b) the leaked key conclusions of the Foreign Affairs Committee report on Sierra Leone he informed the Permanent Secretary that these documents were in his possession; [74327]

(4) how he indicated to the hon. Member for Dundee, West (Mr. Ross) that he had received the leaked draft copy of the report by the Foreign Affairs Committee on Sierra Leone; [74330]

(5) what account the Minister of State, the hon. Member for Manchester, Central (Mr. Lloyd), took of the leak of the draft report of the Foreign Affairs Committee on Sierra Leone in answering the question from the hon. Member for Chesham and Amersham on 16 February 1999, Official Report, column 751 (ref. 71829); [74334]

(6) if any (a) special adviser, (b) Minister, (c) hon. Member, (d) official or (e) other person solicited a copy of the draft of the Foreign Affairs Committee report on Sierra Leone from the hon. Member for Dundee, West (Mr. Ross); [74329]

(7) which special adviser at his Department received the leaked key conclusions of the report of the Foreign Affairs Committee on Sierra Leone; [74328]

(8) if he will list all those (a) Ministers, (b) special advisers, (c) officials, (d) hon. Members and (e) others who were (i) told about and (ii) given copies of the leaked draft of the Foreign Affairs Committee report on Sierra Leone before 8 am on 9 February 1998; [74326]

(9) what account he took of paragraph 1.1.(iii) of the Ministerial Code when approving the answer given by the Minister of State, the hon. Member for Manchester, Central (Mr. Lloyd), to the question from the hon. Member for Chesham and Amersham on 16 February 1999, Official Report, column 751 (ref. 71829); [74336]

(10) what account the Minister of State, the hon. Member for Manchester, Central (Mr. Lloyd), took of paragraph 1.1.(iii) of the Ministerial Code when answering the question from the hon. Member for Chesham and Amersham on 16 February 1999, Official Report, column 751 (ref. 71829); [74335]

(11) if he will list the (a) complete and (b) partial (i) copies and (ii) drafts of select committee reports, apart from the one relating to Sierra Leone from the Foreign Affairs Committee, which he has received before publication. [73577]

Mr. Robin Cook [holding answers 26 February and 1 March 1999]: I refer the hon. Members to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Chesham and Amersham (Mrs. Gillan) on 23 February 1999, Official Report, columns 259-60 and to my Statement to the House on 24 February 1999, Official Report, column 415.

The draft report was seen by me, the Minister of State, my hon. Friend the Member for Manchester, Central (Mr. Lloyd) and a limited number of officials.

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if (a) he, (b) his officials, (c) his special advisers and (d) his Ministers provided (i) assistance and (ii) advice to the hon. Member for Dundee, West (Mr. Ross) in the drafting of amendments to the Foreign Affairs Committee draft report on Sierra Leone. [73633]

Mr. Robin Cook [holding answer 26 February 1999]: No action was taken to publish or disclose any part of the Foreign Affairs Committee's Report on Sierra Leone, or to interfere in any way with their preparation or the Committee's deliberations on them. No advice or assistance was given to any Member of the Select Committee in the drafting of amendments.

Leaked Documents

Mr. Wilshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) if he will list all leaked Foreign Affairs Committee documents that reached (a) him, (b) his ministers, (c) his officials, (d) his advisers and (e) departmental parliamentary private secretaries during (i) 1998 and (ii) 1999 and the dates on which they were received; [73806]

(2) if he will send to the Clerk of the Foreign Affairs Committee all leaked Committee documents and copies of them that are or have been in his or his Department's possession and that are rightfully the property of the committee, the House or hon. Members. [73902]

Mr. Robin Cook [holding answer 1 March 1999]: I refer to my earlier answer to the hon. Member for Chesham and Amersham (Mrs. Gillan) on 23 February 1999, Official Report, columns 259-60, and to my statements in the House 24 February 1999, Official Report, column 415, and 2 March 1999, Official Report, column 894.

My office received, shortly before its publication in December 1998, the command paper version of the Foreign Affairs Select Committee's Report on Human Rights. It was seen by myself and by a limited number of officials.

My office received in January 1999 a copy of a draft version of the Foreign Affairs Committee's Report on enlargement. It was seen by the Minister of State, my right hon. Friend the Member for Gateshead, East and Washington, West (Ms Quin), and by a limited number of officials. Reflecting the fact that the subject matter was not controversial, it was not shown to me.

No action was taken to publish or disclose any part of these Reports, or to interfere in any way with their preparation or the Committee's deliberations on them. No advice or assistance was given to any Member of the Select Committee in the drafting of amendments.

Sierra Leone

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will list the dates on which he held meetings with (a) the Permanent Secretary and (b) Ministers to discuss (i) the Legg report and (ii) the Foreign Affairs Committee report on Sierra Leone (HC 116) of Session 1998–99. [73176]

Mr. Robin Cook: I have discussed the issued arising from Sandline International's activities in Sierra Leone on many occasions since May 1998 with both the Minister of State, Foreign and Commonwealth Office, my hon. Friend the Member for Manchester, Central (Mr. Lloyd), and the Permanent Under-Secretary.

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which officials drafted the answers to the hon. Member for Chesham and Amersham of 16 February 1999, Official Report, column 751 (ref. 71829), and 23 February 1999, Official Report, columns 259–60 (ref. 71836). [74333]

Mr. Robin Cook [holding answer 2 March 1999]: The first answer was drafted by officials in the Parliamentary Relations Department of the Foreign and Commonwealth Office, and the second by officials in my office, after consultation with me.

Foreign Affairs Committee

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will publish all his Department's correspondence with the hon. Member for Dundee, West (Mr. Ross) since his appointment to the Foreign Affairs Committee. [73634]

Mr. Robin Cook [holding answer 26 February 1999]: There is no correspondence which has any bearing on the Foreign Affairs Committee Report on Sierra Leone or otherwise on my hon. Friend's membership of the Select Committee.

Gibraltar

Mr. Woodward: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the outcome of his recent meeting with the Foreign Minister of Spain. [72213]

Ms Quin [holding answer 22 February 1999]: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary discussed a variety of issues concerning Gibraltar with his Spanish counterpart on 21 February. He pressed the Spanish Foreign Minister to reduce the present unacceptable delays at the border. He gave Sr. Matutes details of Gibraltar's record in transposing EU directives, on which the Spanish Ministry of Foreign Affairs had produced inaccurate public statements. He said that there were currently no problems over fishing in British waters around Gibraltar and that the outstanding charges against Spanish fishermen were a matter for the courts. He defended the validity of Gibraltar driving licences, and reaffirmed our and the Government of Gibraltar's willingness to look into any evidence of illegal activity concerning money laundering. The Ministers agreed on the importance of improving bilateral relations and overcoming differences between them. They agreed to meet again.

Mr. Trend: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he raised the Spanish proposals for joint sovereignty of Gibraltar during his meeting with the Spanish Foreign Minister on 21 February, what was the result of the discussions on the issues of border delays and possible restrictions on commercial over-flights, and if he will make a statement. [73177]

Ms Quin: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Witney (Mr. Woodward) today at column 877. The meeting between the Foreign Secretary and the Spanish Foreign Minister on 21 February was not part of the Brussels Process. The Spanish proposals tabled at the last Brussels Process meeting were not discussed in detail. We have made clear we will respond to Sr Matutes' proposals at the next meeting of that process. The Foreign Secretary confirmed to Sr Matutes that we were happy to have such a meeting.

At their meeting, the Foreign Secretary pressed his Spanish counterpart to reduce delays at the border and expressed concern at reports that Spain was considering introducing restrictions on overflights of Spain by aircraft to and from Gibraltar. The Ministers agreed to meet again.

European Council (Cardiff)

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on progress achieved with a United Kingdom lead consequential to the joint letter of President Chirac and Chancellor Kohl to the Cardiff European Council. [74438]

Ms Quin: Since the Franco-German letter written to the Prime Minister before the Cardiff European Council, the UK has taken the lead in agreeing joint statements with Spain on economic reform and employment, Sweden on social inclusion, and Germany on tax, in advance of the Vienna European Council. In addition, we issued a joint statement on defence with France at the Anglo-French summit in St. Malo last December, and are vigorously pursuing this debate with partners in the run up to the Washington NATO Summit in April and the Cologne European Council in June. There has been a widespread welcome from our EU partners for our approach.

EU Commission (Work Programme)

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the Commission's 1999 work programme as set out in COM (98) 609, detailing each proposal listed. [74442]

Ms Quin: A copy of the Commission's Work Programme (COM (98) 604 and COM (98) 609) has been deposited in the Library of the House. This includes a full list of the new legislative initiatives proposed by the Commission. The Government's reaction to the Work Programme was made in explanatory memoranda Nos. 12841/98 and 12840/98, submitted on 8 December 1998.

East Java

Mr. Alan Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received about the use of British-made water cannon against persons outside the Maspion electronics and plastics factory in Surabaya, East Java, on 17 February; and if he will make a statement. [74400]

Mr. Fatchett: We understand that Tactica water cannon was used in Surabaya on 17 February. These water cannon were licensed under the previous Administration. No water cannon have been approved for export under our Government.

Indonesia

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he intends to discuss the use of British Tactica water cannon with the Indonesian Government. [74371]

Mr. Fatchett: We have made clear to the Indonesian authorities that British-supplied equipment should not be used against civilians to prevent the exercise of their rights of free expression, assembly and association, or in violation of, other international human rights standards.

Departmental Cash and Running Costs Limits

Mr. Coaker: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what changes he proposes to make in his Department's cash limits and running costs limits for 1998–99. [75216]

Mr. Fatchett: Subject to Parliamentary approval of the necessary Supplementary Estimates the following change will be made in addition to the changes I announced on 11 February 1999, Official Report, column 361.

The cash limit for Class II, Vote 2 (Other External Relations) will be increased by £10,000,000 from £265,611,000 to £275,611,000. The additional provision is required to provide assistance to Sierra Leone. It will be used to provide additional practical support to ECOMOG, to help train and equip a democratically accountable Sierra Leone army, and to provide support for peace negotiations.

The increase will be charged to the Reserve and will not therefore add to the planned total of public expenditure.

Kosovo

Mr. Leslie: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will place a copy of the draft interim agreement on Kosovo in the Library. [75217]

Mr. Tony Lloyd: The draft Kosovo agreement is not a public document. I will, however, place a Foreign Office summary of the draft agreement in the Library of the House.

NATO Enlargement

Mr. McCabe: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when the Czech Republic, Poland and Hungary will join NATO. [75218]

Mr. Tony Lloyd: The Czech Republic, Poland and Hungary will deposit their instruments of accession to the North Atlantic Treaty at a ceremony in Independence, Missouri on 12 March. The Government warmly welcome this, fourth, enlargement of the North Atlantic Treaty Organisation. It is another step towards overcoming the artificial divisions across our continent created during the Cold War and will help to spread security and stability for the benefit of all.

Human Rights

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recommendations were made by the Human Rights Workshop in Jakarta. [74369]

Mr. Fatchett: Many concrete suggestions for follow-up action emerged from the four working groups of the Workshop (police and judiciary; women's and children's rights; human rights education, awareness and institution building; and labour rights). The two co-Chairmen of the Workshop, Marzuki Darusman of Indonesia National Human Rights Commission and Professor David Harris of the University of Nottingham, drew particular attention to a number of these recommendations in the communiqué issued at the conclusion of the Workshop.

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what follow-up action the United Kingdom Government took after the Human Rights Workshop in Jakarta. [74370]

Mr. Fatchett: We are working closely with EU partners and Indonesian human rights groups to turn the proposals generated at the Workshop into concrete projects to enhance human rights in Indonesia.

Lobbyists

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the role of professional lobbyists in formulating policy in his Department. [74354]

Mr. Tony Lloyd: Any contacts with lobbyists by Ministers and civil servants in this Department are conducted in accordance with the Ministerial Code and Guidance for Civil Servants: Contact with Lobbyists.

Public Consultations

Dr. Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will publish his Department's collation and assessment of responses to its public consultations. [73960]

Mr. Fatchett: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office follows the Cabinet Office guidance on how to conduct written consultation exercises. This includes publicising and making available the results of such exercises wherever practicable.

SOCIAL SECURITY

Pilot Projects

Yvette Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if he will list the pilot projects instigated by his Department since 1 May 1997, indicating the area in which each pilot took, or is taking, place. [72639]

Angela Eagle: We are reforming the welfare system around our central aim of work for those that can, security for those that cannot. We have initiated a number of prototype and pilot projects examining ways of getting people back into work and delivering more flexible, efficient services. A list of the main initiatives is provided in the table.

| Lone Parent Integrated Service Prototype | Ealing, Acton, Euston, Highgate and London Borough of Camden |

Note:
There are also a number of other small-scale prototypes and pilots that are on-going or planned.

Single Currency

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if he will list the subject areas within his Department's responsibilities which will be covered by the information campaign on Britain's membership of a single currency. [73674]

Angela Eagle: The Treasury will continue its dialogue with key external bodies to determine what information the public and business would need at each stage of the changeover process. Any information campaign would cover key concerns that the public and business may have. Chapter eight of the Treasury's Outline National Changeover Plan provides further information. Copies of the Plan are available in the House Library.

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what plans he has to issue information from his Department to help the public make an informed decision when they vote on the single currency. [73582]

Angela Eagle: Any plans by the Government to issue information during a referendum campaign on whether or not the UK should join the single currency would be made in the light of the Government's response to the recommendations from the Neill Committee on the conduct of referendums. The Government will announce their conclusions on those recommendations when my right hon. Friend the Home Secretary publishes a White paper and draft Bill before the recess.

Disabled People

Mr. Wigley: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if he will initiate a take-up campaign for disability groups similar to the campaign directed at older people; and if he will make a statement. [74300]

Mr. Bayley: We are already working with the Disability Benefits Forum to identify ways of improving information and advice about disability benefits. We are determined to improve the administration of these benefits to ensure that decisions about entitlement are right at the outset and that they remain correct. These are necessary steps which must be taken before decisions can be made about the need for a take-up campaign.

Mr. Wigley: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what proportion of the financial savings to the social security budget arising from the reduction in incapacity benefit payments to disabled people will be used to improve the level of other services or support for disabled people. [74302]

Mr. Bayley: The savings on Incapacity Benefit as a result of measures in the Welfare Reform and Pensions Bill, rising to £700 million a year after ten years, will be more than offset by additional expenditure on benefits for sick and disabled people, as we meet increasing demand and seek to do more for those in the greatest need. In this Parliament alone expenditure will increase by £1 billion in real terms.

Benefit Fraud

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many prosecutions for fraud there have been since 1 May 1997 where one of the accused has been an asylum seeker. [74005]

Mr. Timms: The information could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Love: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what action his Department is taking as a result of the review of fraud in respect of social security benefits to minimise the risk of fraud and to make the social security system secure; and if he will make a statement. [74192]

Mr. Timms: We will publish shortly a document setting out our strategy for combating Social Security fraud and error in the light of the consultation on the Green Paper "Beating Fraud is Everyone's Business: securing the future".

Mr. Duncan Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security, pursuant to his answer of 26 February 1999, Official Report, column 464–63, on benefit fraud, when the fraud strategy document will be published. [74751]

Mr. Timms: We will be publishing the strategy shortly.

Learning Disabilities

Mr. Wigley: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if he will increase the income support disregard from £15 to £30 a week for people with learning disabilities. [74301]

Mr. Bayley: Our welfare reform programme has focused on making work pay and providing new and innovative ways to help people on benefit make an early return to work. The Disabled Person's Tax Credit, to be introduced in October this year, will ensure that sick and disabled people, who are able to work for 16 hours or more per week, are better off in work. In addition, the New Deal for Disabled People is exploring ways of improving opportunities for those who want to move into or stay in work.

Pensioners' Incomes

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many pensioners have gross incomes of (a) above £50,000, (b) £30,000 to £49,999, (c) £20,000 to £29,999, (d) £10,000 to £19,999, (e) £5,000 to £9,999 and (f) up to £4,999. [74006]

Mr. Timms: The information is in the table.

Number of pensioners within given bands of gross income

Thousand

| Annual income | Single pensioners | Pensioner couples |
|---|---|---|
| Above £50,000 | 10 | 50 |
| £30,000 to £49,999 | 20 | 130 |
| £20,000 to £29,999 | 70 | 270 |
| £10,000 to £19,999 | 520 | 1,100 |
| £5,000 to £9,999 | 2,380 | 1,060 |
| Up to £4,999 | 1,160 | 20 |
| Total | 4,160 | 2,630 |

Notes:

1. Estimates are rounded to the nearest 10,000 pensioners, although they are not necessarily accurate to that degree. Columns may not sum to totals due to rounding.
2. Estimates of annual income assume no in-year variation in income.
3. Estimates are not available for incomes of individuals within couples. Therefore estimates for couples relate to the combined income of both partners.
4. Pensioners are defined as single people over State pension age (60 and over for women, 65 and over for men) and couples (married of cohabiting) where the head is over State pension age.

Pensions

Mr. Love: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what proposals he has for the election of trustees by pension holders as part of the arrangements for the administration of stakeholder pensions; and if he will make a statement. [74201]

Mr. Timms: We expect that many trust-based stakeholder pension schemes will include trustees who are nominated or elected by members of the scheme. The precise requirements applying to the composition of the trustee board in stakeholder pension schemes have not yet been decided. We expect to consult further on this issue in drawing up the detailed regulations that will apply to stakeholder pension schemes.

Mobility Allowance

Mr. Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what estimate he has made of the cost of extending mobility allowance to persons of retirement age. [74010]

Mr. Bayley: The cost of extending both the higher and lower rates of the mobility component of Disability Living Allowance to people disabled after the age of 65, or who claim after the age of 65, is estimated to be approximately £2 billion.

National Insurance

Mr. Trickett: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what estimate he has made of how many people in Wakefield District will benefit from the changes in national insurance contributions to be introduced in April. [74041]

Mr. Timms: The information is not available.

Throughout Great Britain, some 20 million people will pay an average of nearly £70 a year less in National Insurance contributions as a result of the abolition of the employee entry fee in April 1999. The information is not available by district.

Task Forces

Dr. Tony Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if he will publish a list of (1) task forces and (2) policy reviews established by his Department since May 1997 which (a) had external members recruited by way of public advertisement, and details of any person so appointed and (b) engaged in public consultation exercises, and the form that these took. [74459]

Mr. Timms: Most task forces and reviews are short-term bodies established to give thorough consideration to important and difficult issues. External members are invited to sit on some reviews and task forces because they are able to contribute specific experience and expertise. In such cases, public advertising would be inappropriate and disproportionate.

Since 1 October 1998, appointments to those task forces which qualify for classification as advisory non-departmental public bodies have come within the remit of the Commissioner for Public Appointments.

Since May 1997, the Department has consulted publicly on proposals outlined in the following documents which have arisen from policy reviews:

Pensions Review Consultation Document

Stakeholder Pensions: a Consultation Document

New Ambitions for Our Country: A new contract for welfare (Cm 3805)

Children First: a new approach to child support (Cm 3992)

Beating Fraud is Everyone's Business: securing the future (Cm 4012)

A New Contract for Welfare: Support for Disabled People (Cm 4103)

A New Contract for Welfare: Support in Bereavement (Cm 4104)

Supporting People: a new policy and funding framework for support services

A New Contract for Welfare: Partnership in Pensions (Cm 4179)

Strengthening the Pensions framework: a Consultation Document.

Child Support Agency

Mr. Duncan Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security (1) what is the current level of debt owed to the Child Support Agency by absent parents; and of this, what proportion is deemed (a) collectable and (b) possibly uncollectable; [74342]

(2) what is the current backlog of cases in the Child Support Agency, and how many of these are (a) more than six months old and (b) over one year old. [74343]

Angela Eagle: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive, Mrs. Faith Boardman. She will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Faith Boardman to Mr. Iain Duncan Smith, dated 3 March 1999:

I am replying to your Parliamentary Questions to the Secretary of State for Social Security about the level of debt and backlog within the Child Support Agency.

At 31 January 1999 the amount of child support full maintenance assessment debt was £507,794,866. This can be broken down further to £296,044,407 (58.3%) collectable debt, £197,532,203 (38.9%) possible uncollectable debt and £14,218,256 (2.8%) deferred debt. Deferred debt is where the Agency has deferred the debt indefinitely, provided non-resident parents meet certain conditions on payment of regular maintenance and any remaining debt. Where appropriate the parent with care will be compensated for the loss of this money.

To further increase the flow of maintenance and to help non-resident parents pay the arrears that they owe, wherever possible the Agency makes every effort to re-schedule debts; re-scheduled debts are those where the Agency has negotiated a closely monitored agreement with the non-resident parent to pay arrears by instalments. The amount of debt re-scheduled included in the £507,794,866 at 31 January 1999 was £395,578,470 (78%).

I cannot provide precisely all the information that you have requested on the current backlog, but have provided as much as possible from the most recent information available.

At 31 January 1999, there was a total of 278,518 maintenance applications outstanding.

We normally refer to our maintenance assessment backlog as cases that are over 52 weeks old and have not yet been assessed.

At any time, the Agency would expect to have a normal head of work of around 210,000 maintenance applications. The speed with which assessments can be cleared is constrained by the complexities of the current legislation which can require up to 104 separate pieces of information to be collected and verified before an assessment can be made, however the Agency is steadily reducing the time taken and is clearing the backlog of applications from the early years.

Our original estimated volume of backlog cases outstanding in April 1997 was 225,000; by 31 January 1999 we had cleared 251,000, and in practice now expect to need to clear 300,000 cases. This is because as we have proceeded in clearing this work we identified more cases in the backlog than originally estimated. In June 1998 we introduced a major improvement of the Child Support Computer System (CSCS) which provided automated management information. To make full use of the automated information all of the existing cases on CSCS had to be checked to ensure their management information status was correct. This exercise involved validating 1.25 million cases, work was completed in December and means that we now have a reliable automated count of all work on hand.

To clear these 300,000 cases by 31 March will require the Agency to clear around 50,000 cases in February and March. Although this is very challenging we cleared over 27,000 in January, and therefore expect to clear the 300,000 cases.

We envisage that the extra resources which will be released as a result of clearing the maintenance assessment backlog will enable more resources to be concentrated on improving customer service and ensuring that parents meet their responsibility so that children receive the maintenance they are entitled to on a regular basis.

I hope this is helpful.

BASIS

Mr. Duncan Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security (1) how many arrests have been made in January by Benefits Agency Security Investigation Service Southern Command; [74345]

(2) what is the current budget for Benefits Agency Security Investigation Service; and of this, what proportion is allocated to the (a) Northern and (b) Southern Commands; [74347]

(3) how many arrests made by BASIS Southern Command have led to (a) prosecutions and (b) successful convictions since its establishment. [74346]

Mr. Timms: Questions on Benefits Agency operational matters are the responsibility of the Chief Executive, Peter Mathison. He will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Peter Mathison to Mr. Iain Duncan Smith, dated 3 March 1999:

The Secretary of State for Social Security has asked me to reply to your recent Parliamentary Questions asking how many arrests have been made in January by BASIS Southern Command; what is the budget for BASIS; and of this, what proportion is allocated to Northern and Southern Commands respectively; how many arrests made by BASIS Southern Command have led to (a) prosecutions and (b) successful convictions since its establishment.

During January 1999 the BASIS Southern Command made ten arrests.

The budget for BASIS is managed centrally and not split into two commands. It covers not only the Investigation Staff but also Support Staff and Goods and Services. The budget for this financial year is £8.2 million of which £6.34 million has been spent to date.

BASIS was formed in April 1998. Since that date the police have made 360 arrests based on information supplied by BASIS Command. One hundred and forty-eight of these have been submitted for prosecution of which ninety-four have to date been successful.

I hope that this is helpful.

Disability Living Allowance

Mr. Duncan Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security (1) under the new system of periodic review of disability living allowance, how often recipients of the benefit will have their situation reviewed; [74749]

(2) what information will be required from the recipients of disability living allowance when their situation is reviewed under the new system of review. [74750]

Mr. Bayley: From April 1999, a new fairer system of periodic inquiry into benefit entitlement will commence for existing recipients of Disability Living Allowance (DLA). People selected for inquiry action will be asked to complete a detailed questionnaire, based on the current claim form for DLA. This will provide the Benefits Agency (BA) with an up to date picture of the need that the individual has help with personal care and mobility and allow the BA to determine whether a review of entitlement would be appropriate. This will enable awards to be increased or decreased in line with entitlement. Initially, cases will be selected on a proportional basis across the range of awards to be included in the inquiry process.

Some disabling conditions, and the needs that they generate, change very little over time, whilst others can be very variable in effect and/or degenerative in nature. The BA is working to establish the proper frequency with which individuals should be asked about their current needs, so that, in the future, inquiries can be made at the most appropriate time and new claimants can be advised from the outset when inquiries are likely to be made in their case. This action does not affect the responsibility of all claimants to tell the BA about changes that may affect benefit entitlement.

Child Benefit

Mr. Duncan Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what is the estimated expenditure for child benefit for the current tax year. [74746]

Angela Eagle: The estimated expenditure figure for Child Benefit for 1998–99 is £7.252 billion.

Note:

Unemployment Statistics

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what estimate he has made of the number of people under retirement age who are not working and are not in receipt of state benefits for each of the past four years. [74160]

Angela Eagle: The information requested for four years is not available. Estimates for the last three years are in the table:

Number of adults, under retirement age, not working and not in receipt of state benefits

| | Not in receipt of any benefit | In receipt of Child Benefit or One Parent Benefit only |
|---|---|---|
| 1994–95 | 2,240,000 | 5,320,000 |
| 1995–96 | 2,180,000 | 5,420,000 |
| 1996–97 | 2,180,000 | 5,240,000 |

Notes:

1. The analysis was undertaken on adults (aged between 16 and 64, inclusive, for men and 16 and 59, inclusive, for women).
2. Adults who were temporarily not working, on industrial action, were ILO unemployed, part time students, unoccupied, had temporary or long term sickness or undertaking unpaid family work were defined as not working.
3. Estimates are subject to sampling error and to variability in non response.
4. Estimates rounded to nearest 10,000.

Lobbyists

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if he will make a statement on the role of professional lobbyists in formulating policy in his Department. [74364]

Mr. Timms: Any contacts with lobbyists by Ministers and civil servants in this Department are conducted in accordance with the "Ministerial Code" and "Guidance for Civil Servants: Contact with Lobbyists".

Social Fund

Mr. Hope: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security when the changes to the Social Fund Budgeting Loan Scheme will be introduced; and when details of the Discretionary Social Fund Budget for 1999–2000 will be announced. [75417]

Angela Eagle: The changes to the Social Fund Budgeting Loan Scheme will be introduced on 5 April 1999. Applications for Social Fund budgeting loans will be decided according to a few simple set factual criteria, rather than the discretion of the officer deciding the application. This will mean that those on the lowest incomes who apply for a loan will no longer be asked detailed questions on what they intend to do with the money before a decision can be made. In keeping with the Government's aims for an active modern Social Security service, these changes will make the applications process much simpler, and the decisions process quicker, fairer, less intrusive and easier to understand, while administration of the scheme will be more cost-effective. In connection with these changes, I am, today, placing in the House Library copies of the updated Social Fund Guide containing the revised Secretary of State Directions and Guidance to Social Fund officers on the new scheme.

We can also announce today that the total discretionary Social Fund budget for 1999–2000 will be £535.2 million, representing an increase of £34 million over the corresponding budget for 1998–99. Of this total, £98 million will be allocated to Community care Grants, £436.7 million to loans and £0.5 million will be set aside as a contingency reserve. To further improve the fairness of the Social Fund scheme we shall be allocating the loans budget to each Benefits Agency district with a view to achieving greater consistency in the level of successful applications across districts. Full details of budget allocations to individual Benefits Agency districts will be placed in the House Library on 24 March.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Asbestos

Mr. Clapham: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what plans she has to promote the establishment of an international framework for asbestos control in Third World countries. [73964]

Clare Short: We have no plans to promote the establishment of an international framework as such but we support the European Council Regulation on the export and import of dangerous chemicals and the Basle Convention DFID has assisted partner countries on the use and handling of asbestos in specific cases. Further details of DFID's role is contained in the answer to the question from my hon. Friend the Member for Tooting (Mr. Cox) on 20 July 1998, Official Report, column 395.

Aid (Kenya)

Ms Abbott: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if she will make a statement on UK (a) bilateral and (b) multilateral aid to Kenya. [74031]

Clare Short: Britain's development assistance strategy for Kenya is set out in the Kenya Country Strategy Paper published by my Department last year, copies of which are publicly available and will be sent to my hon. Friend.

Task Forces

Dr. Tony Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if she will publish a list of (1) task forces and (2) policy reviews established by her Department since May 1997 which (a) had external members recruited by way of public advertisement, and details of any person so appointed and (b) engaged in public consultation exercises, and the form that these took. [74463]

Clare Short: Since 1 May 1997 the Department for International Development (DFID) has undertaken a review of international development policy, and a review of DFID's relationship with Civil Society. Neither of these initiatives involved the recruitment of external members by public advertisement. Both reviews involved consultation with a wide variety of interested groups and individuals, who were invited to input in order to add their wide experience and knowledge to our work. A report on the consultation which DFID conducted with Civil Society, North and South, will be published shortly.

PRIME MINISTER

Task Forces

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Prime Minister (1) how many reviews and task forces he has established since May 1997; and how many of them have reported. [71151]

(2) if he will list the consultative and advisory committees set up by the Government since May 1997. [73345]

The Prime Minister: The Government are determined to deliver its Manifesto commitments. Reviews, task forces and advisory and consultative committees are helping to ensure that decisions are soundly based and representative of a wide range of views. The establishment and management of individual reviews, task forces, consultative and advisory committees is a matter for Ministers in the Department concerned.

WALES

Child Care

Mr. Barry Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will make a statement on after-school child care places and activities. [72032]

Mr. Jon Owen Jones: Guidance to the Early Years Development and Childcare Partnerships in each local authority area in Wales was issued last month. The Partnerships are now preparing plans for the development of child care provision to meet the needs of their areas, including new out of school child care, which may be eligible for funding from the New Opportunities Fund.

The New Opportunities Fund has allocated £14.3 million over the next three years for out of school child care in Wales, of which £1.3 million is to support integrated child care and education projects. In 1999–2000, the Training and Enterprise Councils in Wales will have funding of £0.9 million to provide infrastructure support (including training, business support and information) for out of school child care provision eligible for NOF funding.

In addition funding of £1.5 million will be available in 1999–2000 for the Early Years Development and Childcare Partnerships to take forward the development of child care provision, including out of school provision, in their areas.

The New Opportunities Fund has allocated £11.7 million specifically for out of school learning activities in Wales over the next three years. Funding is targeted at disadvantaged areas–and NOF plan that provision is available in at least one quarter of primary schools and a half of secondary schools and special schools.

Following the transfer of functions, these issues will be a matter for the National Assembly.

International Standard Swimming Pool

Mr. Edwards: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will make a statement about proposals for an international standard 50 metre swimming pool for Wales. [73545]

Mr. Michael: In December last year the SPORTLOT National Panel invited bids from local authorities interested in developing a replacement facility for the Wales Empire Pool. The local authorities in Cardiff, Swansea and Torfaen have expressed their interest and have been given until 15 March to submit detailed plans. A special meeting of the SPORTLOT National Panel will then be held on 7 May to consider all the applications. As with all applications for Lottery funding, the Panel will take its decision independently of Government.

Schizophrenia

Sir Alastair Goodlad: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many people with a main diagnosis of schizophrenia psychoses were discharged from mental illness hospitals in Wales in each of the last three years; and how many of them were taken into local authority residential care in the same year. [73361]

Mr. Jon Owen Jones: The following table gives, for NHS trusts in Wales, the number of deaths and discharges relating to patients whose main diagnosis was schizophrenia. The number discharged may include cases of the same patient being discharged more than once for separate periods of care. Reliable estimates of the number discharged to local authority care are not available.

| Year | Number of deaths and discharges |
|---|---|
| 1996 | 1,715 |
| 1997 | 1,815 |
| 1998 | 1,713 |

Following the transfer of functions, this issue will be a matter for the National Assembly.

Sir Alastair Goodlad: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what research projects his Department is funding in the current year to test the effectiveness of community care for people suffering from schizophrenia psychoses; and if he will make a statement. [73366]

Mr. Jon Owen Jones: There are no research projects being funded into schizophrenia in the current year. The Welsh Office is funding a conference on "Effective Interventions in Schizophrenia" on 16 March following a two year research project which started in 1996–97. This project demonstrated clinical effectiveness in Schizophrenia and was undertaken by Llandough Hospital, Cardiff at a cost of £75,000.

Following the transfer of functions, this issue will be a matter for the National Assembly.

Sir Alastair Goodlad: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many of those convicted of crimes in Wales in the last year for which figures are available have ever been admitted to National Health Service mental illness hospitals and units with a main diagnosis of schizophrenia psychoses. [73356]

Mr. Jon Owen Jones: I refer the right hon. Member to the reply given to him on 25 February 1999, Official Report, column 393. My right hon. Friend the Home Secretary has responsibility for this issue.

Zimbabwe

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what official visits he, his Ministers or officials have paid to Zimbabwe since May 1997; whom they met; and what was discussed. [73555]

Mr. Michael: None

National Assembly

Mr. Wigley: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales which company or companies gave his Department professional advice (a) on the use of Crickhowell House as part of the National Assembly project and (b) when Crickhowell House was first let in 1991–92; and if he will make a statement. [73608]

Mr. Michael: Professional advice was given to my Department regarding the use of Crickhowell House as part of the National Assembly for Wales by PACE (Property Advisers to the Civil Estate), Symonds Group, Crown and Company and the Powell Dobson Partnership. An independent review of their work was undertaken by Gooch and Wagstaffe and the AYH Partnership.

Negotiations in 1991–92 for the acquisition of Crickhowell House for the Welsh Health Commons Services Authority were undertaken by Gooch and Wagstaffe and Bevan Ashford.

Mr. Wigley: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will allow representatives of (a) Plaid Cymru, (b) Wales Liberal Democrats and (c) the Conservative Party to view, on a confidential basis, papers relating to (i) funding already allocated by his Department and (ii) contracts signed by his Department, for the period after 1 July relating to spending within the control of the National Assembly for Wales. [74297]

Mr. Michael: I announced on 14 December 1998 my Department's future budgets and expenditure plans, which will be inherited by the Assembly. Further details will be included in the Welsh Office's Departmental Report, which will be published in late March.

I should also be happy for my Department to provide information on public expenditure in Wales in accordance with the Code of Practice on Access to Government Information, in response to any request received.

Autism

Mr. Wigley: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what guidance he has given to local authority social services departments in Wales regarding the criteria to be employed under best value assessments for autism-specific services. [73627]

Mr. Jon Owen Jones: The Local Government Bill, which includes best value provisions, is currently being considered by Parliament. The Bill makes provision for the National Assembly to be responsible for administering best value in Wales. The Bill provides a broad framework for best value and it will be for the Assembly to determine the more detailed aspects of the policy and how it will operate in Wales. The Assembly is likely to want to draw on the experience of all Welsh authorities involved in best value pilot studies. Once the Bill is enacted and the pilot studies have made further progress, the Assembly will wish to consider what guidance to issue to local authorities on best value.

Mr. Wigley: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many autism-specific places are currently provided by social services departments in Wales for individuals with autism-specific disorders within (a) residential services, (b) day services and (c) respite case services. [73628]

Mr. Jon Owen Jones: While information on services for the disabled is collected centrally, this does not include information on the autism-specific places provided by social services departments in Wales.

Following the transfer of functions, this issue will be a matter for the National Assembly.

Employment

Mr. Barry Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what is his latest estimate of (a) new jobs announced and (b) jobs lost in the past 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [74182]

Mr. Hain: Records of individual job losses and gains are not held centrally. However, in the 12 months to September 1998, employee jobs in Wales rose by 15,000.

Following the transfer of functions, this issue will be a matter for the National Assembly

Traffic Congestion (Woodbank Junction)

Mr. Barry Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales when he expects measures to be put in place to alleviate traffic queues at the Woodbank Junction (English Border); and if he will make a statement. [74188]

Mr. Hain: This is a cross border scheme largely (almost entirely) situated in Cheshire. It is intended to relieve severe traffic congestion which occurs at the traffic signal controlled junction, particularly during the morning and evening peaks and at weekends. The scheme is the responsibility of the Department of the Environment, Transport and the Regions (DETR); and it will be for them to carry out the route study proposed in the English roads review. DETR will be making an announcement on the timing of this, and other studies, in due course.

Economy

Mr. Barry Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales when he last met the (1) Wales TUC and (2) Wales CBI to discuss the economy of Wales; and if he will make a statement. [74185]

Mr. Michael: I have met representatives of the CBI and TUC in a variety of settings including discussions about the Assembly. The most recent direct meeting was on 1 February when I met representatives of Wales CBI at a lunch to discuss ways in which the Assembly could carry out its statutory duty to consult business. Both CBI Wales and the Wales TUC are keenly interested on the way the Assembly will promote the economy of Wales and I shall be speaking about this to the annual conference of Wales TUC in April.

Assisted Areas

Mr. Barry Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales when he expects to announce the new boundaries for assisted area status; and if he will make a statement. [74186]

Mr. Hain: The new assisted areas map comes into force on 1 January 2000. The new map must be agreed in time for this deadline. The Commission have asked Member States to submit their proposals by 31 March 1999.

Welsh Arts Council

Mr. Wigley: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales, pursuant to his answer of 10 December 1998, Official Report, column 285, on the Welsh Arts Council, if he will make a statement on his latest plans on this matter; and when he expects to make an announcement on the appointment of a chairman. [74316]

Mr. Michael: I refer the right hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 25 February 1999, Official Report, column 437.

Following the transfer of functions, such appointments will be a matter for the National Assembly in future.

Dental Services

Jackie Ballard: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much was spent on NHS general dental services in Wales, by health authority area, in each year since 1995–96. [74259]

Mr. Jon Owen Jones: Details of expenditure on NHS general dental services in Wales including expenditure by the Dental Practice Board, are in the table.

CABINET OFFICE

Ministerial Flights (Concorde)

Miss Kirkbride: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office on how many occasions (a) ministers and (b) their staff have flown on Concorde since 1 May 1997; and how much the flights have cost. [68851]

Dr. Jack Cunningham: For information on the use of Concorde by Ministers, I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister to the hon. Member for Bognor Regis and Littlehampton (Mr. Gibb) on 1 March 1999, Official Report, column 527. Information on the occasions when civil servants within individual Departments have used Concorde is not held centrally.

Zimbabwe

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office what official visits he, his ministers or officials have paid to Zimbabwe since May 1997; whom they met; and what was discussed. [73459]

Dr. Jack Cunningham: Since 1 May 1997, neither I nor any other Minister in the Cabinet Office has visited Zimbabwe.

Two officials of the Cabinet Office have visited the country in the last 21 months.

The first official visited Zimbabwe between 19 and 30 May 1998 and provided keynote speeches at four conferences on performance management. The conferences were organised by the British Council in partnership with the Zimbabwe Institute of Public Administration and Management (ZIPAM).

The second official visited between 20 and 23 May 1998, and held discussions with Government and non-Government organisations on current events in Zimbabwe and the region.

Single Currency

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office if he will list the subject areas within his Department which have relevance to an information campaign on Britain's membership of a single currency regime. [73750]

Dr. Jack Cunningham: HM Treasury will continue its dialogue with key external bodies to determine what information the public and business would need at each stage of the changeover process. Any information campaign would cover key concerns that the public and business may have. Chapter eight of the Treasury's Outline Changeover Plan provides further information. Copies of the Plan are available in the Libraries of the House.

Lobbyists

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office if he will make a statement on the role of professional lobbyists in formulating policy in his Department. [74368]

Dr. Jack Cunningham: Any contacts with lobbyists by Ministers and civil servants in this Department are conducted in accordance with the "Ministerial Code" and "Guidance for Civil Servants: Contacts with Lobbyists".

Archway Tower, London

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office what has been (a) the total capital expenditure and (b) the income from lettings on Archway Tower, London N19 for (i) each of the last three years and (ii) the current year to date; and if he will make a statement. [74071]

Mr. Kilfoyle: Responsibility for this matter has been delegated under the terms of the Framework Document to the Property Advisers to the Civil Estate. I have asked its Chief Executive, Mr. John Locke, to write to my hon. Friend.

Letter from John Locke to Mr. Jeremy Corbyn, dated March 1999:

The Parliamentary Secretary for the Cabinet Office, Peter Kilfoyle, has asked me as Chief Executive of Property Advisers to the Civil Estate (PACE) to respond to your Parliamentary Question about capital expenditure and income from lettings on Archway Tower.

I believe you are already aware that Archway Tower forms part of the portfolio of vacant office buildings declared surplus by Other Government Departments and inherited by PACE on 1 April 1996.

The state of repair of Archway Tower was in breach of the terms of the lease and left the building incapable of occupation. Following abortive surrender negotiations with the landlords, and in an effort to defray the costs of holding Archway Tower, a decision was taken in March 1998 to refurbish the building and bring it into a usable condition.

Archway Tower has remain vacant since April 1995 and there have been no lettings since that date due to the condition of the building. Similarly, during the last 7 months of refurbishment work the building has been unoccupiable.

Capital expenditure and income from lettings from when PACE assumed responsibility for Archway Tower is as follows:

£ million

| Date | Capital expenditure | Income |
|---|---|---|
| 1 April 1996–31 March 1997 | nil | nil |
| 1 April 1997–31 March 1998 | nil | nil |
| 1 April 1998-to date | 3.498 | nil |

Refurbishment work is expected to be complete by April 1999 and the Agency hopes to have tenants in place later in the year. With the likelihood of the grant of a rent free period to offset the fit out costs of a future occupier, I do not envisage any income from letting during the 1999–2000 Financial Year.

Task Forces

Dr. Tony Wright: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office if he will publish a list of (1) task forces and (2) policy reviews established by his Department since May 1997 which (a) had external members recruited by way of public advertisement, and details of any person so appointed and (b) engaged in public consultation exercises, and the form that these took. [74469]

Mr. Kilfoyle: Most task forces and reviews are short-term bodies established to give thorough consideration to important and difficult issues. External members are invited to sit on some reviews and task forces because they are able to contribute specific experience and expertise. In such cases, public advertising would often be inappropriate and disproportionate.

Since 1 October 1998, appointments to those task forces which qualify for classification as advisory non-departmental public bodies have come within the remit of the Commissioner for Public Appointments.

Of those established by my Department since 1 May 1997, the Better Regulation Task Force, has external members recruited by way of public advertisement. Members of this task force are unpaid and receive expenses only. The details of the persons appointed are as follows:

Matti Alderson (Director General, Advertising Standards Authority)

Deirdre Hutton (Chair of the Scottish Consumer Council).

Public consultation exercises have been conducted by the following task forces and policy reviews:

| Review | |
|---|---|
| Review of Quangos | A consultation paper was published and the Government consulted widely on the proposals contained in that paper (for making 'quangos' more open, accountable and effective). Copies of the consultation paper were sent to all MPs, all local authorities and all 'quangos'—as well as to key academics and interested members of the public. The consultation paper was also published on the Internet and Internet users were able to e-mail comments direct to the review team. Responses to the consultation paper were published and copies placed in the Libraries of the House. |
| Review of Existing Drugs Strategy | Consultation was held with a wide range of key professionals, organisations and key population groups—eg Drug Action Teams, young people, teachers, parents, drug mis-users, via meetings, visits and conferences, correspondence and an Internet e-mail address. The strategy document was published as a White Paper "Tackling Drugs to build a Better Britain" (Cm 3945) on 27 April 1998. |
| Review of the Women's National Commission | Consultation was held with women's organisations through correspondence and meetings. Copies of the Review's Report were placed in the Libraries of the House. |
| Review of the Charter Programme | A consultation paper was issued on 16 September 1997 to wide range of organisations and individuals—also made available on the Internet. Responses to the consultation paper were published and copies placed in the Libraries of the House. |
| The Review of Export Promotions | Extensive consultation was held with members of the export community. Written and oral submissions were taken; meetings were held with individuals and groups. |

HEALTH

Gamma Hydroxy Butyrate

Ms Kelly: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what regulations apply to the (a) use, (b) possession, (c) production and (d) supply of gamma hydroxy butyrate. [72901]

Ms Jowell: Gamma Hydroxy Butyrate is a medicinal product by virtue of Article 1 of European Commission Directive 65/65. Activities with this product carried on in the course of a business are regulated by the Medicines Act 1968 (as amended).

It is a criminal offence to place on the market, produce, sell or supply this product other than in accordance with licences or registration required by this Act. Possession for personal use is not regulated by medicines legislation.

Electro-convulsive-therapy Treatment

Mr. David Atkinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on the use of electro-convulsive-therapy treatment for mental health patients. [73003]

Mr. Hutton: Electro-convulsive therapy (ECT) can be used for a variety of conditions, including depression, mania and certain forms of schizophrenia. It has been shown to be of most benefit where other treatments have failed.

An expert group, chaired by Genevra Richardson, Professor of Law at Queen Mary and Westfield College, has been appointed to undertake a review of mental health legislation in England and Wales and to make recommendations on the scope of a new legislative framework by 1 July 1999. The group's report will include advice on appropriate safeguards which should apply to the use of Electro-Convulsive Therapy.

Mental Health Beds

Sir Alastair Goodlad: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which health regions plan to increase the number of mental health beds; and by how many. [73225]

Mr. Hutton: The Mental Health Modernisation Fund will be used to increase the number of mental health beds in all eight health regions. £19 million has already been allocated to health authorities, part of which is being used to increase the number of 24 hour staffed beds. In addition health authorities have just been invited to apply for additional resources for secure beds. Details are set out in circular Health Service Circular/Local Authority Circular 1999–038, copies of which are available in the Library.

It is not yet possible to provide a regional breakdown.

Single Currency

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to issue information from his Department to help the public make an informed decision when they vote on the single currency. [73587]

Ms Jowell: Any plans by the Government to issue information during a referendum campaign on whether or not the United Kingdom should join the single currency would be made in light of the Government's response to the recommendations from the Neill Committee on the conduct of referendums. The Government will announce their conclusions on those recommendations when my right hon. Friend the Home Secretary publishes a White Paper and draft Bill before the summer recess.

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will list the subject areas within his Department's responsibilities which will be covered by the information campaign on Britain's membership of a single currency. [73669]

Ms Jowell: Her Majesty's Treasury will continue its dialogue with key external bodies to determine what information the public and business would need at each stage of the changeover process. Any information campaign would cover key concerns that the public and business may have. Chapter 8 of the Treasury's Outline National Changeover Plan provides further information. Copies of the plan are available in the Library.

Medicines (Classification)

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what appeal mechanism he will establish in respect of decisions by the Medicines Control Agency to classify foodstuffs as medicines. [73314]

Ms Jowell: We do not propose to give the Medicines Control Agency (MCA) the power to decide that a foodstuff is a medicine. The MCA has consulted on legislative proposals for classifying medicinal products, which include introducing a statutory right to a formal review of the agency's provisional decisions. The agency is now considering responses to the consultation exercise. We will decide in due course whether and what review arrangements we wish to put before Parliament.

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) if health foods and dietary supplements will have to satisfy the same licensing criteria as medicines when the remit of the Medicines Control Agency is extended; [73319]

(2) what limitations he plans to place on the Medicine Control Agency's proposed new power to declare any food product to be a medicine. [73313]

Ms Jowell: The powers of the licensing authority, of which the Medicines Control Agency (MCA) is an executive arm, are set out in the Medicines Act 1968 and secondary legislation including the Medicines for Human Use (Marketing Authorisations Etc.) Regulations 1994. We have no proposals to extend the remit of the MCA to health foods and dietary supplements, which will continue to be subject to food law.

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the number of health food products which could be reclassified as medicines. [73312]

Ms Jowell: We can make no such estimate since under European Commission law and United Kingdom law, health foods are not medicines.

Chronic Pain Management

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if it is his policy to establish chronic pain management programmes in the NHS on the model of that at St. Thomas' Hospital in London. [73949]

Mr. Hutton: Research has shown pain management programmes, similar to the model at St. Thomas' Hospital, to be effective for selected patients whose chronic pain is not relieved by conventional treatments. Against that background, it is for health authorities and National Health Service trusts to plan local pain services, in consultation with health professionals, to meet local needs.

National Institute for Clinical Excellence

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what are the terms of reference of the National Institute for Clinical Excellence. [73957]

Mr. Hutton: The National Institute for Clinical Excellence will be not be operational until April this year, the officers and non-officer members have yet to be appointed and the terms of reference will be a matter for the Board of NICE to discuss at its first meetings.

A discussion paper, Faster access to modern treatment, sets out its detailed proposals for how the National Institute for Clinical Excellence will carry out appraisals of clinical and cost effectiveness of individual health treatments. No firm decisions have been taken either on the topics to be referred to NICE, or on the precise methods of appraisal to be used.

Schizophrenia

Sir Alastair Goodlad: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many patients with a primary diagnosis of schizophrenia psychoses were discharged from mental illness hospitals in each health district in the last year; and how many were admitted for a hospital stay more than once during the year; [74389]

(2) how many people discharged from mental illness hospitals in each health district in England in the last year after a main diagnosis of schizophrenia psychoses, having been proved vulnerable homeless subsequently became voluntary homeless. [74275]

Mr. Hutton: The table shows the estimated number of discharges in England in 1997–98 after a main diagnosis of schizophrenia psychoses.

Information on the number of patients admitted more than once during the year and on vulnerable homeless subsequently becoming voluntary homeless is not available centrally.

NHS Translators

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what is the (a) average salary and (b) hourly rate for a translator employed by the NHS. [74170]

Ms Jowell: The information requested is not available centrally. National Health Service trusts have the power to set terms and conditions for all their staff, including translators.

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what was the cost to the NHS in the latest year for which figures are available of providing (a) translators and (b) translation services for public information. [74169]

Ms Jowell: The information requested is not available centrally. The decisions and working arrangements for translators and translation services are made at local level. The responsibility for employing translators, interpreters, linkworkers and advocates lies with health authorities and National Health Service trusts.

Dentists

Dr. Harris: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of dental contract holders had an NHS list which (i) increased and (ii) decreased between March 1997 and March 1998 in each health authority area and in total in England. [74004]

Mr. Denham [holding answer 3 March 1999]: The percentage of dental contract holders for each health authority having a National Health Service list which increased or decreased between March 1997 and March 1998 is shown in the table.

Notes:

1. Comparisons between March 1997 and March 1998 are affected by the reduction in the registration period to 15 months.

2. Comparisons are for dentists with contracts at 31 March 1997 and 31 March 1998 and excludes dentists with no registrations on both dates.

3. Dentists with contracts in several HAs are counted in each HA in which they have a contract but only once in the England total.

4. The percentage increases and decreases may not equal a 100 per cent. because some dentists will have an unchanged list size.

Dr. Harris: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what was the total revenue raised from patient charges in the salaried dentist scheme in (i) 1995 to 1996, (ii) 1996 to 1997 and (iii) 1997 to 1998; [74002]

(2) what was the total spend on salaried dentists in England by health authority in (i) 1995 to 1996, (ii) 1996 to 1997 and (iii) 1997 to 1998; [74001]

(3) how many (i) adults and (ii) children are registered with salaried dentists in each health authority; and how many salaried dentists there were in each health authority in (a) March 1996, (b) March 1997 and (c) March 1998. [74003]

Mr. Denham [holding answer 3 March 1999]: The information requested has been placed in the Library.

Dissolved NHS Trusts

Mrs. Humble: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what financial arrangements are being made in respect of the 37 NHS trusts dissolved on 1 April 1998. [75335]

Mr. Denham: Pursuant to the dissolution of thirty-seven National Health Service trusts on 1 April 1998, and their reconfiguration through the establishment of eighteen new trusts on that date, we propose to create originating debt for the new trusts equal to the net assets transferred to them and therefore to remit the outstanding debt of the dissolved trusts.

These operations involve no overall loss to the Exchequer. Her Majesty's Treasury has presented a minute to the House, on 2 March 1999, giving the particulars and circumstances of the proposed remission which it has approved in principle.

Lobbyists

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on the role of professional lobbyists in formulating policy in his Department. [74356]

Ms Jowell: Any contacts with lobbyists by Ministers and civil servants in this Department are conducted in accordance with the "Ministerial Code" and "Guidance for Civil Servants: Contact with Lobbyists".

National Radiological Protection Board

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will establish the funding made available to the National Radiological Protection Board from (a) his Department, (b) other Government departments and (c) the telecommunications industry in each of the last three years; and if he will make a statement. [74710]

Ms Jowell: The information requested is in the table.

| | 1997–98 | 1996–97 | 1995–96 |
|---|---|---|---|
| Department of Health (Revenue grant) | 5,783 | 5,893 | 5,859 |
| Department of Health (Capital grant) | 520 | 520 | 1,249 |
| Other Government Departments | 2,070 | 2,060 | 2,140 |
| Telecommunications industry | less than 20 | less than 20 | less than 20 |

AGRICULTURE, FISHERIES AND FOOD

Public Bodies

Dr. Tony Wright: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food which of the executive non-departmental public bodies sponsored by his Department have a statutory base; and which are subject to investigation by the Parliamentary Commissioner. [69889]

Mr. Morley: The following executive non-departmental public bodies sponsored by my Department have a statutory basis:

Agricultural Wages Board for England and Wales
Agricultural Wages Committees
Apple and Pear Research Council
British Potato Council
Food from Britain Council
Home Grown Cereals Authority
Horticultural Development Council
Meat and Livestock Commission
Milk Development Council
Regional Flood Defence Committees
Royal Botanic Gardens Kew
Sea Fish Industry Authority.

Agricultural Wages Committees already come within the jurisdiction of the Parliamentary Commissioner. The following are due to be covered shortly by means of an Order in Council:

Apple and Pear Research Council
British Potato Council
Food from Britain Council
Home Grown Cereals Authority
Horticultural Development Council
Meat and Livestock Commission
Milk Development Council
Royal Botanic Gardens Kew
Sea Fish Industry Authority
United Kingdom Register of Organic Food Standards
Wine Standards Board of the Vintners' Company.

Regional Flood Defence Committees come within the jurisdiction of the Local Government Ombudsman.

Dr. Tony Wright: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food which of the executive non-departmental public bodies sponsored by his Department publish (a) the minutes of meetings, (b) the agendas of meetings and documents for those meetings and (c) a register of members' interests; and if in each case this is under a statutory requirement. [69953]

Mr. Morley: In answer to (a) and (b) there is no statutory requirement for any of my Department's Executive non-departmental public bodies to publish minutes, agendas or documents of their meetings. The following make minutes of meetings available on request:

Agricultural Wages Board
Agricultural Wages Committees (if no specific case is mentioned)
Food from Britain
United Kingdom Register of Organic Food Standards

The British Potato Council circulates the minutes of its meetings to interested organisations.

(c) In line with the commitment given in "Quangos: Opening the Doors", all of my Department's executive non-departmental bodies either have, or shortly will have, a register of interest in place.

Dr. Tony Wright: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food which of the executive non-departmental public bodies sponsored by his Department (a) admit members of the public to all board or committee meetings, (b) hold public meetings, (c) have lay or consumer representatives on their boards and (d) operate some form of appeal or complaints procedure; and if in each case this is under a statutory requirement. [69981]

Mr. Morley: There is no statutory requirement for any of the executive non-departmental public bodies to (a) admit members of the public to all board and committee meetings (b) hold public meetings or (d) operate a form of complaints procedure.

(a) The British Potato Council invites the NFU and other bodies to committee meetings.

Some meetings of Regional Flood Defence Committees are open to the public.

The Horticultural Development Council admits the public to its AGM.

(b) The following hold public meetings:

British Potato Council

Horticultural Development Council

Meat and Livestock Commission

Milk Development Council

Sea Fish Industry Authority

Regional Flood Defence Committees

Horticulture Research International holds numerous open days and offer numerous events and activities.

(c) There is a statutory requirement to have lay or consumer representation on:

Apple and Pear Research Council

British Potato Council

Horticultural Development Council

Meat and Livestock Commission

Milk Development Council

Sea Fish Industry Authority

(d) The following operate a complaints procedure:

Apple and Pear Research Council

Food from Britain Council

Home Grown Cereals Authority

Horticultural Development Council

Meat and Livestock Commission

Milk Development Council

Royal Botanic Gardens, Kew

Sea Fish Industry Authority.

Dr. Tony Wright: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food which of the advisory non-departmental public bodies sponsored by his Department publish (a) the minutes of meetings, (b) the agendas of meetings and documents for those meetings and (c) a register of members' interests; and whether in each case this is under a statutory requirement. [69840]

Mr. Morley: In answer to (a) and (b) there is no statutory requirement for any of my Department's Advisory non-departmental public bodies to publish minutes, agendas or documents of their meetings. The following make minutes of meetings available on request:

Advisory Committee on Novel Foods and Processes

Farm Animal Welfare Council

Food Advisory Committee

Consumer Panel

Spongiform Encephalopathy Advisory Committee;

publish summaries of their discussions and hold press briefings after committee meetings;

Veterinary Products Committee;

issues a summary of discussions as a press release.

(c) In line with the commitment given in "Quangos: Opening the Doors", all of my Department's advisory non-departmental bodies either have, or shortly will have, a register of interests in place.

Dr. Tony Wright: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food which of the advisory non-departmental public bodies sponsored by his Department (a) admit members of the public to all board or committee meetings, (b) hold public meetings and (c) have lay or consumer representatives on their boards; and if in each case this is under a statutory requirement. [69964]

Mr. Morley: There is no statutory requirement for any of my Department's advisory non-departmental public bodies to admit members of the public to all board or committee meetings or to hold public meetings. The Advisory Committee on Novel Foods and Processes and the Food Advisory Committee have done both on occasions. The Veterinary Products Committee has held one public meeting. The Consumer Panel and the Farm Animal Welfare Council will both be holding an open meeting in 1999.

The following advisory non-departmental public bodies have lay or consumer representatives on their boards:

Advisory Committee on Novel Foods and Processes

Advisory Committee on Pesticides

Consumer Panel

Consumers Committee for Great Britain

Food Advisory Committee

Spongiform Encephalopathy Advisory Committee

Veterinary Products Committee.

This is not a statutory requirement.

Agriculture Council

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will list the issues for discussion before the Agriculture Council on 22 and 23 February, indicating the position he proposes to take on each issue. [72747]

Mr. Nick Brown [holding answer 24 February 1999]: Every six months, at the beginning of an EU Presidency, the Minister of State, Foreign and Commonwealth Office, my right hon. Friend and the Member for Gateshead, East and Washington, West (Ms Quin) outlines to the House meetings expected during the Presidency. Every month, she gives the House details of the items expected at meetings of the Council of Ministers during the month.

After each meeting of the Agriculture Council, I report back to the European Scrutiny Committee on the business conducted at the Agriculture Council meeting. The Government have recently extended arrangements for scrutinising Council business to include the Second and Third Pillars of the Treaty on European Union, as well as the First Pillar. The Government will continue to promote the interests of the United Kingdom at all meetings of the Council of Ministers. However, it has not been the practice of successive Administrations to indicate the position that Ministers propose to take in advance of Council.

Quarantine

Mr. Fearn: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what representations his Department has received from current providers of quarantine facilities in the recent consultation exercise on quarantine reform. [70602]

Mr. Rooker: During the consultation exercise representations were received from the following providers of quarantine facilities:

Aquithie Boarding and Quarantine Kennels and Cattery

Dover and Folkestone Quarantine Kennels

Firs International Quarantine

Foredown Kennels and Cattery

Four in Hand Kennels

Galley Hill International Kennels and Cattery

Knightwood Kennels

Moonwinds Quarantine and Boarding Kennels and Cattery

Oakenshaw Grange

Par Air (Livestock) Ltd.

St. Andrews Farm Kennels.

Responses were also received from the Quarantine Association and Quarantine Kennels Owners Association U.K.

The main view expressed in these representations was that the Government should provide compensation to quarantine kennels owners if the present arrangements are changed; some suggested that the quarantine period should be reduced rather than dispensed with altogether.

Mr. Wood: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food which organisations were contacted during the consultation process on changes to the quarantine regulations. [73470]

Mr. Rooker: A list has been placed in the Library of the organisations that were sent a consultation letter which was issued by this Department on 23 September 1998. Separate consultations were held by the Secretary of State for Scotland and the Secretary of State for Wales.

Bonemeal

Mr. Gill: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what progress he has made in authorising the production of saleable meat and bonemeal from rendering plants specifically dedicated to the by-product of pig abattoirs. [R] [73794]

Mr. Rooker: The commercial market for meat and bone meal (MBM) has traditionally depended on its use in animal feed and in fertiliser. Because of the risk of transmission of BSE, the use of MBM in farm animal feed and agricultural fertiliser is currently prohibited.

The Government will only consider relaxation of the rules prohibiting the inclusion of animal proteins in feedingstuffs and fertilisers, which are intended to prevent the transmission of BSE to cattle either directly or through cross examination, if SEAC advise that it is safe to do so. We would also wish to consult the EU Commission on any proposal to change the rules.

The Meat and Livestock Commission (MLC) is currently producing an industry strategy paper for adding value to animal by-products, which includes restoration of the value of meat and bone meal from the rendering of porcine waste in dedicated plants through the incorporation of this material in poultry feed. Experience has shown that the effective enforcement of such selective controls is extremely difficult, and failure could prejudice the progress made so far in eradicating BSE and in restoring export markets. We are currently discussing with the MLC whether their paper should go to SEAC or whether further work should be done first to address the need for safeguards to avoid contamination of farm animal feed not intended for poultry.

Farmers' Corporation Tax

Mr. Gill: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what discussions he has had with Treasury Ministers about prohibiting putting farmers' corporation tax on the same basis as farmers' income tax in terms of offsetting trading losses against future profit; and what was the outcome of those discussions. [R] [73798]

Mr. Rooker: I have had no discussion with Treasury Ministers on this matter. While taxation is a matter for my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Exchequer, I understand that trading losses, including trading losses of farmers, can already be carried forward against future profits from that trade for Corporation Tax just as they can be for Income Tax.

Live Animal Exports

Mr. Prosser: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what proportion of the consignments of live sheep that pass through lairages in the Dover region prior to export are inspected by his veterinary officials to ensure that they are being transported in compliance with the Welfare of Animals (Transport) Order 1997; what steps his veterinary officials take to ensure that sheep which pass through lairages in the Dover region prior to export are given the rest periods required by the 1997 Order; what proportion of loadings prior to export of live sheep at lairages in the Dover region are inspected by his veterinary officials; and if he will make a statement. [74321]

Mr. Morley: The level of targeted spot checks carried out at the Dover lairages depends on the resources available, but at present the aim is to check one of the four lairages on each sailing day. Additionally, Local Authority enforcement officers carry out random checks of vehicles en route, and of lairages. This supplements the arrangements under which all animals exported for further fattening or slaughter are checked at Dover port.

Bovine TB

Mr. Drew: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what measures the Government have evaluated to deal with the problem of the spread of bovine TB outside those areas which are subject to the randomised badger cull. [73218]

Mr. Rooker [holding answer 2 March 1999]: Tuberculosis in cattle is a serious and multi-faceted problem in this country, and we consider that the only way to develop a sustainable control policy in the long term is to implement the wide ranging five point strategy, involving research and control, which I announced last August. That strategy reflects our evaluation of the Krebs Report, and of the ideas contained in several hundred letters commenting on it.

We are willing to consider additional action which could usefully complement existing measures. Among the ideas being considered at present are more rapid responses to TB incidents, more comprehensive local testing, local badger culling outside the trial areas, and better advice to farmers on protecting the health status of cattle herds. We have not yet come to any conclusions. We are keeping an open mind while we discuss matters with interested parties. We will give serious consideration to any proposal which might help towards a solution.

Transmissible Spongiform Encephalopathy

Dr. David Clark: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food how many confirmed transmissible spongiform encephalopathy cases there were by species in animals other than cattle in Great Britain at the latest available date. [73410]

Mr. Rooker: Scrapie, one of the family of transmissible spongiform encephalopathies, has been present in sheep for over 250 years. This disease has been notifiable since 1 January 1993 in response to the EC Directive governing trade in sheep and goats (91/68/EEC). The numbers of cases of scrapie in sheep and goats confirmed in Great Britain from 1 January 1993 to 1 March 1999 are as follows:

| | Number of cases |
|---|---|
| Sheep | 2,281 |
| Goats | 8 |
| Total | 2,289 |

As regards other spongiform encephalopathies, the following table gives the number of cases confirmed in exotic animals and felines in Great Britain since 1986:

| Species | Number of cases |
|---|---|
| Ankole cow | 2 |
| Bison | 1 |
| Cheetah | 5 |
| Domestic cat | 85 |
| Eland | 6 |
| Gemsbok | 1 |
| Kudu | 6 |
| Nyala | 1 |
| Ocelot | 2 |
| Oryx (Arabian) | 1 |
| Oryx (scimitar horned) | 1 |
| Puma | 3 |
| Tiger | 2 |
| Lion | 1 |

ATTORNEY-GENERAL

Chief Crown Prosecutor

Mr. Burnett: To ask the Attorney-General if he will list the full range of salaries, other payments and benefits to be paid to or provided for Chief Crown Prosecutors. [74123]

The Attorney-General: The table lists the areas in which positions of Chief Crown Prosecutor are available together with the salary range into which each position is categorised. In addition, all permanent appointments are pensionable from the outset under the Principal Civil Service Pension Scheme.

| Area | Salary Range |
|---|---|
| London | £54,230—£90,400 |
| Greater ManchesterWest MidlandsWest Yorkshire | £49,130—£80,400 |
| HampshireLancashireMerseysideNorthumbriaSouth Wales | £44,560—£71,470 |
| Avon & SomersetCheshireClevelandDerbyshireDevon & CornwallEssexHumbersideKentLeicestershireNottinghamshireSouth YorkshireStaffordshireSussexThames ValleyWest Mercia | £40,430—£63,490 |
| BedfordshireCambridgeshireCumbriaDorsetDurhamDyfed-PowysGloucestershireGwentHertfordshireLincolnshireNorfolkNorthamptonshireNorth WalesNorth YorkshireSuffolkSurreyWiltshireWarwickshire | £33,456—£54,323 |

Mr. Burnett: To ask the Attorney-General how many applicants there have been for the posts of Chief Crown Prosecutor; and how many such applicants have come from (a) the Crown Prosecution Service, (b) solicitors in private practice and (c) barristers in private practice. [74122]

The Attorney-General: The total number of applicants for the posts of Chief Crown Prosecutor was 209, of which:

(a) 148 were from the Crown Prosecution Service;

(b) 22 applicants were from solicitors in private practice;

(c) 13 applicants were from barristers in private practice.

The remaining 26 applicants came from a variety of sources not included in the categories above.

Lobbyists

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Attorney-General if he will make a statement on the role of professional lobbyists in formulating policy in his Department. [74360]

The Attorney-General: Any contacts with lobbyists by Ministers and civil servants in this Department are conducted in accordance with the "Ministerial Code" and "Guidance for Civil Servants: Contact with Lobbyists".

Director of Public Prosecutions

Mr. Burnett: To ask the Attorney-General if he will list all salary and other payments and all benefits paid to and provided for the Director of Public Prosecutions in (a) 1994–95, (b) 1995–96, (c) 1996–97, (d) 1997–98 and (e) estimated for 1998–99. [74125]

The Attorney-General: The post of Director of Public Prosecutions attracts a salary which equates to that of a High Court Judge and is reviewed annually following recommendations by the Senior Salaries Review Body (SSRB). The salaries of High Court Judges are published in the SSRB's annual reports.

From 21 April 1992 to 31 October 1998, the post of Director of Public Prosecutions was held by Dame Barbara Mills QC. Her appointment was pensionable from the outset under the Principal Civil Service Pension Scheme (PCSPS). In addition, Dame Barbara was pensionable under a Supplementary Scheme, with benefits accruing at the same rate as under the PCSPS, in respect of that part of her pay exceeding the Inland Revenue earnings cap limits which are applied to the PCSPS.

In departing from the post on 31 October 1998, she received a severance payment under the terms of the Civil Service Compensation Scheme.

Mr. David Calvert-Smith QC was appointed Director of Public Prosecutions on 1 November 1998, with a starting salary, again equating to that of a High Court Judge, of £116,045 which rose to £117,752 on 1 December 1998. His appointment is pensionable under the PCSPS and the Civil Service Supplementary (Earnings Cap) Scheme. Pension and lump sum benefits will be provided through these schemes which have a value corresponding to those available to a High Court Judge under the Judicial Pension Scheme.

In addition to salary and pension benefits, an official car and chauffeur are made available to the Director of Public Prosecutions.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Juvenile Secure Accommodation

Caroline Flint: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans he has for taking forward the reform of juvenile secure accommodation. [75662]

Mr. Straw: I will be announcing on Monday how we intend to take forward our programme of reform for juvenile secure accommodation.

Special Branch

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if the Special Branch is empowered to disconnect telephone lines connected to organisations for the purpose of preventing possible subversion; whether explicit authorisation is required from him for such action; and if he will make a statement. [74855]

Mr. Straw: Special Branches are not empowered to disconnect telephone lines. The remit under which all Special Branches in England and Wales, as well as Scotland, operate is described in the Guidelines on Special Branch Work in Great Britain (published jointly by the Home Office and Scottish Office Home & Health Department, July 1994).

Mr. Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if the remit of the Special Branch extends to monitoring pressure groups involved in campaigns against genetically modified food. [74856]

Mr. Straw: Pressure groups operating within the law are not the subject of monitoring by Special Branch or by any other law enforcement agencies. Special Branch may undertake inquiries either to meet the local policing needs in their force area or to assist the Security Service in carrying out its statutory duty under the Security Service Act 1989 for the protection of national security.

The remit under which all Special Branches in England and Wales, as well as Scotland, operate is described in the Guidelines on Special Branch Work in Great Britain (published jointly by the Home Office and Scottish Office Home & Health Department, July 1994).

Stephen Lawrence Inquiry Report

Sir Norman Fowler: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what action he has taken to protect witnesses mistakenly identified in the volume of appendices to the Stephen Lawrence Inquiry report which has now been withdrawn; and if he will make a statement. [75001]

Mr. Straw: Witness protection in London is the responsibility of the Metropolitan Police. The Metropolitan Police assessed urgently the risks posed to the safety of individuals as a result of the publication of an unredacted version of Appendix 11 in the Stephen Lawrence report. The Metropolitan Police have put in place appropriate protection measures for those concerned. There has been a Home Office liaison officer on duty 24 hours a day since 26 February working with the police in Eltham to ensure that all individuals affected receive the protection that they need.

Sir Norman Fowler: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if police assistance will be available to the leak inquiry ordered by his Permanent Secretary into the unauthorised publication of extracts from the Stephen Lawrence Inquiry report; and if he will make a statement. [75000]

Mr. Straw: It is for the independent investigator to determine what assistance may be required.

Sir Norman Fowler: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what was the cost of withdrawing and reissuing the volume of appendices of the Stephen Lawrence Inquiry report; and if he will make a statement. [74999]

Mr. Straw: The figures requested are not yet available. I will write to the right hon. Member in due course.

Prisoners (Compassionate Leave)

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department under what circumstances people who are held in prison without bail and awaiting trial are allowed temporarily to leave the prison on compassionate grounds; whose responsibility it is to grant such leave; and if he will make a statement. [74997]

Mr. George Howarth: Under Rule 6 paragraph 8 of the Prison Rules 1964 (as amended), prisoners committed or remanded in custody for trial are not eligible to be considered by prison governors for temporary release.

Prisoners are remanded to prison by the court under the specific provisions of the Bail Act 1976. It is, therefore, for the court to consider any fresh information that may lead to temporary release on compassionate grounds when a new application for bail is submitted.

Police Manpower (Greater Manchester)

Mr. Woolas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what allowance for extra police officers he made in the Greater Manchester Police Force financial settlement for 1999–2000. [74826]

Mr. Boateng: Greater Manchester Police will receive a funding increase of 3.0 per cent. in 1999–2000, which is above the national average. Following the funding settlement announced last month on 3 February 1999, Official Report, columns 618–19, I understand that the Greater Manchester Police Authority have agreed a budget of £382.5 million for 1999–2000, an increase of £11.8 million or 3.2 per cent. over 1998–99. It is for the chief constable to determine the numbers of officers in the force on the basis of the resources available to him.

Police Scientific Development Branch

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department in what form the Police Scientific Development Branch produces an annual report outlining its activities; and if this report is available to members of the public. [74252]

Mr. Boateng: The Police Scientific Development Branch no longer produces a separate annual report. However, the Branch's work is described in the Home Office Annual Report, and it also publishes technical reports on a number of its projects.

Single Currency Referendum

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans he has to issue information from his Department to help the public make an informed decision when they vote on the single currency. [73590]

Mr. Straw: Any plans by the Government to issue information during a referendum campaign on whether or not the United Kingdom should join the single currency would be made in light of the Government's response to the recommendations from the Neill Committee on the conduct of referendums and Parliament's approval thereto. The Government will announce their conclusions on those recommendations when I publish a draft Bill before the summer recess.

LORD CHANCELLOR'S DEPARTMENT

Task Force

Dr. Tony Wright: To ask the Minister of State, Lord Chancellor's Department if he will publish a list of (1) task forces and (2) policy reviews established by his Department since May 1997 which (a) had external members recruited by way of public advertisement, and details of any person so appointed and (b) engaged in public consultation exercises, and the form that these took. [74455]

Mr. Hoon: Most task forces and reviews are short-term bodies established to give thorough consideration to important and difficult issues. External members are invited to sit on some reviews and task forces because they are able to contribute specific experience and expertise. In such cases, public advertising would be inappropriate and disproportionate. Of the task forces and reviews set up by my Department, none of them recruited external members by way of public advertising.

On 25 March 1998, the Lord Chancellor announced a Review of Enforcement of Civil Court Judgments. The Review involves external members but they were not recruited by way of public advertisement. An initial public consultation paper was issued in June 1998 to a wide range of organisations with an interest in enforcement.

Since 1 October 1998, appointments to those task forces which qualify for classification as advisory non-departmental public bodies have come within the remit of the Commissioner for Public Appointments.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL

Task Forces

Dr. Tony Wright: To ask the Attorney-General if he will publish a list of (1) task forces and (2) policy reviews established by his Department since May 1997 which (a) had external members recruited by way of public advertisement, and details of any person so appointed and (b) engaged in public consultation exercises, and the form that these took. [74470]

The Attorney-General: On 12 June 1997, I established the review of the Crown Prosecution Service under the chairmanship of the right hon. Sir Iain Glidewell, a retired Lord Justice of Appeal. He was assisted by Sir Geoffrey Dear (a retired HM Inspector of Constabulary) and Mr. Robert McFarland (a retired Chief Executive of a multi-national company). Their Report was published on 1 June 1998.

None of those individuals was recruited by way of public advertisement. The Review Team was a short-term body established to give thorough consideration to an important and difficult issue. Sir Iain Glidewell was invited to chair the Review because of his judicial experience and the two additional members of the team were selected because of their ability to contribute specific experience and expertise. Public advertising would have been inappropriate and disappropriate. It would have also delayed establishment of the Review.

In February 1998, I established a Working Party to review the system of appointing Counsel to act for the Crown in civil cases and to monitor the use of advocates appointed to act. The Working Party was chaired by the then Solicitor-General (Lord Falconer QC) and included representatives from the Bar Council (Laura Cox QC and Lincoln Crawford), the two First Treasury Counsel (Philip Sales and Jonathan Crow) and officials from the Government Legal Service. I announced that I had accepted their recommendations on 30 July 1998.

None of those individuals was recruited by way of public advertisement. The working party was a short-term body established to give thorough consideration to an important issue. The four external members were invited to sit on the working party because they were able to contribute specific experience and expertise. Public advertising would have been appropriate and disproportionate. A draft of the working party's report was sent to organisations with a specific interest in the subject, inviting their comments. The bodies consulted were the Bar Council, the Law Society, the Institute of Barristers' Clerks, the Association of Women Barristers, the Society for Black Lawyers, the Equal Opportunities Commission and the Commission for Racial Equality.

DEFENCE

Efficiency Savings

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list the key milestones and their planned date for (a) his Department's and (b) his private office's 3 per cent. efficiency savings. [74650]

Mr. George Robertson [holding answer 4 March 1999]: My Department's efficiency target is to achieve annual efficiency improvements of 3 per cent. (as a percentage of its operating costs efficiency baseline) each year from 1999–2000 to 2001–02. This target has not been applied uniformly across the Department, but has been disaggregated according to the scope to achieve efficiency in different budget areas. Progress in achieving this target is monitored by a steering group chaired by my hon. Friend the Minister for the Armed Forces.

Budget holders are required to identify the value and means of achievement of efficiency as part of my Department's annual planning processes. Total efficiency achieved will therefore be the sum of many hundreds of individual measures across the Department. Examples of some of the initiatives that will contribute towards the achievement of the Department's efficiency target were set out in section 4 of the Ministry of Defence's Public Service Agreement, published by HM Treasury in December 1998, a copy of which has been placed in the Library of the House. Draft plans at present indicate the potential to achieve efficiency improvements valued at some £530 million in 1999–2000. The realism of these plans, and the level of cash savings they eventually produce, remains under scrutiny.

Smart Procurement

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, pursuant to his answer to the Under-Secretary of State for Social Security, the hon. Member for Liverpool, Garston (Maria Eagle), of 22 February 1999, Official Report, column 28, on smart procurement, when the full transition plan will be completed; and if he will place a copy in the Library. [74823]

Mr. Spellar: The Smart Procurement Initiative Implementation Team has recently delivered a report on its activities since September 1998 to the Steering Group chaired by myself. This includes a draft plan for the transition year, the very detailed and evolutionary nature of which does not lend itself to open publication. Over the coming weeks, I anticipate being able to announce achievements in the implementation of SDR measures, including the Smart Procurement Initiative. A summary of the Smart Procurement transition plan will be prepared and placed in the Library at that stage.

HEALTH

Nurses and Ancillaries (Injuries)

Mr. Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what advice is given by his Department to trusts about their liability for injury to nurses and ancillaries arising from them lifting or moving patients; [73708]

(2) what advice is given to nurses and ancillaries in (a) hospitals and (b) domiciliary situations about the methods and extent to which they are authorised to lift or move patients; and if he will make a statement; [73707]

(3) if all trusts employing nurses and ancillary staff are required to insure them against injury arising from the lifting or moving of patients. [73706]

Mr. Denham [holding answer 26 February 1999]: The Government are committed to improving the health, safety and welfare of NHS patients and staff.

Insurance arrangements are a matter for National Health Service employers to determine locally. Staff who are injured in the course of their duties are entitled to payments from the National Health Service (Injury Benefits) Scheme for loss of earnings. They may also be entitled to compensation payments as a result of local insurance arrangements.

National Health Service employers, like all employers, are required to comply with the Health and Safety at Work, etc. Act 1974, the Manual Handling Operations Regulations 1992 and other statutory health and safety requirements.

The National Health Service Executive issued guidance on 18 May 1998 on "The Management of Health, Safety and Welfare Issues for NHS Staff". This guidance explains the obligations of NHS employers as well as giving advice on manual handling and other health and safety matters.

The National Health Service Executive sponsored a series of seminars around the country last year on health and safety issues.

Correspondence

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he will reply to the letter of 29 January from the hon. Member for Altrincham and Sale, West on appointments to health authorities and NHS trusts in the North West. [74834]

Ms Jowell: I replied to the hon. Member on 4 March.

Health Authority Funding

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will list for each health authority in the West Midlands (i) the total funding allocation and (ii) the funding per capita for health services for each year between 1987 and 1999, indicating for each year the (1) planned and (2) actual funding allocation by his Department; and if he will make a statement. [74857]

Mr. Denham: Figures have been given for 1996–97 onwards as health authorities in their present form did not exist prior to that year.

The following tables give, for each health authority in the West Midlands:

1. actual allocation for crude and weighted head of population;

2. target allocation for crude and weighted head of population.

The target is the health authority's fair share of resources as calculated by the weighted capitation formula which is then used to inform the allocation. Health authorities are moved closer to their target over time through the differential distribution of growth.

Crude populations are based on figures supplied by the Office for National Statistics. Weighted populations are crude populations modified for age, need and unavoidable geographical costs as determined by the weighted capitation formula.

1999–2000 recurrent unified allocation and target per capita

[1] Does not include non-recurrent money given to health authorities containing health action zones.

Note:

Targets and allocations for 1999–2000 are not comparable with those for earlier years which only covered hospital community health services (HCHS). This is because from 1999–2000 allocations were unified to cover the three funding streams of HCHS, prescribing and general practice infrastructure.

SOCIAL SECURITY

Disability Living Allowance

Mr. Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what was the total number claiming each component of the disability living allowance, and the numbers within those groups (a) working and (b) not working, in each year since 1992. [75071]

Mr. Bayley: Information is not available in the format requested. Such information as is available is in the table.

Disability Living Allowance is intended to provide help with the extra costs of care and mobility needs arising from disability. Since entitlement can continue irrespective of whether the recipient is in or out of work, statistics are not routinely kept on the numbers working. The table gives numbers of recipients and some broad estimates of the proportion in work, based on available data in the Family Resources Survey.

Number of Disability Living Allowance recipients [1] and estimated percentage in work [2]

| | 1992 | 1993 | 1994 | 1995 | 1996 | 1997 | 1998 |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Care component | | | | | | | |
| Recipients (000) | 475 | 684 | 825 | 995 | 1,172 | 1,317 | 1,401 |
| Percentage working | — | — | 8 | 8 | 9 | — | — |
| Mobility component | | | | | | | |
| Recipients (000) | 858 | 1,078 | 1,224 | 1,398 | 1,556 | 1,690 | 1,757 |
| Percentage working | — | — | 7 | 7 | 8 | — | — |
| Total [3] | | | | | | | |
| Recipients (000) | 1,019 | 1,248 | 1,400 | 1,589 | 1,768 | 1,926 | 2,014 |
| Percentage working | — | — | 7 | 8 | 8 | — | — |

[1] Numbers from administrative statistics taken at August of each year, rounded to the nearest thousand.
[2] Based on Family Resources Survey, which refers to financial years and excludes people in hospital and residential care. Information for earlier years is not available.
[3] Some recipients receive both components so numbers are less than the sum of the care and mobility recipients.

Incapacity Benefit

Mr. Rendel: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what estimate he has made of (a) the number of bereaved people who will no longer be able to claim incapacity benefit on the basis of their spouses' contribution record under the proposals in the Welfare Reform and Pensions Bill and (b) the consequent savings. [75002]

Mr. Bayley: It is estimated that currently there may be up to 2,000 successful claims a year to Incapacity Benefit on the basis of a late spouse's contributions and that the proposals in the Welfare Reform and Pensions Bill may affect 1,500 people and save £1 million in 2001–02. No one already widowed at the point of change will be affected.

Note:

Savings are rounded to nearest £1 million and the number of cases to 500.

Lone Parents

Mr. Duncan Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many lone parents are currently claiming income support; and how many lone parents were claiming income support in September 1998. [75150]

Angela Eagle: The latest information available is that there were 955,000 lone parents claiming Income Support as at August 1998.

Notes:

1. The figure is rounded to the nearest thousand.

2. Figures are based on a 5 per cent. sample of Income Support claimants.

3. Lone parents are defined as single claimants with dependants who are not in receipt of a disability or pensioner premium.

Source:

Income Support Statistics Quarterly Inquiry: August 1998.

Mr. Duncan Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many lone parents there are in each decile of income distribution. [75149]

Angela Eagle: The information is in the table.

The table shows the numbers of lone parents by decile or quintile of the income distribution. Their position in the income distribution is determined by the equivalised income of the household.

Number of lone parents by equivalised income decile or quintile, excluding the self-employed: 1996–97

Thousand

| | Before housing costs | After housing costs |
|---|---|---|
| Income deciles | | |
| Bottom decile | 220 | 280 |
| Second decile | 400 | 550 |
| Third decile | 360 | 270 |
| Fourth decile | 240 | 200 |
| Income quintiles | | |
| Third quintile | 260 | 200 |
| Fourth quintile | 120 | 110 |
| Top quintile | 60 | 50 |
| Total | 1,660 | 1,660 |

Notes:

1. All figures are estimates and are taken from the Households Below Average Income (HBAI) data set based on the Family Resources Survey (FRS). The FRS does not include Northern Ireland. 1996–97 is the latest year for which information is available.

2. The income measure used is weekly net (disposable) equivalised income. The definition of income used follows that in the published HBAI series for FRS based results. In HBAI, an individual's income is estimated by assuming each person in a household shares a common income level determined by the household's size and composition and its total disposable income. The adjustment to reflect the composition of the household is called 'equivalisation'. The figures may be sensitive to the choice of equivalence scale used. The figures are given for income both before and after housing costs in line with usual HBAI practice.

3. Results are presented excluding the self-employed because the income measures for the self-employed are inherently uncertain. Including the self-employed makes very little difference to these estimates.

4. Numbers are given to the nearest 10,000 but because they come from a sample survey they are not accurate to this degree. All results are subject to variable response rates and to sampling error. Due to the small sample sizes, the data for the top six deciles have been presented in quintiles.

Child Support Agency

Mr. Duncan Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if he will list all the representations received in response to the Green Paper on the Child Support Agency. [75151]

Angela Eagle: We have received 1,564 written responses to the Green Paper. The Under-Secretary my noble Friend the Baroness Hollis of Heigham, has also held meetings with more than 40 organisations, academics and other groups with an interest in child support.

Further details about responses to the consultation exercise will be made available when we bring forward our final proposals for reform.

Income Support

Mr. Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security, pursuant to his answer of 26 January 1999, Official Report, column 49, on income support, when he expects to publish estimates of non take-up of income-related benefits in 1996–97. [75070]

Angela Eagle: At present, work continues towards a revised set of figures for take-up in 1996–97. Publication is likely in May.

Habitual Residence Test

Mr. Duncan Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what is the annual estimated saving arising from the operation of the habitual residence test from its introduction to date. [74748]

Angela Eagle [holding answer 4 March 1999]: The best estimate of savings arising from the operation of the habitual residence test in the financial year 1997–98 is approximately £18 million. (This is an approximation since, by definition, we do not know the benefit entitlement of a person who fails the test).

Notes:

1. Savings for Income Support (IS), Housing Benefit (HB), Council Tax Benefit (CTB) and income-based Jobseeker's Allowance (JSA(IB)).

2. Based on 18,197 cases failing the habitual residence test over the period April 1997–March 1998. Source: Management Information Statistics.

3. Assumes that failing applicants are single with no dependants, and therefore entitled to the basic personal allowance in IS/JSA(IB) for someone aged 25 or over.

4. Assumes that in the absence of the test cases would be eligible for 13 weeks benefit.

5. Assumes average HB and CTB for a single person in receipt of IS, living in the deregulated private sector.

6. Assumes that 44 per cent. of those denied IS/JSA(IB) under the test would also have received HB, and 40 per cent. CTB.

NIRS2

Mr. Duncan Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what the total expenditure on the NIRS2 computer system has been to date; what the estimated total expenditure on completion of the NIRS2 computer system is; and what the original bid by Andersen Consulting for setting up the NIRS2 computer system was. [75182]

Mr. Timms: Payments for the NIRS2 service commenced from 13 July 1998. Expenditure to date has been £2.85 million. Andersen Consulting (AC) are contracted to provide the NIRS2 service until 5 April 2004. Due to the delayed go-live of the NIRS2 system, it is currently estimated that £39 million will be paid to AC for NIRS2 in that time. The bid submitted by AC for designing, developing, implementing and maintaining the NIRS2 service to 5 April 2004 was £44.8 million.

Pensioner Incomes

Mr. Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many pensioners are currently receiving income from a personal pension; and of those how many are also claiming means-tested benefits. [75068]

Mr. Timms: The information is not available.

We would expect that there are relatively few people who are receiving pension benefits from their personal pension plans at present. The data available do not distinguish income from personal pensions from income from other types of pension.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Punishment Beatings

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many punishment beatings took place in each year since 1994; and how many have taken place since the Good Friday Agreement. [70108]

Mr. Ingram: The following table illustrates the number of casualties as a result of paramilitary style attacks in Northern Ireland since 1994:

| Year | Shootings | Assaults | Total |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1994 | 122 | 70 | 192 |
| 1995 | 3 | 217 | 220 |
| 1996 | 24 | 302 | 326 |
| 1997 | 72 | 156 | 228 |
| 1998 | 72 | 144 | 216 |
| 10 April 1998 to 28 February 1999 | 65 | 150 | 215 |

Pensioners (Concessionary Travel)

Mr. Beggs: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what is the estimated annual cost of providing free travel on public transport for pensioners in Northern Ireland. [73984]

Mr. Paul Murphy: The Concessionary Fares Scheme in Northern Ireland is administered by the Department of the Environment for Northern Ireland.

It provides for unlimited travel at half-fare, at all times, on all scheduled services by road and rail throughout Northern Ireland for persons aged 65 and over, as well as children up to age 16 and war disabled pensioners. Registered blind people are entitled to free travel.

Unfortunately, the Department of the Environment for Northern Ireland does not hold a breakdown by 'group' of the current expenditure on the existing concessionary fares scheme. The total expenditure for 1997–98 was £9,078,768.

Schizophrenia

Sir Alastair Goodlad: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many patients with a primary diagnosis of schizophrenia psychoses were discharged from mental illness hospitals in Northern Ireland in the last year; and how many were admitted for a hospital stay more than once during the year. [74387]

Mr. McFall: I refer the right hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 4 March 1999, Official Report, columns 821–22.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Television and CDs (Copying)

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what representations he has received regarding the introduction of a levy on the copying onto tape of television programmes and music CDs; and if he will make a statement. [72218]

Dr. Howells [holding answer 22 February 1999]: We are aware from a number of sources of the concerns of consumers and others that a draft EC Directive on copyright in the information society may require levies to be imposed on blank tapes. These concerns stem from proposed amendments to the Directive recently adopted by the European Parliament, which would require right owners to be compensated where exceptions to their rights permitting private copying are provided in national law. However, the outcome on the Directive is not yet clear since negotiations in the Council of Ministers are still at a relatively early stage, and it cannot be adopted until both the Council and the Parliament agree. In the UK, there is an exception allowing home recording of broadcasts to enable viewing or listening at a more convenient time, and we do not consider that a levy would be justified for this. The position on private copying of music CDs is different since in general there is no exception in the UK permitting this, and we envisage that it would remain subject to authorisation by right owners.

Electronic Commerce

Mr. Coaker: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what progress he has made in preparing legislation to promote electronic commerce. [75548]

Mr. Byers: The way we do business in the future is set to change dramatically. It is essential that Britain is at the forefront of these changes and building trust is crucial. The Government have set the ambitious goal of developing the UK as the world's best environment for electronic trading by 2002. I will shortly be appointing an e-envoy to push forward our strategy for achieving this. An important part of our strategy is the proposed legislation on Electronic Commerce, which I intend to present to Parliament later this session. I am publishing a consultation paper on the Bill today, and have placed copies in the Vote Office. I am determined to get this legislation right by developing it in consultation with industry and other interested parties, to provide a clear, consistent and predictable legal environment for business.

Developing trust on-line, building public confidence in "electronic signatures" and clarifying their legal status are essential if we are to promote electronic commerce. Our proposed legislation will do this. It will start removing the legal barriers to using electronic means, instead of pen and paper, in everyday dealings—for example between people and Government; between businesses and customers, or between companies and their shareholders. It will also enhance confidence in the technologies which people can use to ensure that others cannot read their credit card data when they shop on line and businesses can use to ensure that sensitive information is not being read by competitors. Encryption is vital to this as a way of supporting electronic signatures as well as protecting the confidentiality of documents.

However encryption poses a serious threat to the effectiveness of the agencies tasked with combating crime and threats to national security, who rely on legal access to both stored and communicated data. As, increasingly, such data become encrypted, they need access to the keys to unlock any material they lawfully obtain. We therefore intend to give those agencies legal powers to obtain encryption keys, under properly authorised procedures and on a case by case basis, wherever they are held. The powers will apply only to material which itself has been, or is being, obtained under lawful authority and will not extend the range of material to which agencies are allowed access. The procedures will contain strong safeguards.

Much of what the Government have proposed has been broadly welcomed. However, there has been much debate about key escrow and third party key recovery—essentially ways of storing confidentiality keys or of recovering encrypted data. They allow critical data to be recovered both for business and other users of encryption for themselves or in response to authorised requests from law enforcement agencies. However, industry has argued that making this a requirement under the licensing scheme could hinder the development of electronic commerce in the UK.

The Government have therefore decided to consult on the basis that this will not be a requirement for licensing. But law enforcement faces a serious problem. Government and industry have a common interest in fighting crime. The Prime Minister is therefore establishing a partnership with industry to identify ways of meeting law enforcement requirements while promoting the growth of electronic commerce. The Government are seeking ideas on how these dual objectives might be promoted via the licensing scheme or otherwise.

Topics on which we are seeking views also include: legal recognition of electronic communications, exactly how the voluntary licensing scheme run by OFTEL for providers of cryptographic services licensing will work, the liability of service providers towards their customers and others, other possible changes to legislation to promote electronic commerce and the way the law enforcement provisions will affect licensed providers, unlicensed providers and other people.

Taken together, the proposals in this paper, which will form the basis of our Electronic Commerce Bill, will give the UK the most attractive legal framework in the world for doing electronic business. The paper is available at:

Staffordshire (Inward Investment)

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will list the inward investment projects in Staffordshire which his Department has announced (a) since May 1997 and (b) between 1992 and 1997, giving in each case the (i) location, (ii) cash investment and (iii) number of jobs created; and if he will make a statement. [74547]

Mr. Wills: There is no obligation for foreign-owned—or indigenous—businesses to inform Government of the details of Inward Investment for reasons of commercial confidentiality. However, information collected by the West Midlands Development Agency, the regional development organisation, shows 59 cases of investment by foreign-owned companies in Staffordshire in the period from May 1992 to September 1998, of which 16 were since May 1997. Cumulative investment, where announced, totalled £644 million. Some 2,489 jobs were created and 7,985 safeguarded. Their records show that 21 of these investments were in the Tamworth area; 9 in Lichfield; 8 in Cannock; 7 in Burton-on-Trent and 6 in Stoke-on-Trent.

Through the Department's Invest in Britain Bureau, the regional development organisations and their regional partners, Government continue to seek to attract inward investment and to ensure that existing inward investors both maintain their investments and undertake future expansions in this country.

EU Patent Directorate

Joan Ruddock: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will make a statement on the EU Commission's position on the Dutch and Italian Governments' challenge to the EU Patent Directorate COM (95) 661. [74493]

Mr. Battle [holding answer 3 March 1999]: The European Commission, as a Community institution, is entitled to intervene in any case before the European Court of Justice. I am not aware that the Commission has made any such intervention in the Netherlands' action before the European Court of Justice, which action seeks to annul Directive 98/44/EC on the legal protection of biotechnological inventions. In addition, I am not aware that the European Commission has made any public statement on their position with respect to this case.

The Netherlands have applied to the European Court of Justice seeking to annul the recently adopted Directive 98/44/EC on the legal protection of biotechnological inventions.

As this Community legislation was adopted by the Council and European Parliament, it is these institutions, rather than the Commission who are parties to the action.

Genetic Resource Patents

Joan Ruddock: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what is the current practice of the UK Patent Office in awarding patents on (a) transgenic plants and (b) genes and genetic sequences derived from plants; and how many of each have been given in the last 12 months. [74474]

Mr. Battle [holding answer 3 March 1999]: The United Kingdom Patents Act (1977) sets down the requirements which must be met to obtain patent rights and the United Kingdom Patent Office assesses patent applications to investigate whether they comply with these requirements. So, for example, according to the Act, patents may be obtained for all inventions which are new, not obvious and have industrial applicability. These criteria must be met by inventions from all fields of technology, including biotechnology. The Act also excludes certain matter from patent rights. This includes plant varieties as such, and discoveries, such as the mere discovery that a gene exists in nature with no accompanying technical step. Thus, patents may be granted for inventions involving the genetic manipulation of plants. Any decision by the Patent Office can be challenged in the Courts.

Between the beginning of March 1998 and the end of February 1999, the Patents and Designs Journal have recorded the grant of two patents by the United Kingdom Patent Office.

Newspaper Deliveries

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will make a statement about progress in negotiations between his Department and the National Federation of Retail Newsagents regarding regulations affecting newspaper delivery. [74626]

Mr. Ian McCartney: My Department has not been in negotiations with the National Federation of Retail Newsagents. I have previously stated that newspaper delivery boys and girls are not entitled to paid annual leave under the Working Time Regulations if they are below minimum school leaving age; anyone aged 16 or over who delivers newspapers is, like any other part-time worker, entitled to paid annual leave but only pro rata according to the hours they normally work.

University Researchers (Employment Protection)

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what plans he has to introduce employment protection for university scientific and medical researchers on short-term contracts. [74700]

Mr. Ian McCartney: The Employment Relations Bill now before Parliament will provide all employees with decent minimum standards in the workplace. It includes a proposal to abolish contractual clauses which allow those working under fixed term contracts lasting a year or more to waive the right to claim unfair dismissal at the end of the term.

Oil Exploration (St. Kilda)

Mr. Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what plans he has to allow oil exploration and development off St. Kilda; and if he will make a statement. [74282]

Mr. Battle: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for New Forest, West (Mr. Swayne) on 2 March 1999, Official Report, columns 693–95.

CABINET OFFICE

Women's Issues

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office if he will list the organisations which Ministers have met since 1 August 1998 in connection with the Government's policies on women's issues. [73958]

Ms Jowell: I have been asked to reply.

My noble Friend the Leader of the House of Lords and Minister for Women and I are responsible for delivering the Government's commitments towards women.

Since 1 August 1998, we have met representatives from the following organisations in connection with women's issues:

United Nations Commission on Status of Women
Equal Opportunities Commission
Women's Aid Federation for England
Birmingham Heartlands Hospital
Shevolution
Trades Union Congress
Age Concern
Nursing Standards Nursing Awards
National Council for Women
Women's Nationwide Cancer Control Campaign
United Kingdom Asian Women's Conference
YWCA
Women's National Commission
National Association of Women's Clubs
British Federation of Women Graduates
The Mothers Union
Fawcett Society
National Childbirth Trust
Women's Institute
Townswomen's Guild
Women Acting in Today's Society
Opportunity 2000
Camelot
Gingerbread
Shelter
Comic Relief
Telephone Helplines Association
EPOCH
Rape Crisis
National Family Mediation
Women's Royal Voluntary

In addition, a nationwide programme of Listening to Women roadshows was launched in Manchester and Glasgow last month. The programme continues with events in London on 8 March; Norwich on 10 March; Birmingham on 26 March; Bristol on 16 April; Newcastle on 19 April; Reading on 21 May; Leeds on 26 May; and Nottingham on 11 June. A large number of women's organisation are attending these events, representing a wide cross-section of interests and views, including, inter alia, organisations representing ethnic minority women, trades unions, and women from a wide range of community organisations. A Minister is attending each event to hear women's views first hand.

SCOTLAND

Departmental Expenditure

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will list the expenditure incurred by his Department, agencies and non-departmental public bodies on (a) the setting up and (b) the operation of websites, indicating the cases in which the expenditure has been above that budgeted; and if he will list for each website (i) the topics covered, (ii) the current average number of hits per month and (iii) the estimated expenditure on each website for each of the next three years. [70966]

Mr. Dewar [holding answer 15 February 1999]: My Department's website provides information on a wide range of topics, including copies of all Departmental publications.

The information sought for my Department and its agencies is set out in the tables. Table 1 lists websites the costs of which are met directly by The Scottish Office. Running cost figures include internal staff costs borne by the bodies concerned. Table 2 lists websites maintained by executive agencies of The Scottish Office. Table 3 lists the addresses for each website. It would not be practically possible to list exhaustively the wide range of topics dealt with by each. Information relating to non-departmental public bodies in Scotland is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

From 1 July 1999 this will a matter for the Scottish Parliament.

Notes:
The information given in Table 1 should be qualified as follows:
[1] As electronic publishing and the web is a fast changing environment the estimated expenditure on each of the websites over the next 3 years should be treated with caution.
Some of the operation costs for HMI Educational Research Unit are included within Scottish Office annual operation costs.
The Scottish Devolution website will be wound up in May 1999 to coincide with the Scottish Parliament elections and launch of the Parliament's own website.
The £7,000 set up cost for the Sustainable Scotland website includes year 1 operation costs.
The estimated set-up cost for design and development of the Scottish Parliament website is £60,000. Information on operation costs and average hits per month are not available, as the website is not yet up and running.

Scottish Enterprise

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will give a breakdown of planned expenditure by category for Scottish Enterprise in 2001–02; and if he will make a statement. [74242]

Mr. Dewar [holding answer 3 March 1999]: The gross planning figures for Scottish Enterprise in 2001–02 are as follows:

Gross plans: £ million

| | 2001–02 |
|---|---|
| Business Development | 140.6 |
| Infrastructure | 266.2 |
| Administration | 61.3 |

This breakdown will be aligned in due course with the new Scottish Enterprise strategic goals. These are supporting innovative and far sighted companies; stimulating positive attitudes to enterprise and learning, promoting inclusion and ensuring that Scotland is a competitive place in relation to its working and living environment.

From 1 July, this will be a matter for the Scottish Parliament.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland for what reasons he has not yet replied to the questions from the hon. Member for Gordon, tabled on 1 February for answer on 4 and 8 February (refs. 69242, 69254, 69251, 69235, 69267, 69203, 69197, 69198, 69199, 69201, 69200); and if he will make a statement. [75060]

Mr. Dewar: Question 69254 has been answered. The information requested in the remaining questions is currently being collated and will be provided to the hon. Member as soon as possible.

Wick Sheriff Court

Mr. Maclennan: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what representations he has received from Sheriff Principal Risk about the exclusion of the Wick Sheriff Court from the list of outlying sheriff courts at which an enhanced fixed payment for summary criminal legal aid cases will be paid; and if he will make a statement. [75065]

Mr. McLeish: Sheriff Principal Risk wrote to The Scottish Office suggesting that Wick and Fort William should be included in the list of courts which attract an additional distant courts payment. A letter was sent to the Sheriff Principal explaining the basis on which the list of distant courts was drawn up.

The operation of the fixed payments regime will be closely monitored by the Tripartite Group, comprising The Scottish Office, the Law Society of Scotland and the Scottish Legal Aid Board. Monitoring will include the effect on rural courts. From 1 July 1999, legal aid in Scotland will be a matter for the Scottish Parliament.

Nurses' Pay

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will estimate the average pay for Grade D nurses in the last 10 years; and if he will list the five NHS trusts that have the lowest pay awards for Grade D nurses for 1999–2000. [74995]

Mr. Galbraith: The information on average earnings available centrally is shown in the table. Data for earlier years are not available.

From 1 April 1999 all Grade D nurses in NHS Trusts in Scotland on national contracts will receive the rates of pay recommended by the Review Body for 1999 2000.

Average Gross Pay [1] for Grade D nurses [2] employed in the NHS in Scotland—Financial years ending 31 March 1996 to 31 March 1998

| Year | Average gross pay |
|---|---|
| 1996 | 14,997 |
| 1997 | 15,477 |
| 1998 [3] | 15,847 |

[1] Gross Pay consists of employees basic pay, overtime, enhancements and any other allowances they receive. It excludes employers charges.

[2] The averages are based on the nurses who work on a whole time basis only, because of the difficulty in calculating a whole time equivalent denominator for part time nurses.

[3] Data for Dumfries and Galloway Community NHS trust and 11 trusts and health boards in the West of Scotland are missing for 1998.

Hospital Beds

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many (a) acute, (b) geriatric, (c) mental illness, (d) learning disability and (e) maternity beds there were in each health board area in each year since 1994–95. [74989]

Mr. Galbraith: Information on the number of acute, geriatric, psychiatric, learning disability and obstetric beds in each Health Board for each year since 1994–95 is shown in the table.

From 1 July 1999, this will be a matter for the Scottish Parliament.

NHS Trusts (Chief Executives' Pay)

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will estimate the average pay for chief executives for NHS trusts for the last 10 years; and if he will list the pay of the five highest paid chief executives of NHS trusts in 1998–99. [74994]

Mr. Galbraith: The first NHS Trust was established in Scotland in 1992. The current 47 Trusts were not in being until 1995. The information requested is only fully available from 1995–96 and is set out in the table.

| Year | Average pay for chief executives |
|---|---|
| 1995–96 | 63,490 |
| 1996–97 | 57,820 |
| 1997–98 | 68,680 |

Pay of the 5 highest paid chief executives

| 83,000 | 83,000 | 84,000 |
| 80,000 | 83,000 | 83,000 |

From 1 July 1999, this will be a matter for the Scottish Parliament.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

European Union (Reform)

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will list his priorities for the reform of European Union institutions. [73571]

Ms Quin: Our overriding priority is to ensure that the enlarged Union has institutions which are effective, accountable and transparent. We also attach particular importance to making the Commission's resource and personnel management practices more effective and transparent.

General Affairs Council

Mr. Jim Marshall: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the outcome was of the General Affairs Council held in Brussels on 22 and 23 February; and if he will make a statement. [73485]

Ms Quin:

1. The General Affairs Council in Luxembourg on 22 February 1999 adopted the A points listed in document 6078/99 and noted the resolutions, decisions and opinions adopted by the European Parliament in its sessions of 11–15 January and 27–28 January listed in documents 5117/99 and 5120/99.

Copies of the documents listing the A points and resolutions will be placed in the House Libraries as soon as they become available. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary and I represented the UK.

Agenda 2000

2. Foreign Ministers met on Sunday 21 February in advance of the General Affairs Council. Discussion focused on the 2000–2006 financial perspective, particularly on stabilising CAP and Structural Fund spending. Ministers agreed that further work at technical level on Community Initiatives and transitional arrangements was needed. Foreign Ministers agreed that the President of the GAC would report on the state of negotiations to the Informal meeting of Heads of State and Government in Petersberg on 26 February.

Implementation of the Amsterdam Treaty

3. The Presidency presented a paper on work in progress to prepare for entry into force of the Amsterdam Treaty. There was some discussion, in particular on the Schengen Acquis. Detailed consideration of the paper was remitted to the Committee of Permanent Representatives.

Enlargement (Malta)

4. The Commission presented its Opinion on Malta's renewed application to join the EU. The Opinion recommends that screening of Malta's legislation to assess its compatibility with EU obligations should begin as soon as possible, with a view to starting negotiations at the end of the year. I welcomed this on behalf of the UK. The Council asked the Committee of Permanent Representatives to examine the Opinion in greater detail and report back to the GAC.

EU/South Africa

5. The Council discussed the package finalised between the Commission and South Africa to conclude the Trade & Cooperation Agreement. Despite strong support from a majority of member states, including the UK, no overall agreement was possible. The Council asked the Commission to continue contacts with South Africa, with a view to reaching agreement by the end-March deadline set at the Vienna European Council.

Special assistance to the new Independent States

6. The Council welcomed the Commission's plans to transfer 20 million euro from the Russia TACIS programme to European Community Humanitarian Office to provide humanitarian aid for those Former Soviet Union countries worst hit by the Russian economic crisis.

EU–Japan: Regulation on market access programmes

7. Ministers agreed the Regulation which gives a legal base to implementation by the Commission of export promotion activities in Japan. The Regulation will not affect Member States' national export promotion activities.

Kosovo

8. Ministers discussed the then continuing negotiations on Kosovo at Rambouillet, and expressed their support for the efforts of the Contact Group. The Council urged the parties to the conflict to come to a comprehensive agreement, including on the security aspects; and reaffirmed the EU's readiness to play a key role in the implementation of an eventual agreement, including through reconstruction assistance. It also noted that, were a definitive agreement reached, Kosovo-related sanctions against the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia would be gradually suspended, linked to certain conditions.

Ocalan

9. The Council issued a declaration which reiterated its condemnation of all forms of terrorism; deplored the violent acts which followed the arrest of Abdullan Ocalan; noted the Turkish Government's assurance that Ocalan would receive a fair trial; underlined its opposition to the death penalty; called on Turkey to resolve its problems by political means; and noted the EU's readiness to promote conciliation.

Middle East Peace Process

10. Ministers discussed the recent visit of the Presidency to the region and tasked the relevant EU bodies to examine how the EU can continue to support the peace process. Ministers also asked the relevant EU bodies to examine possibilities for further Community support to Jordan.

Indonesia

11. The Council emphasised the importance of free, fair and credible elections in Indonesia. It agreed a UK initiative for additional Commission funding for the elections (7 million euro).

External Representation of Euro

12. The Council encouraged the Presidency to pursue its efforts, in accordance to the conclusions of the Vienna European Council, on Community representation in discussions by G7 Finance Ministers and Central Bank Governors on issues of particular relevance to EMU.

Association Councils

13. Following the GAC, there were successful meetings of the Association Councils with Latvia, Lithuania and Slovenia. They took stock of their preparations for EU membership, and considered the operation of the Europe Agreements. Over dinner, the participants discussed Kosovo, Russia and relations with neighbouring states.

Task Forces

Dr. Tony Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will publish a list of (1) task forces and (2) policy reviews established by his Department since May 1997 which (a) had external members recruited by way of public advertisement, and details of any person so appointed and (b) engaged in public consultation exercises, and the form that these took. [74465]

Mr. Fatchett: None.

Council of Europe Conventions

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will list the conventions of the Council of Europe which the United Kingdom has not ratified. [74636]

Mr. Tony Lloyd: The Council of Europe conventions which the United Kingdom has yet to ratify are as set out.

Political Offences

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will list the countries to which he made representations in 1998 about imprisonment of elected members of parliament where such members are held in prison for alleged political offences; and if he will make a statement. [74622]

Mr. Tony Lloyd: We condemn the detention of any individual on the basis of his or her political beliefs. Detention of an elected representative is a particularly blatant abuse in that it demonstrates a total disregard, not just for that individual's rights, but for the whole democratic process.

We regularly raise cases of political detainees with the authorities concerned. We do so both bilaterally and with EU partners, at official and Ministerial level. However, we do not keep a central list of all such approaches.

More generally, we are working through dialogue, practical assistance and, where necessary, criticism to promote the full enjoyment of political freedoms by all.

If the hon. Gentleman has a particular case in mind, I should be happy to give a more detailed response.

Strategic Export Controls

Mr. Chope: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he expects to publish the Annual report on Strategic Export Controls. [74761]

Mr. Tony Lloyd: The report will be published as soon as possible.

Human Rights

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what action he is taking to publicise the Universal Declaration of Human Rights to UK citizens. [74954]

Mr. Tony Lloyd: Throughout 1998, we supported a wide range of events in the UK—and abroad—to mark the 50th Anniversary of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights.

Specific initiatives to increase public awareness of the rights enshrined in the Declaration include a Foreign Office funded schools information pack, the joint FCO/DfID Annual Report on Human Rights, and the human rights page on the FCO's website.

Related activities included the participation of the Prime Minister and the Foreign Secretary in Amnesty's "Get Up, Sign Up!" campaign; a series of Ministerial keynote speeches on human rights, and FCO funded human rights seminars.

We will continue to publicise the Declaration and other international human rights standards.

Democratic Republic of Congo

Ms Bridget Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the visit by the Minister of State, Foreign and Commonwealth Office, the hon. Member for Manchester, Central (Mr. Lloyd), as the Prime Minister's Special Envoy to the countries directly or indirectly involved in the conflict in the Democratic Republic of Congo. [75694]

Mr. Tony Lloyd: I visited the Democratic Republic of Congo and other countries directly or indirectly involved in the conflict there from 22–26 February as the Prime Minister's Special Envoy. The objective was to assess progress in the African mediation efforts and explore what more Britain and the international community may be able to do to support these. I met the Presidents of the countries most directly involved—the Democratic Republic of the Congo, Zimbabwe, Uganda and Rwanda—senior government representatives in South Africa, Angola and Namibia, and the Secretary-General of the Organisation of African Unity.

I conveyed the same message to all those directly involved in the conflict: the war was one no-one could win; it was damaging their own interests and causing untold suffering for the people of the region; resolving the conflict required an African solution—Britain was ready to do all it could to support this; Britain was working with its partners in the European Union and in the Security Council to help African mediation efforts. I urged them all to show the political will to end the conflict. All sides acknowledged the need for an early negotiated settlement, but none was prepared to withdraw its forces. We are considering what more we can do now to underpin African efforts and to bring about a just, peaceful and lasting settlement.

Labour Market Reform

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which European Community working groups are undertaking work concerning (a) unfunded pensions liabilities and (b) trade union rights within the context of labour market reform. [74447]

Mr. Ian McCartney: I have been asked to reply.

I am responding to part (b) of the right hon. Gentleman's question as it is the responsibility of my Department; part (a) is the responsibility of the Department for Social Security.

There are no European Community working groups undertaking work at present concerning trade union rights within the context of labour market reform.

AGRICULTURE, FISHERIES AND FOOD

Meat Production Costs

Mr. Gray: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what plans he has to assist farmers to meet meat production costs arising from compliance with regulations. [74697]

Mr. Rooker: In his statement to the House on 16 November 1998, Official Report, columns 624–40, my right hon. Friend the Minister announced an aid package for livestock farmers worth some £120 million this year. The Government have no plans, and indeed see no case, for further assistance.

Single Currency

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what plans he has to issue information from his Department to help the public make an informed decision when they vote on the single currency. [73581]

Mr. Rooker: Any plans by the Government to issue information during a referendum campaign on whether or not the UK should join the single currency would be made in light of the Government's response to the recommendations from the Neill Committee on the conduct of referendums. The Government will announce their conclusions on those recommendations when my right hon. Friend the Home Secretary publishes a White Paper and draft Bill before the summer recess.

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will list the subject areas within his Department's responsibilities which will be covered by the information campaign on Britain's membership of a single currency. [73676]

Mr. Rooker: I understand that HM Treasury, which has overall responsibility for the information campaign, will continue its dialogue with key external bodies to determine what information the public and business would need at each stage of the changeover process. Any campaign would cover key concerns that the public and business in the whole range of sectors have. Chapter eight of the Treasury's Outline National Changeover Plan provides further information. Copies of the Plan are available in the House Library.

MAFF would support Treasury efforts in relation to the industries which the Department sponsors.

Quarantine

Mr. Chope: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food when he expects to announce the Government's response to their consultation on quarantine for animals. [74271]

Mr. Rooker: The Government are considering the outcome of the consultation on the review of quarantine rules undertaken by the Advisory Group on Quarantine. We will announce a specific way forward as soon as we can.

Sir George Young: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will authorise the release from quarantine of clinically healthy dogs and cats which show valid serological evidence of immunity to rabies. [72943]

Mr. Rooker: I refer the right hon. Member to the reply given to the hon. Member for Woking (Mr. Malins) on 2 March 1999, Official Report, column 721.

Live Animal Exports

Mr. Prosser: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if there has been any significant change in UK live lamb and sheep prices since Farmers' Ferry Ltd. began operating a vessel carrying livestock from Dover to the continent in August 1998; and if he will make a statement. [74323]

Mr. Rooker: There has been a significant decline in the market price of UK lamb and sheep since August 1998. A number of factors, including the volume of exports, influence these prices. Whilst the Government wish to encourage the export of sheep as meat rather then as live animals, it is likely that UK market prices would have been further depressed in the absence of competition from the live export trade.

Mr. Prosser: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what plans he has to persuade farmers and exporters to replace the export of live animals with the export of meat and carcases; and if he will make a statement. [74319]

Mr. Rooker: The Government would strongly prefer to see meat exported rather than live animals. However, two European Court judgments have made clear this is a legal trade. Our approach therefore is to ensure scrupulous application of the EU rules protecting animals in transit, and encourage other member states to do the same.

Sheep Exports

Mr. Prosser: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what proportion by value of the UK's sheep exports are in the form of meat and carcases; and if he will make a statement. [74320]

Mr. Rooker: It is estimated that in the year ending 30 September 1998, UK exports of sheep carcase meat represented 74 per cent. of total sheep exports by value. This figure, however, is distorted by the inclusion of exports of live sheep from Northern Ireland to the Republic of Ireland. The comparable figure for all other destinations is estimated to be 90 per cent.

Exchange Rates

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food further to his answer of 22 February 1999, Official Report, column 188, on exchange rates, what form compensation will take for market support payments adversely affected by a decline in the euro; and what will be the source of such compensation. [74317]

Mr. Rooker: The new agri-monetary regulations for market support payments are of two kinds.

The first is a one-off arrangement to deal with the effects of the ending of the green rates on 1 January 1999. Compensation is payable only if the rate on 1 January 1999 was less favourable than the rates applying over the two previous years. This was not the case in the UK, so no compensation is payable.

The second deals with appreciable revaluations in the Pre-Ins currencies occurring after 1 January 1999 and before January 2002. Compensation would apply to the amount of the revaluation exceeding 2.6 per cent. The Member State and the European Union would each pay 50 per cent. of this compensation. It is too soon to say whether the UK would be eligible for such compensation.

Even if the possibility of compensation exists, payment remains optional for Member States; the EU contribution would be made only if the Member State paid its half. Decisions on paying compensation will need to take account of circumstances prevailing at the time, including the effects on the national contribution of the UK budget abatement.

Food Standards Agency

Mr. Moss: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food how many businesses in North-East Cambridgeshire were assessed by the Government to be exceptionally vulnerable to the effects of the proposed levy to fund the Food Standards Agency. [73932]

Mr. Rooker: The purpose of the current public consultation exercise is to elicit views on, among other things, the implications of the proposed levy for food businesses. My officials are also holding direct discussions with small business representatives on the proposals. We will consider carefully the likely effects of the levy on businesses in the light of the responses we receive.

Mr. Moss: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food how many businesses in North-East Cambridgeshire will be liable for the proposed Food Standards Agency levy, broken down by businesses employing (a) under 10 people, (b) 11 to 50 people, (c) 51 to 100 people and (d) over 101 people. [73930]

Mr. Rooker: This information is not available for the categories and area requested. The proposed levy applies to food retail and catering premises that are required to register with the local authority under the Food Premises (Registration) Regulations 1991, except for those on which the only food sales are wrapped confectionery, soft drinks, crisps and similar wrapped products. Each local authority is required to maintain a register of food premises in their area, covering the name, address and nature of the business, but excluding details of the number of employees. The registers are open to inspection by the public.

Mr. Moss: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what estimate he has made of the percentage of the money collected in North-East Cambridgeshire from the proposed levy to fund the Food Standards Agency will come from small businesses. [73931]

Mr. Rooker: This information is not available. The answer would in any case depend upon how one defined small businesses.

Mr. Moss: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will estimate the number of businesses in North-East Cambridgeshire which will come under regulatory control of the proposed Food

Standards Agency, broken down into those which employ (a) under 10, (b) 11 to 50, (c) 51 to 100 and (d) over 101 people. [73945]

Mr. Rooker: Data on businesses are not collected for the categories and area requested. Regulatory control over most food businesses at the local level, will generally remain the responsibility of local enforcement authorities.

Mr. Moss: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if the proposed levy to fund the Food Standards Agency will apply to food vendors at local markets. [73933]

Mr. Rooker: It is proposed that the levy will apply to food retail and catering premises that are required to be registered with the local authority under the terms of the Food Premises (Registration) Regulations 1991 (except for premises on which the only food sales are wrapped confectionery, soft drinks, crisps and similar wrapped products). This will include some food vendors at local markets.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Millennium Experience

Mr. Marshall-Andrews: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) what further budget review for the Millennium Experience he has received since October 1998; and if he will place a copy in the Library; [74904]

(2) if he will make a statement on the matters raised in paragraph 6 of the Comptroller and Auditor General's report on the accounts of the Millennium Commission for 1997–98; Financial Control of Expenditure, relating to the Millennium Experience (HC 1128); [74905]

(3) what plans he has to advance further public finance, whether from Government or the Millennium Commission, to the Millennium Experience (a) as predicted in section six of the Comptroller and Auditor General's report on the Account of the Millennium Commission for 1997–98: Financial Control of Expenditure relating to the Millennium Experience (HC 1128) and (b) otherwise; [74986]

(4) what steps have been taken by himself or his Department in response to paragraph 6 of the Comptroller and Auditor General's report on the Accounts of the Millennium Commission for 1997–98: Financial Control of Expenditure relating to the Millennium Experience (HC 1128) to identify the potential source of supplementary finance. [74985]

Janet Anderson: The decision to proceed with the Millennium Experience was made on the basis of five key commitments, one of which was that it must not result in any extra burden on the public purse. That remains the Government's position.

The Millennium Commission's accounts cover the period to 31 March 1998. Since then, the New Millennium Experience Company (NMEC) costs have remained within budget and the Company has announced that £142 million of sponsorship has been achieved—nearly 95 per cent. of its target and the largest amount of sponsorship ever raised for any single event. The Comptroller and Auditor General's Report did not suggest that the New Millennium Experience Company (NMEC) would not raise the money needed and did not qualify the Accounts in any way.

As a matter of normal business practice and commercial prudence, the NMEC itself undertakes regular, planned reviews of its budget. Under the terms of the Millennium Commission's grant, the NMEC consults the Commission on the outcome of these reviews. The Commission has endorsed the NMEC's budget and the NMEC's approach to its reviews. The NMEC and the Millennium Commission's budget documents and business plans are commercially confidential.

The NMEC is required to meet all the normal requirements that are placed on a Non-Departmental Public Body (NDPB) including the publication of its Annual Report and audited Accounts. The NMEC Accounts for 12 February 1997 to 31 March 1998 were laid before Parliament in July 1998 and the Company will be publishing its next Report and Accounts this summer.

Single Currency Referendum

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will list the subject areas within his Department's responsibilities which will be covered by the information campaign on Britain's membership of a single currency. [73670]

Janet Anderson: The Treasury will continue its dialogue with key external bodies to determine what information the public and business would need at each stage of the changeover process. Any information campaign would cover key concerns that the public and business may have. Chapter eight of the Treasury's "Outline National Changeover Plan" provides further information. Copies of the plan are available in the House Library.

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what plans he has to issue information from his Department to help the public make an informed decision when they vote on the single currency. [73586]

Janet Anderson: Any plans by the Government to issue information during a referendum campaign on whether or not the UK should join the single currency would be made in light of the Government's response to the recommendations from the Neill Committee on the conduct of referendums. The Government will announce their conclusions on those recommendations when my right hon. Friend the Home Secretary publishes a White Paper and draft Bill before the summer recess.

English Sports Council

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what percentage of the English Sports Council's grant-in-aid was spent on (a) staff costs, excluding national centres, (b) administrative expenses, (c) publicity/promotions/communications, (d) grants to national governing bodies, (e) grants to the National

Coaching Foundation, (f) sports science, (g) sports medicine, (h) national centres, (i) grants to other national sports bodies, excluding NGBs and (j) regional support in (i) 1997–98, (ii) 1998–99 and (iii) what are the provisional spending plans for 1999–2000 to 2001–02. [71745]

Mr. Banks [holding answer 22 February 1999] [pursuant to his reply, 26 February 1999, c. 476–78]: The information provided on the English Sports Council's grant-in-aid expenditure was inaccurate.

EDUCATION AND EMPLOYMENT

Rainsford School, Chelmsford

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment (1) when he expects to reach a decision on the appeal by Rainsford School, Chelmsford, against the direction made by Essex County Council to admit a pupil, whose name has been sent to him, at the school; [74821]

(2) when he received an appeal from Rainsford School, Chelmsford, against the direction made by Essex County Council to admit a pupil, whose name has been sent to him, to that school. [74822]

Mr. Charles Clarke: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State must consider any referral from a school directed to accept a pupil under section 431 of the Education Act 1996. We received Rainsford School's referral of a notice of direction about this pupil on 27 January. My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State will be making a determination as soon as further consultation with Essex local education authority and local schools has been completed.

Teachers

Mr. Syms: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment if he will estimate the average weekly earnings of teachers in 1999–2000 using April 1998 prices. [74022]

Ms Estelle Morris: The average weekly earnings of teachers (including heads and deputies) in the maintained nursery, primary, secondary and special sector in 1999–2000 at April 1998 prices is expected to be approximately £470.

Mr. Syms: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment (1) what the average pay increase in real terms per annum has been for teachers from 1979 to 1997; [74025]

(2) if he will list, in real terms, the pay increases awarded to teachers each year from 1979 to date, taking into consideration the staging of pay awards. [74028]

Ms Estelle Morris: The following table shows the average annual pay increases in the maintained nursery, primary and secondary sector from 1979, in real terms using 1997 prices.

| Increase from/to | Value of increase in real terms (1997 prices) (£) | Percentage increase in real terms (1997 prices) |
|---|---|---|
| 1979 to 1980 | 504 | 3.3 |
| 1980 to 1981 | 969 | 6.1 |
| 1981 to 1982 | −118 | −0.7 |
| 1982 to 1983 | 22 | 0.1 |
| 1983 to 1984 | 178 | 1.1 |
| 1984 to 1985 | 92 | 0.5 |
| 1985 to 1986 | 632 | 3.7 |
| 1986 to 1987 | 1,935 | 11.0 |
| 1987 to 1988 | 530 | 2.7 |
| 1988 to 1989 | 35 | 0.2 |

Medical School Courses

Dr. Iddon: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment how many medical school courses currently offer (a) community-based vocational training with other healthcare professionals, (b) distance learning and (c) qualification within four years. [74193]

Mr. Mudie: Information on the number of medical school courses currently offering community-based vocational training with other healthcare professionals is not held centrally. Nor do we hold central information on the number of medical school courses offering distance learning but, in 1997–98, there were 480 student enrolments on postgraduate level distance learning courses in clinical medicine at the University of Bath. No other HE institution in the UK has any students recorded as studying pre-clinical or clinical medicine by distance learning. There were also 22 higher education institutions involved in distance learning courses in subjects allied to medicine in the same year with 4,599 students taking a range of subjects at sub-degree, first degree and postgraduate levels. There is no course currently in operation offering an undergraduate qualification in medicine within four years, but Leicester is shortly starting a course in 1999.

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment how many medical school courses offer cross-disciplinary training for primary health care staff. [73754]

Mr. Mudie: This information is not kept centrally. A survey by the Committee of Vice-Chancellors and Principals in 1997 showed that 60 UK institutions offered courses involving shared teaching and learning across the professions: 32 at both undergraduate and postgraduate level; 14 at undergraduate level only; and 14 at postgraduate level only.

Study Support Centres (Football Clubs)

Mr. Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment how many football clubs are currently participating in the provision of study support centres; and how many such centres there are. [74779]

Ms Estelle Morris: Thirty six clubs have agreed to take part in Playing for Success. Twenty clubs have already opened study support centres at their grounds. The remainder plan to open their centres during 1999 or early in 2000.

Selective Education

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Employment what restrictions apply under the School Standards and Framework Act 1998 to teachers who are also parents eligible to vote in a ballot on the future of selective education. [74824]

Ms Estelle Morris: The same restrictions apply to teachers as to anyone else involved in ballots on the future admission arrangements of grammar schools. All parties involved should have regard to the Ballot Information Code set out in the Regulations. Staff in schools and LEAs should also bear in mind the provisions of Section 107 of the School Standards and Framework Act 1998. This prohibits the use of public funds for campaign purposes.

WALES

Opinion Polls

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what is his estimate of expenditure by his Department, its agencies and related public bodies on all forms of opinion polling and focus groups for each of the years from 1994–95 to 1999–2000; and if he will make a statement. [74894]

Mr. Michael: Information on expenditure on opinion polling and focus groups by public bodies is not held centrally.

I will write to the hon. Member as soon as possible with information on expenditure by my Department and place a copy of my reply in the Library of the House.

Departmental Expenditure

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what is his estimate of expenditure by his Department, its agencies and related public bodies on newspapers and magazines for each of the years from 1994–95 to 1999–2000; and if he will make a statement. [74896]

Mr. Michael: Estimated expenditure by my Department for each of the years in question is as follows:

| Year | Newspapers | Magazines[1] |
|---|---|---|
| 1994–95 | 29,310 | 70,520 |
| 1995–96 | 24,170 | 61,100 |
| 1996–97 | 24,190 | 68,400 |
| 1997–98 | 24,500 | 79,400 |
| 1998–99[2] | 22,900 | 78,700 |
| 1999–2000[3] | 24,500 | 80,000 |

[1] 'Magazines' includes purchase costs relating to periodicals, academic journals and Hansard etc.
[2] Based on forecast outturn
[3] Based on provisional budget

These arrangements and future requirements are being reviewed in the light of the transfer of responsibilities to the Welsh Assembly. Figures for agencies and public bodies are not held centrally.

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what is his estimate of expenditure by his Department, its agencies and related public bodies on all forms of hospitality and entertainment for each of the years from 1994–95 to 1999–2000; and if he will make a statement. [74893]

Mr. Michael: The information requested is as follows:

| | Welsh Office | Agency (CADW) |
|---|---|---|
| 1994–95 | 29,000 | 1,734 |
| 1995–96 | 22,000 | 417 |

| 1999–2000 | [2]— | [2]— |

[1] Forecast
[2] Not yet determined

CADW, Welsh Historic Monuments, is the only Agency for which my Department has sole responsibility.

Expenditure on hospitality and entertainment by related public bodies sponsored by my Department is a matter for the management of these bodies; details are not held centrally.

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what is his estimate of expenditure by his Department, its agencies and related public bodies on all forms of (a) external consultancy and (b) internal consultancy for each of the years from 1994–95 to 1999–2000; and if he will make a statement. [74891]

Mr. Michael: The figures for my Department on external consultancies are as follows:

|---|---|
| 1994–95 | 843,000 |
| 1995–96 | 1,212,000 |
| 1996–97 | 600,000 |
| 1997–98 | 700,000 |
| 1998–99 | [1]800,000 |
| 1999–2000 | [2]— |

[1] Forecast
[2] Not yet determined

CADW, Welsh Historic Monuments, the only Agency for which my Department has sole responsibility, has not incurred any expenditure from 1994–95 to 1997–98. In 1998–99 the forecast spend is £1,900, with 1999–2000 yet to be determined.

My Department does not employ internal consultants. Details of expenditure on consultants by related public bodies sponsored by my Department is a matter for the management of these bodies; details are not held centrally.

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what is his estimate of expenditure by his Department and agencies on industry, training and enterprise for each of the years from 1994–95 to 1998–99; what are the planned figures for each of the years from 1999–2000 to 2001–02. [74900]

Mr. Hain: The information is as follows:

Following the transfer of functions, this issue will be a matter for the National Assembly.

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what is his estimate of expenditure by his Department, its agencies and related public bodies on all (a) internal and (b) external conferences for each of the years from 1994–95 to 1999–2000; and if he will make a statement. [74897]

Mr. Michael: Information on such expenditure by related public bodies is not held centrally. Full information on internal and external conferences held by the Welsh Office and its agency since 1994–95 could be obtained only at disproportionate cost. I will write to the hon. Member as soon as possible with the information which is available and place a copy in the Library of the House.

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what is his estimate of expenditure by his Department, its agencies and related public bodies on special advisers for each of the years from 1994–95 to 1999–2000; and if he will make a statement. [74895]

Mr. Michael: The figure for special advisers for my Department for 1997–98 was £90,000 and the forecast for 1998–99 is £109,000. Prior to this these figures were not separately identified.

Cadw, Welsh Historic Monuments, the only Agency for which my Department has sole responsibility, has not incurred any expenditure for special advisers.

I am not aware of expenditure by related public bodies sponsored by my Department for special advisers. I will ask Chief Executives to write to the hon. Member and place a copy of their replies in the Library of the House.

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what is his estimate of expenditure by his Department, its agencies and related public bodies on all forms of administrative expenditure for each of the years from 1994–95 to 1999–2000; and if he will make a statement. [74890]

Mr. Michael: The information requested is as follows:

[1] Forecast

Cadw, Welsh Historic Monuments, is the only Agency for which my Department has sole responsibility.

Expenditure by related public bodies sponsored by my Department is a matter for the management of these bodies; details are not held centrally.

Class Sizes

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what is his estimate of the cost of reducing all primary school class sizes to 30 or fewer pupils, over and above planned provision for smaller class sizes in certain primary school classes; and if he will make a statement. [74903]

Mr. Hain: The cost of reducing all primary school classes to 30 or fewer pupils has not been estimated.

The Government have pledged to reduce the size of all infant classes to 30 pupils or fewer by 2001. In 1998–99, local education authorities (LEAs) in Wales received a total of £3.7m to assist with measures to reduce infant class sizes.

LEA bids for 1999–2000 for grant funding for revenue and capital measures to assist with infant class size reduction total £16.06m against available resources of £11.3m. Allocations will be announced shortly. A total of £23.5m in grant funding is included in forward plans for 2000–01 and 2001–02. Decisions on funding in those years will be a matter for the National Assembly.

LEAs and schools may employ a range of measures to achieve infant classes of 30 or fewer. Measures include employment of additional teachers; capital works; and changes in admissions arrangements, admissions numbers and class organisation within schools.

Following the transfer of functions, this issue will be a matter for the National Assembly.

Departmental Properties

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will list the properties of his Department, its agencies and public bodies which are at present vacant; and what is the estimated value of such properties and annual cost of maintaining the properties in a vacant state. [74898]

Mr. Michael: I will write to the hon. Member as soon as possible and place a copy of my reply in the Library of the House.

Elections

Mr. Alan Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales who has the power to set the time at which votes will be counted in each constituency for the (a) Welsh Assembly elections and (b) council elections. [74564]

Mr. Michael: The constituency returning officer will be responsible for making arrangements as soon as practicable after the close of the polls for counting the votes cast in his constituency at the Assembly constituency election and at the Assembly regional election. There has been considerable detailed discussion on the practicalities between my officials and representatives of returning officers in Wales to make sure that counting takes place in a way which enables the highest standards to be maintained in what is a new style of voting.

With Assembly elections being held on the same day as local government elections, in most parts of Wales there will be three sets of ballot papers to count. The verification and sorting stage is likely to take very much longer than usual. Constituency returning officers expect to complete this stage no earlier than 3 am on Friday 7 May. They will then stop the proceedings, store the ballot papers in secure conditions and reconvene from 9 or 9.30 am that same morning to count the votes. With verification having been completed the night before, the counting of the votes themselves should not take too long. We expect the results of all the constituency and regional elections to be declared by lunch-time on Friday (unless there is a re-count in a constituency).

Paragraph 49(4) gives the Secretary of State a discretionary power to direct that the counting of votes at an ordinary Assembly election should start between 9am and noon on the day following polling day. I do not propose to use that power on this occasion; I understand that the constituency returning officers are having discussions to agree a co-ordinated start throughout Wales for the count of the Assembly votes on Friday morning.

The counting of votes at a local government election is entirely a matter for the local government returning officer. My understanding is that nearly all returning officers for the local government elections have made arrangements for those ballot papers to be counted on the afternoon of Friday 7 May after the Assembly votes have been counted. A very few are still exploring the logistics of counting the votes on the Thursday night. The counts on Friday afternoon should be completed fairly quickly, since verification of the local government ballot papers will have been completed the night before.

ENVIRONMENT, TRANSPORT AND THE REGIONS

Minister for Science

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions on how many occasions when he has met the Minister for Science genetically modified foods or crops have been discussed. [73027]

Mr. Prescott [holding answer 25 February 1999]: I have never discussed genetically modified foods or crops with the Minister for Science.

Genetically Modified Organisms

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will list the commercial licences which have been granted since 1 May 1997 for the growing of genetically modified seeds; which companies and products were covered by those licences; when growing is expected to begin; and if he will make a statement. [73028]

Mr. Meacher [holding answer 25 February 1999]: The table shows the consents which have been issued under Part C of Directive 90/220/EEC since 1 May 1997 for the commercial growing of GM plants. No consents for growing have been issued by the UK since 1 May 1997, but, once a consent is issued to another member state, it applies to all EU countries. Commercial planting of approved seeds in the UK could begin once the UK's internal regulatory processes are complete. This includes placing the varieties on the National Seed List.

| Date submitted | Competent authority | Notifying company | Description of GMO | Scope of application | Consent granted |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| 3 June 1996 | France | AgrEvo France | Maize modified for tolerance to glufosinate ammonium herbicide | Agricultural use leading to animal and human consumption | 3 August 1998 |
| 12 June 1996 | France | Monsanto Europe | Maize modified for insect resistance | Production of maize in the EC and import, storage and processing for use in feed, food and industrial products | 3 August 1998 |
| 25 September 1996 | Netherlands | Florigene Europe BV | Carnation with modified flower colour | Cut flowers for purchase by consumers | 1 December 1997 |
| 14 August 1998 | Netherlands | Florigene Europe BV | Carnations modified for increased vaselife | For production of cut flowers and horticulture | 20 October 1998 |
| 14 August 1998 | Netherlands | Florigene Europe BV | Carnations modified for altered flower colour | For production of cut flowers and horticulture | 20 October 1998 |

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will list the field trials for GMOs that are currently taking place indicating in each case the (a) location, (b) crop being grown and (c) date by which the trial will be concluded. [73264]

Mr. Meacher [holding answer 2 March 1999]: Details on all field trials, including the information the hon. Member requests, is held on the statutory register maintained by DETR. This is available for public inspection.

Trunk Road Junctions

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions when was the last occasion on which a junction was built within two kilometres of another on a trunk road. [73748]

Ms Glenda Jackson: The last junction to be built within two kilometres of another was an access road from the westbound speed-limited slip road of the A406 North Circular Road. This allows access from local roads via a trunk road slip road to a sports facility close to the A406/B550 Colney Hatch junction, in the London Borough of Barnet. This junction became operational at the end of February 1999.

Energy Efficiency

Mrs. Brinton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what was the outcome of his Department's informal consultation on future energy efficiency standards of performance. [74285]

Mr. Meale: The Department's discussion note sought views from the energy industry and other organisations on the advantages and disadvantages of Government making provision for future use of energy efficiency standards of performance, and on the possible ways in which EESOPs, if provided for, could work in the liberalised domestic energy market. 36 companies and organisations responded. One respondee expressed the view that environmental issues should rest with the Government as representative of individuals as citizens, rather than involving energy consumers. The others felt that there should be provision for EESOPs in future utility legislation, or expressed no view on the matter. Respondees felt that EESOPs could work effectively in the new liberalised market, and commented extensively and in detail on the operational practicalities.

Ministers are now considering the information from the discussion.

Local Government Finance (Essex)

Mr. Whittingdale: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will list the total provisional standard spending assessments for 1999–2000 for (a) Essex County Council, (b) Maldon District Council, (c) Chelmsford Borough Council and (d) the Essex Police, indicating (i) the amounts for each major service block within each authority and (ii) the amounts of the standard spending assessments as they would have been if calculated by the same formula as in 1998–99. [74015]

Ms Armstrong: The information requested is shown in the table:

Traffic Commissioner for Wales

Mr. Wigley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions for what reasons the Traffic Commissioner for Wales will henceforward be administered from outside Wales. [74303]

Ms Glenda Jackson: The South Wales Traffic Area has been administered from Birmingham since 1997. The administration of operator licensing for North Wales is currently carried out from Leeds. The proposals to be put before the House shortly will create a new traffic area for Wales by combining the South Wales Traffic Area with North Wales. To minimise disruption to operators and cost, the new Traffic Area will be administered from Birmingham. The Traffic Commissioner will continue to hold his Public Inquiries in Wales as appropriate. Plans are in hand to modernise the information systems within Traffic Area Offices which will allow us to consider the case for providing facilities in Wales in due course.

Speed Limits (Enforcement)

Mr. Casale: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what plans he has to improve enforcement mechanisms for 20 mile per hour speed limits on residential roads in London. [73821]

Ms Glenda Jackson [holding answer 2 March 1999]: Enforcement of speed limits is ultimately a matter for the police. However, the consent of the Secretary of State must be obtained before the making of a 20 mph speed limit, and such consent is given only if it is likely the limit will be self-enforcing, normally by a system of traffic calming. The requirement to obtain consent will shortly be removed, subject to Parliamentary approval, but the advice to ensure the self enforcing nature of 20 mph speed limits will remain.

Maritime Industry

Mr. Sayeed: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions if he will make a statement on investment in the United Kingdom maritime industry. [74490]

Ms Glenda Jackson: Investment in shipping and ports is a matter for private industry and their assessment of future demand, revenues and costs. The Government are concerned that investment should take place which enhances the competitiveness of the maritime industries, efficiently services UK industry and contributes to its aims of sustainable development. Recent publications such as the White Paper "The Future of Transport, British Shipping: Charting a New Course and Sustainable Distribution: A Strategy" set out the Government views on what they can do to improve the climate of investment in the maritime industries. Also relevant is the consultation paper "Review of Trust Ports and Ports Policy Paper: Draft Outline."

Merchant Ships

Mr. Prosser: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions how many merchant navy officer cadets began training in each year since 1990. [74966]

Ms Glenda Jackson: The number of merchant navy officer cadets who began training in each year since 1990 are as follows:

Foleshill Gasworks

Mrs. Shephard: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions (1) if the Foleshill Gasworks application is one which may conflict with national policy on important matters; [74708]

(2) if the Foleshill Gasworks planning application has wide effects beyond its immediate locality; [74706]

(3) if the Foleshill Gasworks application raises issues of more than local importance; [74707]

(4) if the Foleshill Gasworks planning application gives rise to substantial regional or national controversy. [74705]

Mr. Caborn [holding answer 4 March 1999]: I refer to the answer given to the right hon. Lady on 26 February 1999, Official Report, column 484.

The factors referred to in the questions are examples of criteria which are taken into account in deciding whether to call in a planning application. Each case however must be considered on its own merits. Having carefully considered our call-in criteria and planning policy guidance, the Secretary of State did not consider that it was appropriate to call in the application for Foleshill Gasworks.

Shipping

Mr. Sayeed: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what plans he has to ensure that the Government's maritime policy will encourage the shipping industry to register more ships in Britain. [74819]

Ms Glenda Jackson: One of the stated aims of the Government's shipping policy is to encourage UK ship registration, to increase ship owners' identification with the UK, to improve our regulatory control of shipping using UK ports and waters and to help maintain the availability of assets and personnel that may be needed in time of war. The Government's shipping policy paper "British Shipping: Charting a new course" sets out a number of actions designed to develop a shipping environment in which shipping companies will be encouraged to register in the UK.

Council Estates (Manchester)

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what representations he has received about the proposed transfer of Manchester City Council estates in Sale West to other landlords. [74825]

Mr. Raynsford: We have received representations from the three tenants' associations on the Manchester City Council estates in Sale, Magnolia Court Tenants Association, Sale West Tenants and Residents Association, and Manor Avenue Tenants and Residents Association, about the proposed transfer of those estates to a Registered Social Landlord. Those representations will be taken into account as part of the assessment of Manchester's application for a place on the 1999–2000 housing transfer programme.

Road Traffic Accidents

Mr. Key: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions what was the rate of all road traffic accidents expressed as accidents per hundred thousand vehicle miles in the latest year for which figures are available. [74998]

Ms Glenda Jackson: The accident rate for all road traffic accidents is not available as the Department collects data only from those traffic accidents involving personal injury. The accident rate for all road traffic injury accidents is 0.085 per 100,000 vehicle miles

Countryside Agency

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions how many persons have (a) applied for and (b) been invited to apply for membership of the Board of the Countryside Agency; how many have been interviewed; and when he will announce the appointments. [74870]

Mr. Meacher: Two hundred and fifty three applications were considered. Applications resulted from Press advertisements, other publicity, and nominations by organisations notified of the vacancies. Unsuccessful applicants from previous appointment rounds were also considered.

Seventeen candidates have been interviewed. We expect to announce appointments shortly.

TREASURY

Financial Services and Markets Bill

Ms Lawrence: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement regarding consultation on the draft Financial Services and Markets Bill. [75663]

Mr. Milburn: A consultation document on the draft Bill was published in July 1998. I have today published a Progress Report with the main issues raised on the consultation, and the Government's reaction. I am placing copies in the Vote Office and the Libraries of the House. A Joint Committee on Financial Services and Markets has been appointed to report on the Government's proposals.

Written Answers

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer for what reasons he has yet to reply substantively to the question from the hon. Member for Gordon due for answer 25 February (reference 72814). [74988]

Ms Hewitt: I answered the hon. Gentleman's question on 2 March 1999, Official Report, column 642.

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer for what reasons he has not yet replied substantively to the questions from the hon. Member for Gordon, due for answer on 4 February (references 69244 and 69185); and if he will make a statement. [74987]

Ms Hewitt: The Chief Secretary and the Paymaster General have replied substantively to the hon. Gentleman's questions.

Income Tax (Scotland)

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is his latest estimate of the number of (a) adults, (b) income taxpayers and (c) income taxpayers at the basic and higher rates in Scotland; and if he will make a statement. [69185]

Dawn Primarolo [holding answer 4 February 1999]: Latest mid-year population estimates are that there were some 3,970,000 people aged 18 and over in Scotland in 1997. The latest Survey of Personal Incomes indicates that there were about 2,330,000 income taxpayers in Scotland in 1996–97. Of these, 1,540,000 people were liable to pay income tax at basic rate while 152,000 were liable to pay at higher rate.

Contingency Reserves

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the level of the contingency reserves for (a) 1998–99, (b) 1999–2000, (c) 2000–01 and (d) 2001–02; what allocations to or from the reserves have been made since the November 1998 pre-Budget report; and if he will make a statement. [69244]

Mr. Milburn [holding answer 4 February 1999]: The Economic and Fiscal Strategy Report of June 1998 set the Reserve in 1998–99 at £3.8 billion.

The 1998–99 Winter and Supplementary Estimates and associated changes to non-Voted provision, which have been presented to the House, allocated £3.4 billion of the 1998–99 Reserve to departments. This includes the extra £250 million for the NHS in 1998–99, announced in the pre-Budget Report.

The Departmental Expenditure Limit Reserve for 1999–2000, 2000–01 and 2001–02 was set out in the Comprehensive Spending Review White Paper (Cm 4011).

INDEX TO THE

PARLIAMENTARY DEBATES

OFFICIAL REPORT

SIXTH SERIES VOLUME 326

SESSION 1998–99

22nd February—5th March 1999

SCOPE OF THE INDEX, ARRANGEMENT AND ABBREVIATIONS

This index to the daily parts and weekly Hansard is derived from the House of Commons Library's Parliamentary On-Line Indexing Service (POLIS), and the subject terms used are based on those used in POLIS. There are often changes in column numbering, etc., between the daily part or weekly Hansard (which simply collects together the daily parts without revision) and the bound volume. The index for the bound volume is revised to take account of these changes, and cannot, therefore, be used in conjunction with the daily part or weekly Hansard. For these versions use the Fortnightly Index.

Scope and arrangement of the Index

Oral and Written Parliamentary Questions are indexed under subject headings and the names of Members asking and Ministers replying to them. Questions are not listed under the names of Departments replying. Departmental listings can be arrived at indirectly by looking under the names of the Minister(s) of that Department. There will, however, be headings 'Northern Ireland', 'Scotland', and 'Wales' under which one will find not only Questions answered by the Northern Ireland Office, Scottish Office, Welsh Office but also Questions about these areas of the United Kingdom which are answered by other Departments. Ministerial statements are indexed under subject headings, under 'Ministerial statements' and the names of Ministers making them and Members speaking on them. General debates are indexed under broad subject headings and under the names of all Members and Ministers taking part. Debates on legislation (Bills, Orders, Regulations etc.) are indexed under the name of the Bill, Statutory Instruments etc., under subject headings and under the names of those taking part.

Contributions by Speaker and deputies are brought together under the heading 'Speaker and deputies'. Significant rulings and statements are indicated by the sub-heading 'Rulings and statements'.

Opposition Day Debates and Estimates Day Debates are listed under those respective headings and under subject headings too.

The date of each item except Parliamentary Questions is inserted immediately before the reference.

Members' names are given in the form by which they prefer to be known and are printed in bold italics. Under their names, entries are arranged under one of the two headings Debates, etc. (to include interventions on statements, points of order and so on) or Questions.

Abbreviations

Bills 1R = first reading, 2R = second reading, Com = Committee stage, Rep = Report stage, 3R = third reading, res = resolution, amendt/amendts = amendment/amendments, * = matter taken formally, without debate.

Column numbers followed by the letter W refer to Written Questions. These appear at the end of each daily part or volume with their own sequence of column numbers printed in italics.
